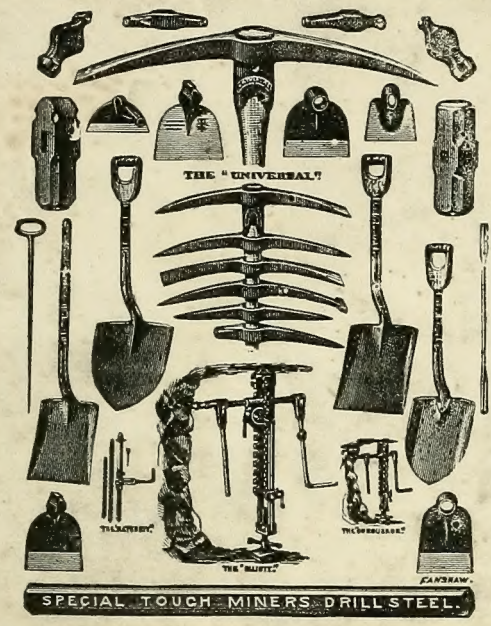
HIGH-CLASS TOOLS



FOR

MINERS, CONTRACTORS, QUARRYMEN, & AGRICULTURISTS,

Of all Patterns, and for all Markets.

Our Tools are made of the best Sheffield Steel and are Warranted. They are unequalled in quality and finish.

"UNIVERSAL" & "ACME" PICKS.

Hand and Power Boring Machines for ROCK and COAL.

Picks, Shovels, Spades, Forks, Hoes, Axes, Hammers, Wedges, Crowbars, &c.

Special tough Drill Steel; Shear, Cast and Blister Steel; Saws, Files and Rasps.

IMPORTERS OF HICKORY HANDLES.

25 Prize Medals awarded for Excellence of Quality and Original Designs.

DISINTEGRATING,

AND

SCREENING MACHINERY

FOR ALL KINDS OF MATERIAL.

THE "DEVIL" DISINTEGRATOR is the best for moderately fine and coarse grinding.

THE "MULTIPLE" GRINDER is the best for very fine and impalpable grinding.

THE MAGNETIC SEPARATOR is the most perfect machine for separating Iron and Steel from any other material.

THE VIBROMOTOR provides a new mechanical motion by which oscillating, shaking, and gyrating machinery can be worked without the usual objectionable and harmful vibration of the whole fabric and buildings connected with such machinery, and is the best method of working Coal Screens, Separators, Concentrators, and all screening machinery.

THE ELLIOTT COAL WASHER is the Cheapest, most Effective and most Economical Machine. It is Perfectly Automatic in its action. The cost of Repairs is slight, and any size plant only requires one man to superintend it. This Washer does all that other machines can do, and at considerably less cost.

LIFE ASSURANCE AT MODERATE PREMIUMS WITH QUINQUENNIAL BONUSES.

THE EDINBURGH LIFE

Assurance Company.

Founded 1823. Incorporated by Act of Parliament.

President—SIR GRAHAM GRAHAM MONTGOMERY, of Stanhope, Bart.
Vice-President—THE MOST HON. THE MARQUIS OF LOTHIAN, K.T.

Funds - £3,000,000. Income - £365,000.

THE BONUS SYSTEM

is peculiarly equitable, an increasing share of the Profits being enjoyed by the Policy-holders as they advance in age.

THE COMPREHENSIVE NON-FORFEITURE PLAN

removes all anxiety in the event of payment of Premiums being overlooked.

PERSONAL PROVISION.

The Directors have done much to popularise the System of Endowment Assurance under which the Policy-holder not only makes provision for those dependent upon him, in the event of his early death, but also for himself in old age. On attaining an agreed-on age, the sum assured may be taken either in one cash payment or by way of ANNUITY or PENSION during the remainder of life as the assured may then prefer.

FAMILY TRUST POLICIES

are protected against Creditors, and held as a Trust for the persons intended to benefit.

POLICIES WORLD-WIDE.

THE CONDITIONS OF ASSURANCE ARE FREE FROM ALL UNNECESSARY RESTRICTIONS.

Prospectuses, Accounts, Forms, and all information may be had on application.

PREFACE.

The present issue of the Directory of Scotland is produced jointly by Slater's Directory, Limited, and Kelly & Co., Limited, in accordance with a working arrangement between them, and several alterations and additions have been made with the idea of adding to the efficiency of this Publication.

To the General Introduction to Scotland particulars and tables have been added, illustrating the resources of the Country.

Under each County the several Parishes, Towns and Chief Villages have been arranged in strict Alphabetical order, for facility of reference, preceded by some particulars of the industries of the Counties, with the names of the Magistrates, the County Council, County Officers, &c.

Glasgow and Edinburgh have sections devoted to these Cities, to which in each case a "Street Directory" has been added.

Two additional sections have been included for the first time, viz., a "Private Resident" List, giving Names and Addresses of the Nobility, Clergy and Gentry, and a "Trades Directory," including the names of persons engaged in Trade in Scotland, similar to Lists given with the Edinburgh and Glasgow sections.

A complete Index to Places is prefixed to the book, and a further feature is a list of "Principal Seats," with the Names of the Occupiers and the pages on which they can be found.

Appended is a large Map of Scotland prepared for this Edition.

The Proprietors tender their thanks to those Gentlemen who have favoured them with the benefit of their local knowledge.

August, 1896.

SCOTLAND.

This most northerly of the great divisions of the British Isles lies north of England, with an inclination to the west, which throws the western coast, taking the direction from south to north, considerably west of the line of the coast of Cumberland, and in the same proportion the line of the south and centre portion of the eastern coast recedes to the west of the line of the coast of Northumberland (though north of Aberdeen, about Peterhead, the coast trends eastward, only to recede again north of the Moray Firth), thus the Mull of Cantyre, the southern portion of Argyllshire, is in the longitude (5° 50′) of Belfast, the district of Ardnamurchan, in that of Portrush, in the north of Ireland, and the Hebrides lie still further west, while on the east coast, Edinburgh and Leith are in the longitude of Silloth, on the west coast of Cumberland, and Dundee in that of Carlisle. The kingdom lies between the longitude of 2° to 1° 50′ and 7° 30′ west of Greenwich and between 54° 35′ and 61° north latitude; this includes the Orkney and Shetland Isles, and gives a length, from north to south, of 470 miles, of which the mainland takes 295 miles, while the breadth varies from 105 miles, on a line taken east to west from Grangemouth to the western side of Colonsay, to 225 miles from Peterhead to the west of Uist (or 385 miles if the outlying Isles of St. Kilda are included); the total acreage being 19,466,509, or 30,416 square miles.

The coast line is extremely varied, and resembles that of Ireland, in having its western coast indented with long inlets, with the addition of a long breakwater of islands, 140 miles in length, off the north-western coast, with the large islands of Skye, Mull, Jura and Islay closer in to the mainland. These islands, and a large portion of the coast which lies behind them, are exposed to the Atlantic, though the great current which, after its division into two by Ireland, has such an influence on the banks and estuaries of the Irish Channel, only glances against the south-western point of Cantyre and Port Patrick, Wigtownshire, and after sending a portion of its force into the Firth of Clyde, and a minor current into the Solway, passes down channel. The total length of coast line (not including the islands, nor any except the largest estuaries), is about 1,100 miles, but measured in and out of all the estuaries and lochs, it is rather more than double that distance. The land border from Berwick to the head of Solway Firth is only 90 miles; the centre part of this is formed by the Cheviot Hills and the eastern by the Tweed, and going north from the mouth of this river, the east coast trends north-west in a tolerably even line, only broken by St. Abb's Head, and the small harbour of Dunbar. At Tantallon, near North Berwick, it turns direct west, being here broken by the Firth of Forth, subsequently turning north-west at Fife Ness to the Firth of Tay, resuming its northerly direction at Buddon Ness, the north-east horn of St. Andrews Bay, and runs up with a slight trend eastwards past Arbroath, Montrose, Stonehaven and Aberdeen to Peterhead. About 10 miles north of this, near Fraserburgh, the coast has a direct westerly course for nearly 80 miles into the Moray Firth, then north-east to Tarbet Ness, which forms the southern point of Dornoch Firth; after clearing which the coast takes another bend to the north-east as far as Wick, thence due north to Duncansby Head, the Land's End of Scotland. From here the coasts of Caithness and Sutherland extend due east to west, turning abruptly south at Cape Wrath, and from this point to the Mull of Cantyre, is a broken and rocky coast line, indented with numerous sea lochs and studded with long promontories, it trends south-west to the southern point of Loch Carnbawn, thence easterly into Loch Broom; again to the west past Lochs Groinard and Ewe; south past Lochs Gair and Torridon to Loch Carron, south of which the Isle of Skye indents into Loch Alsh; the coast from here is broken by Lochs Hourn, Nevis, Morar, Na Nuag and Moidart, and then projects some 15 miles in the promontory of Ardmurchan, succeeded by Loch Sunart and the Sound of Mull, which takes the coast 20 miles easterly to Loch Linnhe, the southern end of the Caledonian canal, thence it proceeds south and consists of the broken coast of Argyllshire as far as the Mull of Cantyre, which ends the rocky portion of the coast, and forms the western horn of entrance to the Firth of Clyde, round which the coast line passes the large Lochs Fyne and Long, returning down the coast of Ayrshire, passing the peculiar shores of Wigtown, which are indented in its northern side by Loch Ryan and south by Luce Bay, to which, round Burrowhead, succeeds Wigtown Bay, and the coast runs thence in a north-easterly course along the north shore of the Solway Firth.

Inland, the best known divisions are the Highlands and the Lowlands, marked out not only by their configuration and hills, but also by the differences apparent in their inhabitants, in their language, and even in their cattle; these divisions may be indicated by a line starting from the Mull of Cantyre, along the eastern side of the Islands of Arran and Bute, and along the east of Loch Lomond, thence north by east to Inverness, crossing the Moray Firth, and ending at Duncansby Head; the west and north-west of this line is the Highland country, embracing, it is estimated, about 18,000 square miles of the mainland, or with the islands 21,000; here are the highest mountains, and the largest inland lochs; the most prominent amongst the former being Ben Nevis 4,400 feet above the sea level, Cairngorm 4,083, Ben Lawers 3,980, Ben More 3,850, Ben Cruachan 3,700 and Ben Lomond 3,200. The Lowland district stretches eastward and south; the loftiest peaks in the district being Broadlaw 2,750, Hart Fell 2,650 and Criffel 1,860.

The principal rivers, beginning from the south, are the Tweed, debouching at Berwick, the Esk, the Annan and the Nith, falling into the Solway Firth. The Clyde, rising in the Upper Ward of Lanarkshire and flowing westward to its own Firth. The Forth, rising in the Perthshire hills and flowing south-east to the German Ocean. The Tay, having its source in the same watershed, but debouching east by north between the counties of Fife and Forfar. The Dee and the Don, the one flowing east and the other south-east, but both debouching by Aberdeen, and the Spey, rising in Inverness-shire and falling into the North Sea in the north-east of Morayshire. From here, round the north and west coasts to Firth of Clyde, the rivers are comparatively small, the water, in nearly all cases, forming a succession of lochs on its way to the North Sea or Atlantic.

The sea lochs have been already named in the coast line, and those inland are very numerous; a few of the largest are on the western and centre portions, Loch Lomond (which covers about 20,000 acres), Lochs Awe, Katrine, Tay, Rannoch, Arkaig, Lochy, Laggan, Ness, Fannich, Maree, Shin and Stonine, while on the east, Loch Leven is the only prominent sheet of water. The Western Isles also contain a few large lakes. All these provide good fishing grounds, and the sea lochs and coasts abound in fish.

History.—The earliest record that can be trusted is that relating to the Roman invasion, which took place A.D. 79, at which time an army under Agricola crossed the Solway Firth and by the next year had established themselves on the north bank of the Clyde, shortly afterwards (A.D. 81) erecting the wall of Antonine, from Bowling to Grangemouth, between the Firths of Clyde and Forth, taking that natural division line of the country as their northern boundary. At this time the country generally was known as Caledonia, though it would appear that the Caledonians proper held the extreme north, and the Picts the more southerly portion, except in the south-west, where a British tribe had planted themselves; the Romans remained until 410, and on their departure, the Britons and Picts contended for the sovereignty. Meanwhile, a Celtic tribe from the north-east of Ireland, took possession of Cantyre and pushing into Lorn and Strath Clyde, imposed their yoke on the inhabitants of the western districts, and forming a kingdom known as the Dalriadic, attempted, with varying success, the conquest of the Picts, and as they, coming from Scotia (as Ireland was then called), got the name of Scots, may be said to have originated the name of Scotland. Ultimately, in 843, the Dalriadic and Pictish thrones were united under Kenneth, grandson of Achaius. Meanwhile, on the eastern side, the kingdom of Northumbria, a foundation of the Norsemen under Ida, was pushed forward to the Lothians on the banks of the Forth, and in 617 extended from the Humber to the Forth and in 654 included Strathclyde, but in 685 the Picts defeated Egfrid, King of Northumbria, at Dunnichen, though it was not until 966 that Kenneth III. got the Lothians ceded to him, the final annexation taking place in 1058, under Malcolm III. "first king of Scotia" (surnamed Ceanmore). Between 881 and 1057 a constant war was waged with the Danes, upon whom no less than eight defeats were inflicted by Scottish sovereigns, the principal being Danes Dyke 881, Fortevoit 908, Luncarty 961 and Mortlach 1010. In 1066, Edgar Atheling, the Saxon claimant to the English throne, with his two sisters and many Saxon and some Norman nobles, sought refuge in Scotland; the king received them well and settled them in various parts of the kingdom, marrying two years later Edgar's sister, Margaret. He was killed 1093 at the siege of Alnwick and was succeeded (after four years usurpation by Donald Bane) by his son Edgar, whose sister married Henry I. of England. After him came Alexander I. 1107 and David I. "The Saint," 1124. William the Lion, so-called from his cognisance, a red lion rampant, which afterwards became the shield of Scotland, who came to the throne 1165, was taken prisoner at Alnwick 1174, and only released by Richard I. in 1189; he was succeeded by Alexander II. who inflicted the great defeat upon Haco, King of Norway, at Largs in 1263. Alexander III. was killed by a fall at Kinghorn, 1286 (in the time of Thomas the Rhymer); his young daughter, Margaret, dying 1290, left the crown open to various competitors, and gave Edward I. of England an excuse to step in and decide between the claims of John Baliol and Robert Bruce, and first opened up the claim to the English suzerainty; John Baliol, proving the most pliant, was placed on the throne, only to be deposed, and during this time William Wallace made a gallant attempt to retrieve the fortunes of his country, and defeated Cressingham at Stirling (1297), was himself defeated at Falkirk (1298), and being captured (1305) was executed. Robert Bruce, grandson of the first competitor, was crowned 1306, but not until 1314 did he prove successful, and then he won his great battle of Bannockburn; but in 1324, Edward II. ravaged the South and East of Scotland; and in 1329 Bruce died, and was succeeded by his son David II. a minor, and in 1334, John Baliol's son Edward, under the auspices of Edward III. made an attempt on the throne; David being taken prisoner in 1346 (at Nevilles Cross), was released in 1359 on his marriage with Joanna, sister to Edward III. and died 1371; the next year John of Gaunt sought refuge in Scotland, and in 1385, Richard II. burnt Edinburgh. Robert II. (1371) was the first of the Stuarts and a grandson to Robert Bruce, and in his reign (1388), Douglas won the battle of Otterburn, to which followed a long truce, during which Robert III. became king, and in 1405, his son James was captured by the English and only released in 1424, when he became James I. and was assassinated (1437) at Perth. James II. then six years old, succeeded and was killed at the siege of Roxburgh in 1460; he assassinated the Douglas in Stirling Castle during a dispute; James III. succeeded him, and James IV. 1503, married Margaret of England, and in 1513 perished at Flodden. James V. long a minor under the control of Angus, married, 1537, Magdalene, daughter of Francis I. of France; and in 1538, Mary of Guise, mother of Mary Queen of Scots, and this brings us to better known times; Mary, as a minor, was brought up in France, and Arran was Regent in 1545. Hertford, an English noble, afterwards Duke of Somerset, burnt Edinburgh and many border places; in 1554, Mary of Guise became Regent; 1558, Mary (the younger), married Francis, Dauphin of France, and in 1561 Mary came to Scotland a widow, married Darnley, 1565; Bothwell in 1567 fled to England the same year and was sacrificed to Elizabeth's jealousy 1587. James VI. had been made king in 1567, and in 1603 succeeded Elizabeth on the English throne and removed to London, revisiting Scotland only once afterwards (1617). After James VI.'s death, his son Charles succeeded him as Charles I. of England and Scotland; he visited Edinburgh in 1633, and was crowned in the Chapel Royal of Holyrood, and in 1641 he again came to his northern capital to win over, if he could, the Covenanting Lords, and five years later he threw himself into the arms of the Scottish army, only to be surrendered by them to the English Parliament, when the latter settled the arrears of pay due to the Scots. Charles II. came in 1650, on the invitation of the Scottish Parliament, and while he was there Cromwell invaded the kingdom and gained over General Leslie the victory of Dunbar, but could not venture to attack the Scottish forces stationed with King Charles about Stirling. In the succeeding year Charles was crowned King of Scotland at Scone Palace, and in August of the same year he marched from Stirling to Worcester. The army stationed in Scotland, under Monck, was mainly instrumental in the Restoration, and previous to his succession to the throne, James, Duke of York (afterwards James VII. of Scotland and II. of England) resided sometime in Edinburgh, but on his abdication William III. espoused the cause of the Presbyterians, and the reign of his successor, Anne, was marked by the passing of the Act of Union, and henceforth, if we except the two attempts, 1715 and 1745, made by the Stuarts to regain their hereditary dominions, Scottish history as a distinct kingdom ceased.

During these periods from the Norman invasion, the border land lying along the Tweed and the Cheviot Hills had been the scene of constant forays carried out by the English border chieftains, to which those on the Scotch side promptly retaliated, and though there were on both sides nobles called "Wardens of the Marches," commissioned by their sovereigns to maintain order, the reiving still went on and was varied occasionally by a regular invasion from one side or the other, such as of Lords Sussex and Hunsdon in 1570; later on the only purely Scottish events were Mars rising in 1715 and the gallant attempt of Prince Charles Edward in 1745 to recover the possessions of his ancestors. But in 1707 an event was consummated which ended the independence of Scotland as a kingdom, for the Articles of Union, which, after much show of opposition, had been (1706) approved by a majority of thirty-three in the Scottish House of Parliament, consisting of about 240 members, came into effect; and from that time Scottish constituencies were represented in the Imperial Parliament, originally by 45 members but now by 72, and the Scotch Peerage by sixteen members elected each Parliament to sit in the House of Lords.

The Scottish Parliament, abolished at the time of the Union, was constituted on a slightly different form to the present Imperial Parliament. It consisted from early times of one House only, composed of Ecclesiastical Barons (Bishops and mitred Abbots), the Higher Temporal Barons, the Lesser Barons and Burghers. These two last classes were often represented by delegates, and the towns more often by their provosts; there existed also a peculiar committee with functions somewhat analogous to those of an English grand jury (but applying to bills for consideration of the House and not indictments), who, under the style of "Lords of Articles," were appointed each session, and who examined all proposed bills and rejected any that they considered it was inadvisable to lay before the House; these Lords, originally named by the Crown, were latterly elected by the Separate Estates, and in 1560 consisted of ten Spiritual Lords, ten Greater Barons, six Lesser Barons and ten Provosts of Cities. The Scottish Order of Knighthood, that of "The Thistle," first founded in 819 by King Achaius, was revived in 1540 by James and again in 1687 by James VII. and still remains one of the "Orders" of the United Kingdom.

Ecclesiastical.—The early settlers, Picts or Caledonians, were heathens, and it was the missionary labours of the Irish Priest Columba (A.D. 630) and a reflux of christian teachers and Prelates from Northumbria, together with the visit of a Welsh bishop, that Scotland owed her conversion to christianity; for some time there were two sects of the church working in the kingdom, the monks from the North of England holding to a more modern form of Romanism than the ancient Celtic fathers; however, all finally settled to one orthodox usage, but the supremacy over the western portion claimed by the Archbishops of York was rejected, and the Church of Scotland was governed by its own archbishops, but the Civil dissensions in Queen Mary's reign favoured the Reformers, and in 1580 Episcopacy ceased, and in 1592 Presbyterianism was established by law, and was followed by the destruction of abbeys &c. In 1625 Charles I. tried to revive Episcopacy, but was met in 1638 by the National Covenant, the adherents to which in 1679 murdered Archbishop Sharpe, and were persecuted for some years, but as the Episcopal Church could not in conscience support William III. he gave his support to the Presbyterians, and in July, 1689, Prelacy was abolished by Act of Parliament, and since that the Presbyterian Church has been the Established Church of Scotland, and though it was somewhat shaken in 1843 by the great disruption, on the question of patronage and State veto and the foundation of the Free kirk, it still holds its own as the State church; there is, however, an Episcopal hierarchy and one of the Roman church and several powerful sects of dissenters.

Antiquities and Ruins.—Overrun as it has been by so many varied races, Scotland contains a large number, not only of ancient warlike remains, but also many ecclesiastical ruins, the destruction of these latter being in many cases due to changes in the national religion: amongst the warlike ruins we find the vitrified forts, built it is supposed of mud and wattle and hardened by the application of fire; of this class is Menmuir, in Forfarshire; to this or a slightly later age belong the old circular towers or brough as in Burra, Orkney Islands, and the so-called Dun forts, built of boulder stones without cement, while later came the Roman camps and their celebrated wall of Antonine from the Forth to the Clyde, with its ditch and inner road (which latter was long used by trains of packhorses); next are the older castles founded from the 11th century up to the 14th or 15th, and now nearly all ruins, as Dunstaffnage, Cardross, Castle Campbell, Loch Leven, Caer Laverock, Cawdor, Inverlochy, East Bothwell &c. the ruined palaces of Falkland and Linlithgow, the three royal castles, maintained under the Articles of Union, viz., Edinburgh, Stirling and Dumbarton, and the many fortified houses, some still habitable, and the border Peel towers. Among the ecclesiastical remains are the standing stones or Druidical temples of Stennis and of Callanish, the great Runic crosses of Iona and others scattered through the land, the old Cathedral of Iona, the grand Border Abbeys of Jedburgh, Melrose, Dryburgh and Kelso, and the eastern ones of Brechin and Elgin and the perfect specimens of cathedrals still in use at Glasgow and Kirkwall, while the chapel of Holyrood and the older tower of that palace may be ranked with antique buildings There are two round towers, similar to those found in Ireland, still standing at Abernethy and Brechin.

Highland Clans.—The clans were the pastoral tribes of a hilly district, each tribe obeying a chief who represented the original headman, and was directly descended from him, and a very similar state of government exists at the present day amongst the hill tribes of Affghanistan; each clan had its distinct district and was distinguished by its tartan or plaid and its badges; they seldom united themselves with any of the adjoining clans, and then only to oppose a common enemy, and when thus collected in strong bodies their action was most effective, though marred to some extent by their custom of returning home after each successful action to deposit their plunder and see to their own settlements. The chief in each clan was paramount, presided over it in peace and led it in war, and next to him stood the dunniewassels, or gentlemen of the clan, who were generally the only fully armed members (with targe, pistols and claymore, to which was afterwards added the Spanish musket), and the poorer members of the clan, with often only a claymore or a Lochaber axe, formed a second or supporting line. Their form of government was patriarchal and all shared in the spoil, while the chief held the power of life and death; the king's warrant did not run in these wild districts, and their love of fighting led to constant forays of one clan against another; however, by the time James VI. came to the throne they had been in a measure subdued, and the risings of 1715 and 1745 finally broke up their power and they now only exist by the community of name and family, though the chief in many cases can still trace his descent. Some of the clans were deported to Canada, and Pitt's wise measure of making regiments from other leading clans was the means of pacifying them and giving them a congenial employment.

The Highland district contains the largest civil parishes, Glenshiel being 573,320 acres, Lochbroom 261,020 acres and Gairloch 200,646, all in Ross-shire, which possesses three other parishes over 100,000 acres each, while Sutherland has seven parishes over that figure, Caithness one, Inverness nine (and one of 267,071), Perthshire one, 196,683 acres and Argyll five of over 100,000 acres each, while Ayrshire shows one of 585 acres, Edinburghshire one of 349, Wigtownshire one of 55 and Linlithgow one of 11 acres; from 5,000 to 12,000 acres being a very common size for a lowland parish.

The agricultural holdings are many of them small, and in the islands and some North Highland parishes the crofters, or small farmers, chiefly those of Argyll and Inverness, have suffered from an accumulation of arrears and by rents beyond the capacity of their farms. A commission appointed under Acts of 1886 and 1887 has in nine years it has been in operation fixed about 15,000 fair rents, and by the establishment of new piers and harbours and lighthouses, subsidising lines of steamers and helping the extension of railways, has afforded the fishermen and crofters facilities for getting their produce to market. The Commission on Deer Forests reported in March, 1883, that about 1,700,000 acres might possibly be found suitable for crofter occupation, but of this only about 400,000 acres were in the vicinity of the districts affected by the crofter question.

Soil and Agriculture.—The face of the country is very variable, the north centre and the western coast down to Cantyre and Arran being mostly of a sterile and heathy nature, and suitable only for the sustenance of sheep, mountain cattle and deer, while the eastern portion (especially the flat land between the mountain ranges and the sea) affords a most suitable ground for corn and other crops, and fine grazing ground, not only for sheep, but for the better class of cattle and horses. South, again, of the Firths of Forth and Clyde, the land shows a belt of minerals, extending from Ayrshire in a north-easterly direction into Fifeshire, some good arable land down the course of the southern streams, a less prolific eastern coast line than that further north, and a rough moorland along the border north of the Cheviots and along their slopes. The mean annual temperature has been estimated at about 44 to 47 degrees, varying with local peculiarities of height above the sea level &c.; the arable land does not range higher than 800 feet above this level. The acreage of corn crops and pasturage is very nearly equal (about 1,300,000 acres), but half of the first-named crop is in the eastern district, one-third in the south, only one-tenth in the north, and about one-twelfth in the bare western division; the same proportion occurs in the root crop, and to some extent in that of the green crops, though in this last the south holds a place nearly level with the east division, which has one half of the crop, but on a comparison of pasture land it is found that the south has over half the total acreage, the east only a fourth, and the west and north one-ninth and one-eleventh respectively. Heath (or mountain) land, which counts for one half of the total acreage, shows, as may be expected, a preponderance in north and west, the latter accounting for one-third, and the former showing five-eighteenths, the east only one-sixth, while the south, owing to its extensive moorlands and border hills, accounts for four-eighteenths. The woods only cover one-twentieth of the total area, and are distributed chiefly in the eastern and western districts.

The distribution of sheep and cattle does not quite follow that of the heath and pasture, the north carrying a small proportion of both, the west one-fourth of the total in sheep, but only one-ninth in cattle, while the east, with only one-fifth of sheep, feeds nearly half of the total of cattle, and the south, with a very heavy preponderance (three-sevenths) of sheep, has fewer cattle than the eastern divisions. See tables.

Animals &c.—The most notable breeds of cattle are the Galloway short horns, the Kyloe small black cattle from lower Argyll and Bute, and the Highland breed of small short-legged cattle with shaggy hides and straight horns. The sheep in the same districts are also of a small, sturdy black-faced breed and very active, while on the southern border is a larger species, indigenous to the Cheviot Hills, and on the east coast a breed belonging to the Grampians district. The horses show the same characteristics; the Shetland pony, only seven or eight hands in height, active and sturdy, is now much sought after, while in the south-west is the breed of Galloways, somewhat resembling the Welsh pony, but rather higher, and the original mount of the "Border Pricker" in his English forays; and in the valley of the Clyde and Ayrshire are found the celebrated Clydesdale horses. The east coast, about Fife and Forfar, likewise furnishes a good breed of roadsters, and this side of the country furnishes the largest supply of horses generally. The tall, shaggy Scotch deer-hound is well-known, and terriers show some fine breeds, while the Scotch collie is a finer bred dog than the southern sheep dog. The deer, which constitute a leading feature in the Highlands, where they have some 2,000,000 acres for their use, are the red deer, found in few other districts in these islands, and the roe deer, and Hamilton park has one of the three herds of the wild cattle extant in Great Britain. One of the attractions of Scotland lies in the abundance of salmon and trout, both found in the majority of its rivers and lochs. Amongst birds is the grouse and the scarce capercailzie, the gannets of the Bass Rock and some few other island rocks

Railways and Canals.—The railway system of the country originated with the means of communication with England, from which country two main lines enter Scotland, one (the Caledonian) at Gretna, close to the head of the Solway Firth, whence it proceeds north to Carstairs, and, dividing, goes east to Edinburgh and west to Glasgow, with numerous cross branches, including one to Ayr and one between Edinburgh and Glasgow, and carrying its main line viâ Stirling on to Aberdeen, and a branch westward to Oban. The other line from England (the North British) enters at Berwick-upon-Tweed, at the eastern extremity of the border, runs round the coast by Dunbar, and by another branch, viâ Galashiels, to Edinburgh, and thence across the Forth Bridge to Perth and through Fifeshire, also from Edinburgh to Glasgow, Airdrie, Hamilton &c. From Perth starts the Highland railway, running up north to Inverness, Dingwall (from whence a branch runs to Strome Ferry and Kyle), Tain, Thurso and Wick, while the Great North of Scotland occupies the ground north-west of Aberdeen to Banff, Elgin &c. and up the valley of the Dee, and the West Highland (the most recent of the lines) runs from Helensburgh, west of Loch Lomond to Tyndrum, Loch Rannock and Fort William. The only remaining line is the Glasgow and South Western, which, leaving Gretna, runs viâ Dumfries (where a line branches to Castle Douglas and Newtown Stewart), Thornhill, Cumnock and Kilmarnock to Glasgow, and has branches to Paisley, Greenock &c.

Canals.—The principal are the Caledonian Canal, along the Glen Albion, from Fort William to Inverness, the Crinan, across the upper part of Cantyre, both of these being used for steamer traffic; the Forth and Clyde Canal, from Bowling, on the Clyde, to Grangemouth on the Forth, following very much the line of the Roman wall, and the Union Canal which, leaving the Forth and Clyde at Larbert, connects it with Edinburgh and the Monkland canal, which leaving Port Dundas, the Glasgow terminus of the Forth and Clyde, extends to Airdrie, Gartsherrie &c.

ABERDEENSHIRE.

THIS important county is situated in the north-east part of Scotland, and is bounded on the north and east by the North Sea; on the south by the counties of Kincardine, Forfar and Perth, the Grampian Hills separating it from the two latter, and on the West by Inverness-shire and Banffshire. In form it approaches to that of an oval, the length of which, from north-east to south-west, is about eighty-five miles, and its extreme breadth about forty, and comprises 1,970 square miles. The coast line, which is indented by numerous bays and creeks, is about 60 miles in length. The county ranks as sixth in size and fourth in population. In 1881 it contained a population of 267,990, and in 1891, 281,332 (males, 133,861, females, 147,471), showing an increase in the ten years of 13,342. Inhabited houses in 1891 were 56,683.

The total acreage (land and water) of the county is 1,268,251 acres, of which in 1894, 101,544 were under green crops, and 217,874 under corn crops; the principal crops being hay 49,488 acres; turnips 91,555 and oats 196,733; the permanent pasturage 35,578 acres; mountains and heath used for grazing 155,247; woods 108,858; of live stock in the same year there were in the county 30,591 horses; 179,346 cattle; 184,219 sheep and 9,922 pigs, and there is plenty of game and deer.

Climate and Natural Features:—Towards the sea the land is fertile and comparatively level; but a great proportion of the county lies amidst the wilderness of the central Highlands. Turnips succeed better in this county than in any other in Scotland. The climate is cold, yet it is less liable to extreme low temperature than other districts lying further south and inland.

The county is divided into five districts, viz:—Mar, Garioch, Strathbogie, Fromartine and Buchan. Mar lies in the south-west and south portion of the county along the river Dee and south of the Don: Garioch north of the Don and west of Kintore: Strathbogie is on the north-west of Garioch and its southern point touching the north boundary of Mar: Fromartine lies to the east of Garioch and south of the Ythan: Buchan occupying the north-east portion of the county north of the Ythan and east of the Devenor and upper part of Strathbogie. The appearance of the upper part of the district of Mar is wild, rugged and mountainous. Towards the east and north-east the surface becomes more level, but is in many places moorish and barren; but the woods, mostly fir, are extensive, producing fine timber. The rivers Don and Dee have both their sources in this quarter. Balmoral, the Highland residence of Her Majesty the Queen, and Abergeldie, the seat of His R. H. the Prince of Wales, are in this district. From the top of Craigendarroch there is, perhaps, one of the most grand and picturesque views in Scotland. At the termination of a deep glen in Strathdee is the pass of Ballater, which forms the eastern entrance into the Grampian mountains. The district of Buchan is not so hilly, lying mostly on the the east and north coast, but being almost destitute of wood its appearance is bleak and naked; from the quantities, however, of large timber found in many mosses, no doubt can exist of its having once been well wooded. Anciently this extensive domain was the property of the Earls of Buchan, on whose attainder, in 1320, King Robert Bruce divided the land among his adherents. Subsequently the title was revived in the Erskine family, but without a restoration of the lands, and the present earl has no property in this quarter. The districts of Strathbogie, Garioch, and Formartine are generally well cultivated.

Inhabitants.—There is a characteristic difference to be observed in the natives of Aberdeenshire from those of any other county in Scotland. They are in general regarded as an active, vigorous and enterprising race; and when they emigrate they seldom fail to succeed. The dialect of the inhabitants, too, is peculiar from those of the South of Scotland; and to a stranger's ear appears to be attended with a slow pronunciation and broad accent. On the sea coasts they have a distinct difference of physiognomical appearance from other inhabitants of this county and attest by this, as well as by their speech, that they are descended from a race of people which originally came from the northern regions of Europe, and fixed themselves in this part of Scotland.

Rivers, Mountains &c.—The principal rivers of Aberdeenshire are the Dee, the Don, the Ythan, the Ugie, and the Deveron. These rivers are of great value, from the immense quantity and fineness of the salmon they produce; but are too rapid to admit of navigation to any great extent. The river Ythan deserves particular mention on account of the pearl fishery, formerly carried on in it with great success. On the Don are the ruins of Kildrummy Castle, an ancient seat of the Earls of Mar. The Dee runs through the vale of Strathdee, surrounded by lofty mountains At the top of the vale of Braemar, a short way above Mar Lodge, is the noted waterfall called the Linn of Dee. In the valley of Glenmuick there is likewise another picturesque cascade, and a little below, on the southern banks of the Dee, most romantically situated, are Pannanich Wells, much frequented in summer. On the sea shore are several remarkable caves, curious pectorations in the rocks, and echoes which reverberate sounds with wonderful distinctness. On the coast, to the south of Peterhead, is a remarkable natural feature, called the Bullers of Buchan. It is a large oval cavity, in depth about one hundred feet, formed by the steep rocks. A natural arch opens into the sea at the eastern end, into which boats are sometimes drawn and dashed to pieces. The mountains of greatest altitude and importance in Aberdeenshire are—Ben Macdhui, 4,296 feet; Braeriach, 4,248; Cairntoul, 4,241; Cairngorm, 4,090; Ben-a-Bourd, 3,924; Ben Avon, 3,843; Lochnagar, 3,786; Morven, 2,954; Buck of Cabrach, 2,368; Tap o' Noth, 1,852; and Benachie, 1,696. There are no lochs of any size in this county.

Railways.—lines in this county belong to the Great North of Scotland system, and radiate from Aberdeen city, the southern branch running west-by-south along the Deeside to Banchory, Aboyne and Ballater next the main line, north-west to Huntly, Keith and Elgin, throwing off a branch at Dyce Junction direct north to Fraserburgh, with a line from it at Old Deer east to Peterhead, another branch from Kintore westerly to Alford; one at Inverurie north-by-east to Old Meldrum, and one at Inveramsay north-by-west to Turriff and Banff.

Commerce, Manufactures, Minerals &c.—The making of linen and sail-cloth has been successfully introduced in several parts, the other branches being the manufacture of flax, cotton & woollens, paper and envelope making, tanning, distilling, and the curing of fish and provisions. Shipbuilding, both wood and iron, is carried on at Aberdeen, Peterhead, and Fraserburgh. The sea coast abounds in fish of great variety and richness, and the river and sea fishing, together, form a great source of wealth to the inhabitants. The herring fishery is prosecuted on a very extensive scale at Peterhead and Fraserburgh, the harbours of these places during the fishing season being crowded with boats, which has the effect of considerably augmenting the population; of recent years the herring fishery has also been largely pursued at Aberdeen. The fishery industry employs at the three principal ports of Aberdeen, Peterhead and Fraserburgh, of 1st, 2nd and 3rd class boats; 511, equal 6,240 tons; 215, equal 7,101 tons and 572, equal 6,860 tons, and respectively 1,632, 2,079 and 1,500 men and boys. Peterhead is also engaged in whale and seal fishing, the former being carried on in summer off the north-east of Greenland and in Davis Straits. Granite—green, blue, and red—is a valuable and extensive production of this county, and presents an article of considerable traffic, many thousand tons being conveyed to London and other distant parts, for paving and building purposes, and for monuments, tombs, statues &c.; it is chiefly found in the neighbourhoods of Aberdeen, Peterhead, New Pitsligo, and Monymusk. Slate is also quarried from the Foudland Hills, Insch. Other minerals are found in different parts of Aberdeenshire, and are eminently worthy of notice. In the parish of Old Machar was discovered a valuable mine of manganese; Leslie produces amianthus, made by the peasants into snuff boxes and ornaments; plumbago has been found on the banks of the Deveron; and near Peterhead, onyx pebbles are to be met with. The largest rock crystal ever found in Scotland was discovered upon the estate of Invercauld in this county; its size was nearly that of a child's body at the age of four years. On the same estate have also been obtained amethysts and aqua-marines, equal in colour and hardness to those so eagerly sought after in the East. Topazes of great value, provincially called Cairngorm stones, are also to be met with in Aberdeenshire. Talc, mica, asbestos, and amianthus, commonly called mountain cork, and mountain leather, are found in several of the hills. At Craig, in the district of Strathbogie, there is a fine flaxen asbestos, both green and white. A great proportion of the landholders reside on their estates, and planting, the introduction of superior breeds of cattle, and better modes of agriculture, have for some time engaged attention.

Divisions, Representation &c.—This county contains eighty-five parishes and three royal burghs—Aberdeen, Kintore, and Inverurie. The contributory boroughs (or those which, in conjunction with others, are represented in Parliament) belonging to this county are Inverurie, Kintore and Peterhead. The city of Aberdeen returns two members to Parliament and the county also sends two members, one respectively for the East and Western divisions. The Lord Lieutenant is the Earl of Aberdeen P.C. The parliamentary constituency of the Eastern Division of the county for 1894-5 was 12,157, that of the Western Division being 10,208. The valuation of the county (exclusive of railways) was, in 1894-5, £835,631, and the valuation of railways, &c. £55,663.

ABERDEEN,

WITH THE PARISH OF OLD MACHAR AND THE VILLAGES OF WOODSIDE AND CULTS.

ABERDEEN, the capital of the county to which it gives name, is the chief seaport in the north of Scotland, and the fourth Scottish town in population, industry and wealth. It is 117 miles N.E. from Edinburgh and 542 from London; and by means of its rail communication it possesses easy access to any part of the United Kingdom. Regular communication is maintained with London, Edinburgh, Liverpool, Newcastle, Hull, Glasgow, the Moray Firth, and the Orkneys and the Shetlands, by steam packets, a species of conveyance which has done more to lay open the north-east shore of Scotland to improvements from the south than any other means. In addition to the above, there exists the means of rapid transit by the Caledonian railway and other lines to all parts south of Aberdeen; and access is given to the north by the Great North of Scotland and the Highland railways, to Wick and Thurso, and the Dingwall and Skye railway to Strome Ferry, in Ross-shire. The Deeside line to Banchory was opened in 1853, and is now extended to Ballater, coaches running in connection with the trains past the Royal residences of Abergeldie and Balmoral to Braemar. Of other conveyances the Directory furnishes full information. Aberdeen is of great antiquity, and is supposed to have been known to the Romans by the name of "Devanha." It is probably among the earliest of the burghs in Scotland found entitled to any royal marks of distinction. As far back as 1153 it seems to have been known to the Normans, and in Macpherson's treatise on commerce it is observed that in the year 1179, Estyn, one of the joint kings of that country, landed and pillaged the town in the course of a piratical cruise along the British coast. In early times Aberdeen was frequently visited by royalty; and it appears that King William, surnamed the Lion, had an occasional residence here, which was situate at the lower side of the town, near the east end of what is called the Green, and was dignified by the title of palace. This edifice was afterwards bestowed on the monks of the Holy Trinity, who were about that time introduced into Scotland. The first charter that was obtained by Aberdeen is supposed to have originated about the year 1179, and was granted by King William. It confirmed to the burgesses the power of enjoying their trade of merchandise as freely, quietly, fully and honourably as their ancestors did in the time of David, his grandfather; this charter was dated at Perth, and is still preserved in the city archives: King William afterwards granted two other charters; both of these, which were dated at Aberdeen, are still in a good state of preservation, and have the great seal of Scotland, in green wax, appended to each. The city received many subsequent royal charters. The great charter was granted by Charles I. and is dated at Oatlands, 1638; all previous charters are by it confirmed. This charter was subsequently ratified by Parliament. The burgh records are the oldest of any Scottish burgh; they begin in 1398, and are complete to the present time, with only a short break from 1413 to 1433.

The burghal constitution of Aberdeen has undergone various alterations since its first establishment. The original magistracy consisted of an alderman, four bailies and a common council, chosen by the Merchant Guild; subsequently this arrangement gave way before the gradual and perfect introduction of a self-electing system. From the year 1817 until 1825 the city revenues were gathered by and dispensed under the control of trustees. The credit of the burgh may now be considered as good as that of any in the kingdom. The council now consists of a lord provost, six bailies, a dean of guild, a treasurer, a master of shore works, a master of kirk and bridge works, a master of mortification, a master of Guild Brethren Hospital and nineteen councillors. By the "Aberdeen Municipal Extension Act, 1871," the whole powers and authorities of the former Commissioners of Police were transferred to the Town Council, and the business of the Police department is managed by separate committees. By the same Act the undertaking of the former Gas Light Company was also transferred to the Town Council. The boundaries of the municipality were largely extended in 1883 and legislative sanction given to a large scheme of civic improvements, including the formation of an access to the Rosemount suburb. In 1891 a further "Aberdeen Municipal Extension Act" was passed, by which the boundaries were greatly enlarged, the adjoining burghs of Woodside and Old Aberdeen, and the fishing village of Torry on the other side of the Dee being now included within the municipal area. The circuit court of justiciary for the counties of Aberdeen, Banff and Kincardine is held in Aberdeen. A sheriff's court is held every Wednesday and Friday; and the small debt court on Thursday, during the legal sessions. The city returns two members to Parliament, one for the Northern and the other for the Southern Division. The parliamentary constituency for 1895 was—Northern Division, 9,318; Southern Division, 9,731. Aberdeen confers the title of earl on a branch of the noble family of Gordon, which was distinguished for its active loyalty to the crown in the 17th century.

The city was burned by Edward III. in 1336, but it was soon rebuilt and extended, and called New Aberdeen. In 1497 a blockhouse was built at the harbour mouth, as a protection against the English. During the religious struggles in the 17th century between the Royalists and Covenanters, the city was plundered by both parties. In 1715 Earl Marischal proclaimed the Pretender at Aberdeen, and in 1745 the Duke of Cumberland resided a short time in the city. Her present Majesty Queen Victoria has visited Aberdeen on more than one occasion, and owing to her residence at Balmoral, in the Deeside Highlands (50 miles distant), many of the inhabitants have benefited by her patronage.

Aberdeen is pleasantly seated upon an eminence rising gradually from the sea, and is an elegant and well-built town, being called "The Granite City," on account of its native light-grey granite being the material chiefly employed in building, the modern town having been all built within the last 60 years; the streets being admirably paved with granite, well lighted with gas, and the city plentifully supplied with water from the Dee at Cairnton, about 21 miles above the city; the streets are spacious and uniform, and there are many fine public buildings. Union street, running to the west, is particularly handsome, and about the middle of this fine street a granite bridge, designed by Telford, of one arch of 150 feet span, is thrown across a ravine through which runs a brook called the Denburn, which is now arched over, and the Great North of Scotland railway runs over it for a short distance. A very important city improvement was effected in 1892, in Union terrace, by the construction of an arched promenade with granite balustrade, facing the Terrace Gardens. The Joint Railway station (for the Great North of Scotland, Caledonian and Deeside railways), is a large building in Guild street, with a segmental arched iron and glass roof; it was designed by Mr. Smith, the city architect. Besides Union street there are three other fine streets, namely, King street, Market street and George street, and for some time past the city has been extending in every direction, particularly to the west and north-west. In Castle street stands a statue of George, 5th and last Duke of Gordon, executed in granite, and representing him in a martial cloak, with head uncovered, one foot placed upon a cannon, and both hands resting on a sword. At the corner of Union terrace, near Union Street bridge, is a bronze statue of H.R.H. Prince Consort, by Marochetti, placed on a pedestal of polished Peterhead granite. Further along Union terrace, and in an angle formed by its junction with the Rosemount viaduct, stands a colossal statue of Wallace, in bronze, by W. G. Stevenson A.R.S.A.; this is 16 feet in height, and was erected by means of a bequest (£3,000) left by Mr. John Steell, of Edinburgh, and unveiled on the 29th of June, 1888, by the Marquess of Lorne, who on the occasion was presented with the freedom of the city. A bronze statue of Major-Gen. Charles G. Gordon C.B. ("The Hero of Khartoum"), killed 1885, executed by the late T. Stuart Burnett A.R.S.A. and cast in Sir John Steell's foundry, Edinburgh, stands in the square in Schoolhill, in front of Robert Gordon's College; this monument, which was subscribed for principally by members of the clan Gordon, stands 9 feet 6 inches in height, and is placed on a granite pedestal 9 feet high; it was unveiled by the Marquess of Huntly, as head of the clan, on the 16th June, 1888. A fine bronze statue of H.M. the Queen, on a Peterhead and Aberdeen granite pedestal, by Mr. C. B. Birch A.R.A. stands in Union street, immediately opposite Market street, on the site of a former marble statue, which was executed by the late Alexander Brodie, of Aberdeen; it getting impaired by the weather, was removed to the corridor of the Town House. In the TownHouse also is a marble statue of Provost Jas. Blaikie, by Sir John Steell; also a bust of John Phillip, the painter (an Aberdonian), by his friend and fellow townsman, the late William Brodie R.S.A. A fine bronze statue of Robert Burns, subscribed for publicly, and executed by H. Bainsmith, sculptor, London, stands in the centre of Union terrace, not far distant from the Wallace statue.

The Municipal and County Buildings and Court House, in Castle street and Union street, which form a magnificent structure, comprise all the offices required for municipal purposes, also a noble hall and Court House; the entrance to the municipal portion is by the door in the base of the tower facing Union buildings. The Council Chamber possesses a fine oak roof with the armorial bearings of eminent Aberdonians; on the walls are several valuable paintings, including one of Prince Albert, by John Phillip, portraits of ex-Provosts, by Pickersgill R.A. and Sir Geo. Reid P.R.S.A. and other works of art. The Committee room is larger in proportion to its use than the Council Chamber; above the mantel piece is a mirror in a panel of carved oak, with the arms of the town at the top, which stood in the old Council Chamber. The Provost's room is commodious, looking into Broad street. The Town Clerk's room, as also that of his assistants, contain a number of old trophies of the city, not altogether devoid of interest. There are to be seen in the building an ancient coat of mail, said to have been worn by Robert Davidson, Provost of the city, at the battle of Harlaw; also the axe of the machine known as "The Maiden," used towards the close of the 16th century for the decapitation of criminals. The Court House is situated in the centre of the north-east portion of the building, and is thus removed from the noise of street traffic; the public entrance is by the doorway in the centre of the building in Castle street; the entrance hall is very lofty, and has a groined freestone roof and elaborately carved gorbal terminations. The staircase leads by an easy flight to the main corridor, or Court Hall, and then divides into two side flights which lead up to the joint Town and County Hall, which is in the centre of the building facing Castle street; this hall is of large size, and is frequently used for fashionable assemblies, art exhibitions and the like. On the walls are several portraits, including those of Queen Victoria, Queen Anne, the Premier Earl of Aberdeen, and George, last Duke of Gordon. At its east end is the ordinary County Hall (for the meeting of the County Council), almost identical in size and position with the Council Chamber, and decorated in a novel style from a design by Mr. Clyne, a local architect. The Court-room is on the east side of the main corridor, which is connected with the first landing; this room is 51 feet in length by 39 feet in breadth, and 33 feet in height, with at the west end a small gallery. There are public seats for 300. A passage to the right leads to the corridor of the eastward entrance to the building, immediately under the old tolbooth tower, built during the first quarter of the 17th century. The Town Council purchased the old prison in Lodge walk, immediately adjoining the present buildings, on a site of which new Police offices (including Court and Barrack accommodation) were erected from plans of Mr. John Rust, city architect, at a cost of £15,000. The Advocates' Hall is in Broad street, in proximity to and connected with the Court House Buildings. The Society of Advocates (as the local legal practitioners are called) was elected into a corporate body in 1774, and had their privileges confirmed in more ample terms in 1799 and in 1862. A library, principally on law subjects, was established in 1786; it contains over 10,000 volumes. The number of members belonging to this institution is about 120.

The Free Press Building is on the north side of the street near the Municipal Buildings, the front looking south. The handsome front is designed after the classical Renaissance style, and the accessories are richly emphasised in moulded and carved work, executed in tinted grey granite. The architects were Messrs. Ellis and Wilson, of Aberdeen. The Commercial Bank, on the same side of Union street, is noticeable for its novelty in design, being of a late domestic type of Pointed architecture, showing mullioned windows and heads filled in with flowing tracery, the crowning feature consisting of a steeply pointed stepped gable and pinnacles; the masonry of the front is of warm pink tinted Corrennie granite, the dressings being in light granite. The architect was Mr. Sydney Mitchell, of Edinburgh. The Post Office, at the foot of Market street, was erected in 1876 in place of the old one erected in 1845; it is a building of white Kemnay granite, and consists of a basement, partly underground, and two storeys above the street level. The two principal elevations, facing Market street and Trinity quay, are designed in the Renaissance style. The architect for the building was Mr. R. Matheson.

The Music Hall Buildings, Union street, the property of the Aberdeen Music Hall Company Limited, formerly constituted the County Buildings, and is decorated with a portico of six columns of the Ionic order, thirty feet in height; the inner vestibule, which is 60 feet in length and 20 feet in breadth, is divided into three compartments by fluted Ionic columns, with ornamented capitals and corresponding pilasters, with a domed ceiling. There is a ball room, and rooms known as the Square Room and Round Room are generally used for meetings and lectures. Beyond these rooms is a capacious Music Hall, opened 14th September, 1859; the Hall is furnished with an admirable organ, is well decorated, and is capable of seating about 3,000 people.

The Corn Exchange, in Hadden street, erected in 1854, is the property of a joint-stock company; the cost of erection was about £1,000. Being chiefly used as a public news room, it is furnished with the leading newspapers and magazines of the kingdom, the charge of admission being only a penny. The Masonic Hall is in Exchange street, the foundation stone being laid on the 27th of Sept. 1871; the building contains on the ground floor three shops, the remainder being used exclusively by the Masonic Lodges in Aberdeen (of which there are ten), and embraces a hall 50 feet by 32 feet, and 20 feet high with a gallery at one end. The building was designed by Mr. James Matthews; the cost was £2,500. The Market Cross, near the eastern extremity of Castle street, is of hexagonal form, with a pillar rising from the centre; in a cornice around the upper part of the structure are twelve compartments for figures, cut in relief; ten of these are portraits of Scotch monarchs, the last of the series being James VII. in whose time (1686) the edifice was completed; this fine erection stood originally at the west end of the square in the centre of a raised pavement called the Plainstanes, but was removed in 1842 to its present position. The Market House, known as the New Market, stands in Market street, and is one of the largest buildings of its kind in the kingdom erected by a joint-stock company, and opened in 1842, but it was destroyed by fire in 1882, and since re-erected. It contains two floors and a continuous gallery all round the building. In the west end of the market is a fountain of polished Peterhead granite. The Theatre is situated in Guild street, adjoining the Imperial Hotel, and is seated for 1,670 persons, with a stage and all its appliances of modern description. St. Katharine's Hall, Shiprow, has seats for 800 persons, and contains other rooms, a refreshment bar and dining rooms, with billiards and chess. The Barracks, on Castle hill, are fitted up for 600 men, but they are capable of containing double this number, Aberdeen being the depot of the Gordon Highlanders Regimental district (No. 75), to which are attached the local militia and volunteers; there is an excellent hospital for the depot on an adjoining eminence.

The port of Aberdeen is admirably adapted for commercial intercourse with the northern parts of Europe, and it also participates in a good share of the trade with America; it was opened to the East Indian trade and appointed a port for warehousing tobacco in 1839. The limits of the port were defined and legal quays appointed in 1850. Early in the 17th century a number of ships of small tonnage belonged to the port, and a considerable import and export trade was carried on with various parts of the continent, as well as coast trading. The shipping appears to have considerably decayed during the civil wars and visitations of the plague, and no revival took place for many years. In 1656 there were only 9 vessels of the aggregate tonnage of 440. In 1692 all the shipping was two galliots of 30 tons each. In 1788 the number of ships registered was 169, and the aggregate tonnage, 11,820; in 1872, 236 vessels; tonnage, 101,188; in 1881, 206; tonnage, 109,471. The total number of vessels entered and cleared for British ports in the year 1881 was 3,020; tonnage, 705,660. Of these 1,881 were steamers, with a tonnage of 511,678; 1,139 sailing vessels, with a tonnage of 193,982. From foreign ports there entered 267 vessels; tonnage, 77,325. Of these 152 were foreign vessels, with a tonnage of 38,996; 114 were British vessels, with a tonnage of 38,329. Thirty of the total foreign entries were steamers, with a tonnage of 12,016; 237 were sailing vessels, with a tonnage of 65,309. There sailed for foreign ports during the year 84 vessels; tonnage, 12,291. In 1894 the number of British vessels entering the port was 2,924, with a tonnage of 795,261, and foreign ships 220, 57,813 tons; the clearances were—British, 2,885, with 793854 tons, and foreign 217, 53,777 tons; most of these were steam ships, of which 143 are registered as belonging to the port, with a tonnage of 61,313, and of these 52 with a tonnage of 1,665 are also registered under the "Sea Fisheries Act, 1868;" 47 sailing vessels and 47,406 tons belong to the port, 16 of these being over 1,200 tons each. The fame of the "clipper bow" so justly due to the ship builders here, especially to the late Mr. William Hall, who successfully established his claim to the invention, has spread the fame of Aberdeen ship building to all quarters of the world. In 1883 there were launched 16 vessels, with a total tonnage of 11,628; while there were seven vessels on hand, with a gross tonnage of 8,080. In 1891 there were launched 12 vessels with a gross tonnage of 6,724; about the usual number of vessels was on hand. The number of fishing boats registered in 1894 as employed was 422, requiring 2,401 men and boys to work them. The harbour revenue for the year ending 30th September, 1891, was £76,580, of which £8,964 was derived from salmon fishings, and in 1894 was £74,531, of which £5,024 was derived from the salmon fishings. The salmon fishings on the Dee and Don are, as they have for a long time been, an important branch of industry. The customs receipts for the year 1894 amounted to £83,044; value of imports, £905,289. Since the year 1810, when the principal improvement in the harbour commenced, there have been expended upon it vast sums. A pier was constructed to the north of the harbour entrance (formed by the river Dee joining the sea), and now extends 2,500 feet seaward. A wet dock of 29 acres, and with 6,000 feet of quays, was completed in 1848, and called Victoria Dock, in honour of Her Majesty's visit to the city in that year. The diversion of the river and the south breakwater were later undertakings. The first turf cut in the diversion of the river was by Lord Provost Leslie, on the 22nd of December, 1869. The new course is about a mile in length, and forms a large arc of a circle, from the suspension bridge to about opposite Marischal street, and from that point to Torry, where it joins the harbour entrance. The bottom of the new channel is 170 feet wide. The breakwater, the entire length of which is 1,050 feet, is carried out to a depth of water of 50 feet at high tide. Two quays have since been constructed, named respectively after two provosts—Mr. George Jamieson and Mr. James Matthews; and a spacious graving dock was opened in June, 1885, in what was the old bed of the river Dee, now known as the Albert basin; the total length of the dock being 524 feet, and it is 48 feet wide at the floor, the width gradually widening till it reaches 74 feet at the cope; the depth on the sill is 20 feet; this dock is furnished with hydraulic machinery, and its total cost was about £50,000. Within the past few years Aberdeen has become a great centre for trawling. At present close on 100 steam vessels prosecute the industry from the port. The trawling vessels discharge their cargoes in the Albert basin, where extensive quay space has been provided, and an excellently appointed fish market erected, at a cost of several thousand pounds. Another feature in the trade of the port is the importation of foreign cattle, for which the Harbour Commissioners have provided lairage accommodation and sale ring. A handsome harbour office, surmounted by a clock tower, for the harbour officials, engineers &c. was erected about the same time on Regent quay, from a design by Messrs. Matthews and Mackenzie, architects, Aberdeen.

Aberdeen has been the seat of manufactures from a very early period. We find Provost Alexander Jaffray, with his co-adjutors, establishing a woollen manufactory in 1636, in the correction wynd, under a patent of Charles I. for the manufacture of "broad cloth, kerseys, serges and other coarse cloths." The manufacture of these and of stockings had been cultivated so successfully and extensively for some time, that Sir Patrick Drummond conservator of Holland, remarked that "Scotland was more obliged to the town of Aberdeen for returns of money on its export trade than all other towns in Scotland." Messrs. Alexander Hadden and Sons have three establishments—in the Green, at Garlogie Mills and at Gordon's Mills; their chief products are carpets, tweeds, hosiery, worsted and woollen yarns. In addition to the material manufactured on the premises, they give employment to a number of women over the country by giving out worsted to be knitted into hose. Messrs. J. & J. Crombie Limited, of Grandholm Mills, are also large manufacturers. The manufacture of winceys seems to have originated with the late firm of Messrs. John Barker and Sons, of Gordon's Mills; it is now successfully carried on by many firms in Aberdeen. The demand still continues to expand, the quality of the Aberdeen fabrics being found very superior. Jute spinning is also carried on by a limited liability company. The only cotton spinning establishment now in Aberdeen is that of Banner Mill, belonging to Messrs. Robinson, Crum and Co. Limited. The manufacture of combs was introduced about the year 1830, by Messrs. Stewart and Rowell, and has been conducted on a very extensive scale since that period, first by the original firm, and latterly by Messrs. S. R. Stewart and Co. It is also carried on by the Rosemount Co. Lim. Among other firms engaged in the manufacture of preserved provisions are Messrs. John Moir and Son Limited; Marshall and Co. of Torry; J. T. Morton, Rosemount; C. Gordon and Son, Green; and W. Bruce, Prince Regent street; all manner of fish, flesh, soups, vegetables, fruits &c. are preserved in tin cases of all sizes, and every variety of preparation. Messrs. Mitchell and Mull Limited, biscuit manufacturers to the Queen, have an extensive factory here. The extensive paper works at Stoneywood, carried on by Messrs. Alex. Pirie and Sons Limited, were established nearly 100 years ago, and they are the largest manufacturers in Scotland. Messrs. C. Davidson and Son Limited manufacture very extensively wrapping and packing papers of all kinds; they have also a patent for making paper bags, and they print and lithograph wrappers and paper bags and also produce roofing and foundation felt. There is also a large paper mill at Culter, belonging to a limited liability company, and The Donside Paper Co. Limited, at Woodside. There are several large horticultural builders in Aberdeen; among the most prominent may be mentioned Messrs. J. Garvie and Sons and D. Macandrew and Co.; the former have erected hot-houses for Her Majesty at Balmoral, and are also largely engaged in the manufacturing of joinery and cabinet work. The chemical works at Sandilands, near the Links, cover several acres of ground, and were begun by Messrs. John Miller and Co. in 1848, for the purpose of working up the Gas Company's liquid products into naphtha, creosote oil, asphalte, sulphate of ammonia, &c. But several branches have been added since, the most important of which are the manufacture of artificial manures, paraffin wax, sulphuric acid, &c. The distillation of whisky is carried on extensively in Aberdeen by the representatives of John Begg, of the famed Lochnagar Distillery, and the Bon-Accord Distillery Co. Limited.

The granite trade may be said to be indigenous to Aberdeen. The greater part of the county, and portions of the adjoining districts, are composed of igneous rock of all varieties, the quarrying of which commenced about 250 years ago, but made little progress till the year 1741, when a disastrous fire occurring in Aberdeen, destroyed a large number of the wooden houses of which the town was chiefly composed. An act of the magistrates and council was then passed ordaining the outside walls of dwelling houses to be built of stone or brick. About 1764 the streets of London began to be paved with Aberdeen granite; but it was not till 1795 that larger blocks were required, and machinery began to be applied. Rubislaw Quarries then supplied stones for the Government docks; and Dancing Cairn, which began to be wrought about this time, supplied granite for the Union Bridge and the new street extension of the city. Subsequently the demand has considerably increased, as granite is used extensively in the construction of bridges, docks and other public works. The dockyards of Portsmouth and Sheerness, the docks of many ports along the east coast, including those of Newcastle, Hull and Leith, as well as London Bridge, were all formed of Aberdeen granite, and the piers of the Forth Bridge were also made of granite from the quarries belonging to Mr. John Fyfe. There are over 20 quarries in operation in the district, yielding granite of various colour and quality. The quantity of stone quarried annually is very large; one quarry alone, Rubislaw, yielding about 50,000 tons of saleable material. A considerable export trade is carried on. Swedish and other foreign granites are beginning to be largely imported for the purpose of being polished here. The trade is estimated to be increasing at the rate of about 500 tons annually. The facilities afforded by the railways in lessening the expense of carriage from the various quarries have tended to increase the demand. Granite polishing has now acquired large dimensions here; about 50 years ago the late Mr. Macdonald was the first to apply machinery to the cutting and polishing of granite. The firm of Messrs. Alexander Macdonald and Co. Limited had the honour to supply the enormous granite sarcophagus, 30 tons weight, containing the remains of His Royal Highness the Prince Consort, in the royal mausoleum at Frogmore, Windsor, besides a smaller one for her late Royal Highness the Duchess of Kent. The same firm also manufactured the massive granite sarcophagus in which the remains of Napoleon III. are entombed, and which was presented to the Empress Eugenie by Her Majesty the Queen, and a similar tomb also by Messrs. Macdonald and Co. was made to the order of the Empress Eugenie for the remains of the late Prince Imperial. Numerous other firms do considerable business. The process of all their operations is by steam machinery. Remarkable advances have been made recently in the various mechanical operations. Within recent years the use of sand for smoothing the surface of the granite, a system that has been in general use from the commencement of the industry, has been almost entirely discontinued and the use of chilled shot adopted instead. In the splitting of the large blocks also, a method of sawing has been introduced which entails a large saving in labour as well as in material. From 10,000 to 12,000 tons of granite are used annually for polishing purposes at the various works in Aberdeen, consisting not only of the native local rock, but also of granites from the West of Scotland, from Ireland, and from various parts of Germany and Sweden. The demand for polished granite increases every year, and orders for architectural, general and monumental purposes are sent from all parts of the world to the Granite City.

There are three joint stock companies for the manufacture and sale of agricultural materials—the Commercial, the Lime, and the Northern Agricultural—each of them having steam mills for pulverising bones and carrying on the manufacture of oilcake, linseed oil, rape oil &c. Messrs. Ben Reid and Co. have a large establishment for the manufacture of agricultural implements. Messrs. Harper and Co. also carry on an extensive business in the manufacture of agricultural implements and machinery and wire weaving. There are also brick and tile manufacturing companies, several soap and candle manufactories, coach builders, and many other large establishments, of which our space prevents us from giving details, located here. The iron and metal works employ a large number of skilled workmen. There are several engineering establishments and foundries with other works connected with shipping, sail and rope works, boiler making &c. Apart from the import of foreign timber, there is a large business carried on in home grown wood from the upper districts of Aberdeenshire. Deeside fir has been a staple article in Aberdeen from time immemorial.

There are several first-class hotels in the city, among which may be mentioned the Imperial, adjacent to the railway station, a building in the Venetian-Gothic style, internally fitted with all modern requirements. The Palace Hotel, adjoining Union bridge, is most centrally and conveniently situated, and from its elevated and open position commands a fine view of Union street, and is adjoining the railway station. The Douglas, in Market street, and Forsyth's, in Union street, are also first-class hotels, the latter a large temperance hotel. A large and handsome first-class hotel (The Grand) is in Union terrace, adjoining Union bridge, and the railway station. There are besides many excellent inns, which afford accommodation to various grades of travellers.

The earliest banking company formed in Aberdeen was started in 1752. It was begun on a scale which must now be regarded as limited, even for the comparatively moderate requirements of that period, and it was not long ere the scheme was relinquished. In 1776 the "Aberdeen Banking Company" was originated, and long enjoyed almost a monopoly of the banking business of the north. About 30 years ago it was merged in the "Union Bank of Scotland," sinking its individual title. It still maintains a good connection, and continues to do considerable business, both in the town and over the northern district. Besides representatives of most of the Edinburgh and Glasgow banks, there are in Aberdeen two thriving native banks—the Town and County Bank Limited, established in 1825, having 62 branches, and the North of Scotland Bank Limited, established in 1836, with 67 branches. By each of these two establishments (which are both incorporated by Act of Parliament) an extensive business is carried on at their head and branch offices in the city, and through their numerous agencies in the principal towns and villages in the northern counties, as well as in several counties south of Aberdeen. The banking houses in Aberdeen are, on the whole, elegant structures. That of the Town and County Bank occupies an excellent position in the angle formed by the junction of St. Nicholas street with the line of Union street. The North of Scotland Bank occupies a similar position in the corner where the western side of King street joins Castle street. The Aberdeen Savings Bank was established in 1815, and is well patronised by the working class; its funds now amount to £650,000. Aberdeen is the head station of two prosperous insurance companies, namely, the Northern, established in 1836, and the Scottish Employers' Liability and Accident. The Northern Assurance Company, with an annual revenue of more than £1,000,000, has offices, erected in 1885 at a cost of £20,000, in Union street, one of the most prominent sites in the city, and are built entirely of light grey granite in the Italian Renaissance style. The floors are fire-proof, the interior of the public office being largely decorated with polished granite, in the form of columns, pilasters and wall panels. A striking feature is the largeness of the blocks used in the construction of the building, there being thirty columns, each 18 feet high and 2 wide, the effect of which is to give the building a massive and dignified appearance. The architects were Messrs. Matthews and Mackenzie, of Aberdeen.

There are seven incorporated trades:—1, the Hammermen, incorporated September, 1519; 2, the Bakers, recognised as a company as early as the year 1398; 3, the Wrights and Coopers, who obtained their original seal of cause on the 5th of August, 1527; 4, the Tailors, who were recognised in a corporate capacity about the year 1511; 5, the Shoemakers, acknowledged as a corporate body in the years 1484 and 1520; 6, the Weavers, the deacons of this corporation were approved by the council and sworn into office in the year 1449; and 7, the Fleshers or Butchers; these originally dealt in fish as well as flesh, but were prohibited in the year 1518 from practising more trades than one; they received a seal of cause in 1534. The several incorporations hold their meetings in Trinity Hall, in Union street, at the south-east corner of Union bridge, a building of rather florid architecture; erected in 1846-7, from designs by the late Mr. John Smith, architect. The affairs of each corporation are under the direction of a deacon and box-master, who are chosen annually, a convener, master of hospital, and convener court governing the joint affairs of the seven corporations. The Rev. Dr. Wm. Guild, one of the towns ministers, and afterwards principal of King's College, founded in 1632 a Trade's Hospital for the benefit of indigent brethren, assigning to the incorporation for that purpose the monastery and other property that formerly belonged to the monks of the Holy Trinity. Among several clubs formed in this city, the "Royal Northern Club" and the "University Club" are the principal; the Royal Northern, which is the county club of the district, has been enlarged. The Public Libraries Acts were adopted in April, 1884. The result of that has been the institution of a library which, after carrying on its work in temporary premises, was in 1892 removed to a new building specially constructed for it on the Rosemount Viaduct. This erection, which is handsome in appearance and admirably planned and furnished, costing about £8,000, was opened July 12th, 1892; the reading room is supplied with a large and varied stock of newspapers and magazines; the lending department has about 23,000 volumes, and last year circulated over 260,000. The Reference Department contains 24,000 volumes. A Museum and Art Gallery, raised by public subscription, was a few years ago erected in Schoolhill, on the grounds in front of Robert Gordon's College; it is a building of the Italian Renaissance order, and being largely constructed of light-red and dark-brown granite, presents a striking appearance. It was designed by Messrs. Matthews and Mackenzie, architects, as was also an adjoining and symmetrical building, intended for an Art School, erected at a cost of £5,000, by the late Councillor John Gray, and gifted by him to the town. Both buildings are united by a noble archway. A nucleus for the Art Gallery has been formed by the bequest of a magnificent collection by the late Mr. Alexander Macdonald, of Kepplestone. The various institutions of a charitable, social, educational and humane character are numerous and well supported. A list of them will be found under the head "Public Buildings &c." Three daily morning newspapers, two daily evening, two weekly, two weekly satirical papers, and a bi-weekly advertiser are issued from the Aberdeen press—their titles and other particulars are given in their place. The first almanac ever printed in Scotland was published in Aberdeen, in 1623, by Edward Raban, the year after setting up the first printing press in the North. It was entitled "A New Prognostication for the Year of our Lord God, 1623, being the third after Leape Year, serving most fitlie for the Kingdom of Scotland, and all the partes of North Britain &c." The almanac seems for a long time to have been looked upon as a property of the Aberdeen printers, for a successor of Raban, named John Forbes, issued one entitled "A New Prognosticator calculated for North Britain." He sold fifty thousand copies annually, and the price of each was only a plack, or the third part of a penny sterling. His success induced the publication of pirated editions at Edinburgh, which were suppressed by the Court of Session, and for many years the town enjoyed a complete monopoly in the sale of almanacs.

Prominent among the ecclesiastical edifices of the city are the East and West churches. These form one building, and occupy the site of the ancient parish church of St. Nicholas, which was built progressively probably between the 11th and 13th centuries. The present West church occupies the site of the old nave, and was erected in 1755, from a design by the celebrated architect Gibbs, a native of Aberdeen; it is Roman in style, with nave and aisles divided by massive square piers and semi-circular arches, and has a finely proportioned interior, containing sittings for about 1,450. There are several monuments, particularly one in marble to Mrs. Allardyce, of Dunottar, and a splendid specimen of the skill of the sculptor Bacon. The large west window has been filled in with stained glass. The old East church, which it was deemed necessary to take down in 1835, was built in 1447, partly on the site of the chancel, and formed the choir of the church; the east end was semi-octagonal, and under it was St. Mary's chapel, which still remains. The present East church was erected in 1836, from a design by the late Mr. Archibald Simpson, in the Decorated Gothic style, of finely dressed granite; the old transept, known as Drum's and Collison's aisles, was at the same time opened up southwards, and formed a vestibule for the East and West churches; over this transept at its intersection with the churches there was a short tower, with a wooden steeple, which on the 9th October, 1874, was destroyed by fire, along with the interior of the East church and Drum's and Collison's aisles. The East church has since been restored, and contains sittings for about 1,350 people. A new tower with spire of granite, rising to the height of 195 feet, has also been erected, from a design by Mr. W. Smith, architect, Aberdeen, and a fine peal of 38 bells has been introduced at a cost of about £4,000. The old Norman arches and piers under the tower were taken down and rebuilt in their original form with the old stones. St. Clement's, or Footdee church has a tower 45 feet high, with a clock presented by the magistrates. Greyfriars, or College church, which stands on the east of Broad street, near Marischal College, said to have been erected by Bishop Dunbar for the Grey Friars about the beginning of the 16th century, is now the only church in the town where the Roman Catholic worship was performed previous to the Reformation. In view of the extension of Marischal College it also will have to be demolished. The South church, in Belmont street, for 1,450 persons, is in the Gothic style, and is distinguished by a square tower, which forms a striking object. The North church, in King street, is an edifice in the Grecian style, executed in finely dressed granite, from a design by the late Mr. John Smith, architect, and contains sittings for about 1,550.

Old Machar church, otherwise St. Machar cathedral, is at the northern extremity of Old Aberdeen, for which see opposite page.

St. Paul's chapel was erected in 1722, for such Episcopalians as refused to submit to the jurisdiction of the Scotch bishops, but this building was superseded in 1865 by the present church. The other English Episcopalian chapel is St. James's, a small but striking building in red Corrennie granite, at the corner of Union street and Holburn street. St. Andrew's, or Scotch Episcopalian chapel, is an edifice built in 1813 on a site on the east side of King street; the gable or end fronting the street presents a centre and an aisle, the corners of which are ornamented with lofty octagonal turrets, those on each side of the entrance being upwards of 80 feet in height. The entrance gate is embellished with clustered columns and crocketed mouldings, and the windows are finished with tracery in a corresponding style; the interior presents a simple style of Gothic, corresponding with the entrance. At the east end is a large and fine-toned organ, and near the front entrance is a statue of the late Bishop Skinner, by Flaxman. The building has been enlarged and much improved, a chancel having been added in 1880, from a design by the late Mr. G. E. Street R.A.; and in 1885 an elegant reredos was placed in the church, to the memory of the late Bishop Suther, for many years its incumbent. St. John's church, in St. John's place, for Scotch Episcopalians, with a small tower at the south end, will contain about 300 persons; the interior has undergone much alteration and repair. Another Scotch Episcopalian chapel is St. Mary's, Carden place, the most Anglican and Ritualistic of all in design and construction. St. Margaret's Episcopal church, Gallowgate, was erected in 1870, and a chapel added at the west end in 1889. The Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Mary of the Assumption, in the Early Pointed Gothic style, in Huntly street, opened Dec. 1860, consists of a nave and aisles, north and south porches, tower and spire, reaching to a height of 200 feet, in which there is a peal of 9 bells, the largest weighing 35 cwt. The sanctuary, at the east end, forms a continuation of the nave. On each side of the sanctuary are vestries; and in advance of the high altar, which is raised six steps, are two side altars. The church will comfortably seat 1,500 persons. The whole of the windows are filled with fine painted glass. The principal entrance is from Huntly street, and above this entrance is the large west window, 30 feet high by 15 in width, with tracery and sculptured figures in the centre. On the north side is the priests' house, and on the south a convent, the schools running backwards from the convent along the wall of the south aisle—all having access by a doorway to the church—the whole of which (the arcade excepted) is built of Aberdeen granite. The cost of erection was about £20,000, and the bells £1,300 in addition; the architect was Mr. Alexander Ellis. There is in connection with the church a schoolhouse, in Constitution street, erected in 1832, and two others, built in 1881. In addition to these places of worship, there are others belonging to various denominations, for the names and situations of which we must refer our readers to a list given at a subsequent page, where will be found also the names of the officiating ministers.

The two colleges, which were united by Act of Parliament in 1860, and now form the University of Aberdeen, are very ancient seminaries of learning—King's College in Old Aberdeen, and Marischal College in Broad street. The former was first instituted in the year 1494, by William Elphinstone, Bishop of Aberdeen, under the authority of a Bull of Pope Alexander VI. and the original foundation charter is still extant in the charter chest of the College. The students wear a scarlet cloth gown, but do not reside within the college buildings, which form a quadrangular court, originally erected in 1500, and have been almost totally reconstructed of late years, spacious class rooms being erected, along with a large library, in which is a very valuable collection of books. The old chapel, restored internally at a cost of about £3,000, possesses an antique screen of woodwork; the tomb of Bishop Elphinstone is in the middle of the building, near the east end. Beautiful stained windows have been inserted in memory of Principal Campbell, Professor Macpherson and Professor Mearns; the large west window was filled with a rich design in stained glass by Mr. John Webster, late M.P. for the city. At the north-west corner is a lofty square tower, strengthened by buttresses and covered with a flat roof, having on the top a parapet, over which springs from each of its corners a slip of stonework highly ornamented; these slips meet at the top and form four open arches, in imitation of an imperial crown. On the top of this is a stone lantern, surmounted with another imperial crown of stonework, with a globe and cross; the tower formerly contained a peal of 13 bells. The Senatus room is ornamented with portraits of Bishops Elphinstone, Dunbar &c. Marischal College, in Broad street, prior to 1860 exercising separate University rights, but now incorporated in the University of Aberdeen, was founded and endowed by George Keith, Earl Marischal of Scotland, in 1593, by a charter ratified by Act of Parliament. The college buildings stand on the site of a Franciscan convent, and were rebuilt in 1836-41, at a cost of £21,240. Of this sum Government granted £15,000, and the balance was raised by public subscription. The college is a spacious, elegant and convenient building, in the Gothic style, from a design by the late Mr. Archibald Simpson, architect. The classes in Medicine and Law meet in the Marischal College buildings. Of recent years considerable additions have been made to the laboratory accommodation in the medical departments, and a still larger scheme of extension is at present (1895-6) being carried out at an estimated cost of £100,000. By the munificence of the late Charles Mitchell esq. LL.D. Newcastle-on-Tyne, who generously gave over £20,000 for the purpose, this extension includes a large Graduation Hall, adorned with one large stained end window of heraldic design and ten side windows, a Students' Union, and the heightening of the great tower of the buildings inaugurated Oct. 1895.

The Grammar School, at the west end of the town, is in the old Scotch baronial style, and was built in 1863, at a cost of about £15,000, from plans by Mr. James Matthews, of Aberdeen; it contains a large hall, 80 feet by 40 feet, 22 class rooms, chemical and physical laboratories and science theatre. The school is of very ancient origin, the first recorded date being as far back as 1262. There are nearly 30 bursaries in connection with the school for the education of poor scholars, and in 1634 Dr. Patrick Dunn left a bequest for the better payment of the masters. Many eminent men have received their education here, among whom may be mentioned Lord Byron, 1797; Sir James M'Gregor, 1784; David Wedderburn, 1602; Thomas Reid, private secretary to James VI.; Dr. James Dunn; Dr. James Melvin and Sir Robert Hamilton.

The Free Church College, at the top of Union street, is a beautiful building in the Elizabethan style, erected in 1850, at a cost of £2,000; the staff consists of a principal, four professors in theology and a lecturer in natural science. In its hall the Aberdeen Presbytery and Synod of the Free Church hold their stated meetings. There are now a good library and fair museum attached, both owing much to the liberality of the late Mr. Thomson, of Banchory, near Aberdeen. Latterly, the library has been placed in a separate building specially designed for the purpose.

Robert Gordon's College, Schoolhill, is a spacious building, standing on land anciently possessed by the Dominican Friars, and having an extensive piece of ground in front tastefully laid out. It consists of a centre or main building and two wings: the original structure occupies the greater part of the centre, and is three storeys in height, having a small spire rising from it: the hall, on the second floor, is 30 feet by 20 feet wide and 12 feet high. This building was erected in 1739 after a design by Gibbs, and at an expense of £3,300: the remaining part of the centre and the wings was completed in 1832, from a design by the late Mr. John Smith, at a cost of about £13,000. The latter erection is in the Grecian style, presenting a chaste and elegant appearance, and the more ancient part has been altered to correspond, a colonnade now traversing the building from the old house to the projecting fronts at the ends of the wings. The sum originally bequeathed was £10,000; this was invested in land, and at the present time the annual revenue is about £4,000. The object of the charity was to maintain and educate the sons and grandsons of decayed burgesses, but by a Provisional Order, obtained in 1881, the original bequest of the founder, Robert Gordon, was set aside, the "Hospital" system abandoned, and the institution converted into day and evening schools, the application of its benefits being also widely extended.

Aberdeen Royal Infirmary has, since its foundation in 1739, undergone great extensions and improvements, though still occupying the original site on Woolmanhill—the very centre of the city. The Hospital has long enjoyed a high reputation from the eminence of its professional staff, including several of the professors connected with the University, while some 350 students are constantly in attendance. In order to keep Aberdeen Infirmary fully abreast of modern requirements, as well as to enhance the status of the institution as a medical school, Sir William Henderson, Lord Provost of the city, inaugurated a movement to celebrate the Jubilee year (1887) of Queen Victoria's reign, by the enlargement and reconstruction of the Hospital, at an outlay of £30,000, which amount was promptly raised, and the new buildings are (1896) well advanced to completion. They stand on a site containing about 2½ acres, and surrounded by open streets. The old Infirmary, now remodelled internally as the administrative block, faces the south; the new surgical ward block, for 140 patients, stretches along the west side, its large circular theatre projecting boldly beyond the main line. A tower-like building on the north contains the pathological theatre and the laundry, with an open drying ground on the top storey, under the roof. The east side is to be occupied by the new medical west block, built in 1895 for 92 patients additional. To the west of the administrative block, on a lower level, so that its roofs hardly rise above the well laid out grounds, are placed the boiler house block and the electric light building. The entire cost is calculated at not less than £70,000. Aberdeen Lunatic Asylum was founded in 1800, the patients in that year numbering 12. Since that time to the present date (1896), important additions have been made to the institution. The register of patients now stands at 309 males and 392 females—701, while the ground extends to over 50 acres. In connection with the main institution, a fine building, "Elmhill House," has been erected, for the treatment of members of the better classes able to pay special rates of board, while a Branch Asylum, with farm of 283 acres, is in full working order at Daviot, 21 miles from Aberdeen. The Asylum for the Blind, in Huntly street, opened in 1843, is supported partly by revenue from endowments and partly by legacies and public subscriptions. Work is provided for blind persons of both sexes belonging to the city of Aberdeen and the counties of Aberdeen, Banff and Kincardine. The chief industries carried on are twine spinning and basket and mattress making; from 50 to 60 blind persons are thus employed. In addition, blind children and young persons are kept in the institution, and receive education in ordinary subjects and in industrial training. The board of management, as reconstituted under the authority of the Endowment Commission, consists of persons elected by the subscribers, or nominated either by benefactors to the institution, or by certain public bodies in Aberdeen or the above mentioned counties. The Institution for the education of the Deaf and Dumb, in Belmont street, and now under Government inspection, is principally supported by voluntary contributions; the average number of pupils of both sexes is 30. The Boys' and Girls' Hospital in King street, now merged into the Aberdeen Educational Trust, was instituted in 1852; its objects are the maintenance and education of poor children of the parish of St. Nicholas. The Medical Society's Hall, King street, has a handsome front, with a portico of four Ionic columns, contains a library and museum, and a large hall for the meetings of the society; it was built in 1818, at a cost of £2,000. In the hall are some portraits, among the rest an original painting of Harvey, by Vandyke. There are also two by James Giles R.A. which are both favourable specimens of this native artist.

The weekly markets are held on Wednesday and Friday, and the feeing markets Friday before and after the 26th of May, Friday before and after 22nd November; wool markets, Thursday and Friday of first and second week in July; timber, the last Wednesday in August.

The population of Aberdeen, according to the returns for 1881, amounted to 105,054. The inhabited houses at the same date was 20,341. In 1891 the population numbered 124,943, the number of inhabited houses having increased to 24,431. The city parish (formerly St. Nicholas) was extended to the municipal area, May 16th, 1895, under provisions of the "Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894," taking over portions of the parishes of Old Machar, Nigg and Peterculter. Acreage of city parish (as extended), 6,554; gross rateable value, £625,692; population in 1891, 124,954; the parish is co-terminus with the borough.

Cults is a pleasant suburb of Aberdeen, formerly in the parish of Peterculter, but now in Aberdeen city parish, on the north bank of the Dee, on the road to Ballater, distant from Aberdeen 4 miles south-west, and is a station on the Deeside branch of the Great North of Scotland railway. In the vicinity are many handsome villas and cottages, chiefly the residences of those engaged in business in Aberdeen.

Torry, a fishing village, taken from the parish of Nigg (Kincardineshire), is included within the limits of the city parish of Aberdeen.

OLD ABERDEEN & OLD MACHAR.

OLD ABERDEEN stands about a mile to the north of the city, on an eminence on the south bank of the river Don, formerly in the parish of Old Machar, but under provisions made in the "Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894," now forms part of Aberdeen city parish. Formerly this town was the seat of the Bishop of Aberdeen, but it now derives its original importance from King's College (amalgamated with the University of Aberdeen) and the Cathedral. The charter was renewed by George I. when the power was conferred of electing its own magistrates, but by the "Aberdeen Municipal Extension Act, 1891," it was merged into the burgh of Aberdeen. The principal curiosity in the neighbourhood is the old bridge, which crosses the river Don by one Gothic pointed arch. Mr. Kennedy in his "Annals of Aberdeen," states it to have been erected in the time of Robert Bruce, by Bishop Cheyne. The see of Aberdeen appears to have been first established in 1015, at Mortlich, in Banffshire, by King Malcolm II. but was translated to Aberdeen by Nectanus, the 4th bishop, in the reign of David I. A new church was built in the 12th century, but this was superseded between 1281 and 1382, under the direction of King Robert Bruce, by a more imposing structure, in part erected by Bishop Kynynmound, who succeeded to the episcopate in 1356, but of this only the western piers of the central tower now remain: the choir has wholly disappeared, having been pillaged in 1560, and dismantled about 1650 by the Cromwellian troops, who used its materials in building fortifications, and the central tower fell in 1688, destroying the transepts, of which only portions of the north and south walls are now extant. The existing cathedral, dedicated to St. Machar, commonly known as "Old Machar church," thus consists only of the nave of seven bays, with its aisles, western towers and south porch, and was chiefly the work of Bishop Lichtoun (1424-40): the whole, with the exception of the spires, being constructed of red granite: the nave piers are cylindrical and carry pointed arches, above which is a clerestory, with small round-headed windows: the original deal roof, erected by Bishop Lindsay, in 1444, was taken off and renewed in 1866: the flat panelled ceiling below, the work of Bishop Dunbar, in 1520, is adorned with the shields of kings, nobles and ecclesiastics, and the cornice beneath it bears the names in black letter of Scottish sovereigns and bishops: the east end of the nave, now built up, is in part enclosed, and contains the organ and pulpit: the west end has a double-arched recessed entrance, and over it six tall and narrow lights with rounded heads: the square western towers are military rather than ecclesiastical in style, and have double angle buttresses, and bold machicolated battlements, from within which rises a low square stage with dwarf pinnacles, carrying the octagonal spires; these are of grey sandstone, and are relieved by two embattled bandings and numerous dormers: several of the windows are stained, and there are some interesting tombs, including, in the nave, one to Archdeacon Barbour, c. 1400, and another to Bishop Scougal, 1685; in the ruined transepts are the tombs of Bishops Lichtoun, Dunbar and Stewart; the interior of the fabric was repaired in 1722, and in 1866 was renovated on a report by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott, and since this, the present east window has been erected.

Woodside, formerly a police burgh, was also in the parish of Old Machar, but by the above mentioned Acts also merged into the city parish and into the burgh of Aberdeen, is distant from Aberdeen 2 miles, and has a station on the Great North of Scotland railway.

The parish of Old Machar, as it remains without the portion between the Dee and the Don, which has been included in the Aberdeen city parish, is now wholly on the north side of the Don. The land rises in a gentle slope from the sea, and is beautifully diversified by undulating grounds. The windings of the Don—the manufactories and the woods on its banks, interspersed with many private residences, together with the numerous admirable prospects of the sea—impart a pleasing variety to the general appearance of the parish. Great improvements in agriculture, at a very considerable expense, have been effected, which have been the means of materially enhancing the value of the land, and beautifying the neighbourhood of Aberdeen.

The old parish of Old Machar possessed an acreage of 12,143; in 1871 its population was 42,477, and in 1881 it had increased to 56,002, in 1891 to 71,579. Acreage of parish (as altered May 16th, 1895), 7,313; rateable value, £14,311; population in 1891, 1,432.

ABERDEENSHIRE.

NEW ABERDOUR parish, 8 miles north-west from Strichen railway station, 9 miles west of Fraserburgh, and 16 east of Banff, stretches along the Moray Firth for about 10 miles, the shore here being bold and precipitous, with only three places where boats can effect a landing, and the rocks have been worn by the sea into innumerable caves, one of which is 90 feet long and 22 broad. It is in Buchan poor combination and Fraserburgh small debt court. Upon a precipice overhanging the sea are the ruins of the ancient castle of Dundargue, a place of great strength and importance in feudal times, and noted for sustaining a long siege in 1336, when Henry de Beaumont, the English Earl of Buchan, was obliged to capitulate to Andrew Murray, Regent of Scotland, during the captivity of King Robert Bruce in England. The Established church, built in 1818, is a plain stone structure, remodelled internally in 1885, and has sittings for 800 persons. There is also a Free church in the village. The area of the parish is 15,508 acres. Population of New Aberdour in 1881, 642; and in 1891, 620; and of the whole parish, 1881, 2,124, and 1891, 2,019; ecclesiastical parish, 1,821.

Pennan is a small fishing village in the parish of and about three miles west from New Aberdour. Population in 1891, 157.

Auchmedden is a hamlet joining Pennan.

ABOYNE, or Charlestown of Aboyne, is a small village and parish in the district of Mar, with a station on the Dee side railway, 30 miles west-south-west from Aberdeen, 4 west from Kincardine, and 11 north-east from Ballater, on the north bank of the Dee, and in the county and small debt court district of Aberdeen. The parish is united to that of Glentana, and is watered by the river Dee and likewise by the Tana and the Allachy, which during heavy rains become impetuous streams. The Dee here is crossed by a suspension bridge, built at the sole expense of the Marquess of Huntly in 1830 (re-erected by the County Road Trustees in 1871), whose seat, Aboyne Castle, ornaments this locality; in the grounds of the castle is a remarkable stone, shaped like a coffin, with a cross cut upon it. The forest of Glentana is extensive and contains some large timber. Woodend, the seat of Sir William Cunliffe Brooks bart. is pleasantly situated in the district of Glentana. The principal landowners are Sir William Cunliffe Brooks bart. and trustees of the Marquess of Huntly. Loch Cannor is about 4 miles from Aboyne and contains some small islands, on one of which there is said to have been a castle built by Malcolm Canmore; in the loch have been found articles of antiquity, among them an old axe, several canoes of oak, cut out of the solid tree, and a bronze pot. There is a good library and reading room in the village. Fairs are held on the third Thursday in Jan. March, May, August, Sept. and Dec. second Wed. in April, last Wed. in June, the Friday after Aiky fair in July, first Tues. and Wed. in October (old style), and second Wed. in Nov. The parish, which has an area of 25,265 acres (rateable value £11,074), in 1891 contained a population of 1,463.

AUCHTERLESS,

BADENSCOTH AND GORDONSTOWN.

AUCHTERLESS, a parish about midway between Aberdeen and Banff, is about 7 miles long and 3 broad, with a station 3 miles from the village on the Great North of Scotland railway, and is in Buchan poor combination and Turriff small debt court, and is watered by the river Ythan. The vestiges of an extensive fortified camp, the inclosed area of which is computed at 120 acres, are well worthy the attention of the antiquary. The chief landowners are Garden A. Duff esq. Hatton Castle, Mrs. Crawford-Leslie, of Rothienorman, and S. D. Watson esq. of Blackford. The parish church is a stone building, with spire, containing clock and one fine bell: the spire was erected by the family of the late John P. Watson esq. of Blackford, in memory of himself, wife and daughter, who are buried in the churchyard. There are sittings for 800 persons. Some portions of the former church are still standing in the churchyard; also the remains of a still older Roman Catholic church. Acreage, 16,826; rateable value, £12,947; population in 1881, 2,144, and in 1891, 1,853.

Badenscoth and Gordonstown are small places in Auchterless parish. Rothienorman is the nearest railway station, 2 miles distant.

Post Office, Auchterless; John Cheyne postmaster. Letters received through Turriff. Deliveries, 11.20 a.m. & 2.30 p.m.; dispatches, 5.25 & 11.20 a.m. The nearest money order office is at Turriff, 6 miles distant.

Post & Telegraph Office, Auchterless Station; J. B. Cattenach, postmaster. Letters received through Turriff. Deliveries, 8.50 a.m. & 1.5 p.m.; dispatches, 6.40 a.m. & 3.35 p.m. The nearest money order office is at Turriff, 6 miles distant BALLATER is an agreeable and quiet village and police burgh, in the parish of Glenmuick, pleasantly situated upon the river Dee, having a terminal station on the Dee Side line of the Great North of Scotland railway, 42 miles west-south-west from Aberdeen, 11 west-south-west from Aboyne, and 18 east from Braemar, and in the Aberdeen small debt district. It is much resorted to in the summer by tourists, on account of the scenery around, which combines both the picturesque and the grand. The neighbourhood is often honoured by the presence of royalty—Balmoral Castle being 9 miles distant, and Abergeldie Castle, a seat of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 6 miles. The ruins of Knock Castle are ornamental, and the country is studded with many seats of the gentry. Loch Cannor is in this neighbourhood; on a small island within it are the ruins of a castle, said to have been once a hunting seat of Malcolm Canmore: the lake is beautiful and romantic in its features, and skirted with birch, hazel and other woods. The village of Ballater is small, but regularly formed—the Established church standing near to its centre, and the Free church upon the outskirts. Many houses have been erected expressly for visitors, and additional accommodation is found in a superior hotel—the Invercauld Arms—containing every convenience that may be desired. A military barracks, for 70 men, was erected here in 1870. Fairs are held at Ballater on the second Tuesday in February, the second Tuesday in May, and the second Monday and Tuesday in Sept. (O.S.), and on the Saturday previous to the 22nd November (N.S.). Population in 1881, 759, and in 1891, 981; rateable value, £5,238.

BIRSE, the most southern parish of Aberdeenshire, extending to Forfarshire, lies on the south bank of the river Dee, one mile from Aboyne railway station and about 28 miles south-west from Aberdeen and forms nearly a square of ten miles. There are three districts in the parish, inclosed by the same number of ridges of hills, which take a south-westerly direction towards the Grampians from the river Dee; in the valleys formed by these ridges flow two streams—the Feuch and the Chattie. The proportion of uncultivated land is very considerable. The road from Dundee to Inverness passes through this parish, which is in the Aberdeen small debt court district. Large upright stones, cairns and other monuments of antiquity are frequently met with, as is limestone in abundance. William Edward Nicol esq. of Ballogie, and Dr. Robert Farquharson M.P. of Finzean House, are the principal landowners. Acreage of the parish, 31,218; rateable value, £7,476. Population in 1881, 1,091 and in 1891, 1,094.

Post Office, William Carnie, postmaster. Letters received through Aboyne R.S.O. Received, 12.50 a.m.; dispatched, 5 a.m. Aboyne is the nearest money order & telegraph office

BODDAM is a village and considerable fishing station and quoad sacra parish, formed in 1880 from Cruden and Peterhead, on the east coast, about 4 miles south of Peterhead. The harbour here was extended a few years since by the Earl of Aberdeen, at a cost somewhat exceeding £2,000, and an Act of Parliament was passed in 1845 constituting Boddam a port or harbour. The fishery here is prosecuted with great diligence; the present proprietor is Archibald Hay Tennent esq. of St. Germains, Haddington. The Established church, built in 1865, is a plain stone building and has sittings for 600 persons. There is also a Free church and a Wesleyan chapel in the parish. The population in 1881 was 1,117 and in 1891 2,109, of which 1,864 are Peterhead.

Post, Telegraph & Money Order Office & Savings Bank, Annuity & Insurance Office, James Cordiner, postmaster. Letters arrive through Peterhead. Deliveries, 11.30 a.m. & 3.45 p.m.; dispatches, 5.25 a.m. & 2.25 p.m

NEW BYTH, formed into a quoad sacra parish in 1868, is bounded by Gamrie and Aberdour on the north, King Edward on the west, Turriff and Montquhitter on the south, and New Deer and Tyrie on the east. It is composed of part of King Edward, New Deer and Aberdour, and was provided with a chapel in 1793: it is in Buchan poor combination and Turriff small debt court. The village of New Byth is about a mile from a public road. Excepting towards the north and west, the general aspect of the parish is bleak. Byth House, one of the seats of Beauchamp Colclough Urquhart esq. D.L. J.P. of Old Meldrum, the superior and chief landowner, a mile north of the village, and is surrounded with wood. The parish church, built in 1851, is a plain stone structure with belfry on west side, and has sittings for 600 persons. There is also a Free church and one for the Independents in the parish. Fisherie and Crudie are places in this parish. Plaidy is the nearest railway station, 7½ miles distant. Population in 1891, 1,727, of which the village contained 398.

CASTLETOWN, see CRATHIE.

CHAPEL OF GARIOCH is an extensive parish lying in the centre of the county, 20 miles north-west from Aberdeen, 18 south-east from Huntly and 5 north-west from Inverurie, with a station at Pitcaple, in this parish, which is 13 miles in length, and from 3 to 4 in breadth, the river Don dividing it on the south from Kemnay. The castle of Balquhain, now in ruins, in this parish, is famed for an echo. There is also a very singular sculptured stone called "the Maiden Stone." The parish church is situated in the small village of its name, and at the southern extremity of the parish is the church of Blairdaff, which is now a quoad sacra parish. The other places of worship are a Free church, near Pitcaple, and a Roman Catholic church at Fetternear. In this district was fought the battle of Harlaw, in 1411, between Alexander, Earl of Mar, and Donald, Lord of the Isles. Buchanan relates that the number of nobility who fell in this obstinately-contested action was greater than had fallen in any foreign engagement for many years before. Area, 13,059 acres; population in 1881, 1,923 and in 1891, 1,690.

Pitcaple is a small village in the parish of Chapel of Garioch, and a station on the Great North of Scotland railway. Pitcaple Castle is the seat of Col. Henry Lumsden D.L., J.P. Near it is the house of Logie Elphinstone, the seat of Lady Grant.

CLUNY parish is in the district of Kincardine-O'Neil and small debt court district of Aberdeen, near Glassel station, 18 miles west from Aberdeen and 8 south-south-west from Inverurie. In length it is about 10 miles, and in breadth from 2 to 3 miles. Four-fifths of the parish is under cultivation. There are three druidical remains and several cairns in this district, besides two large castles—Castle Fraser, said to have been erected in the beginning of the 15th century, and Cluny Castle, the chief part of which is a handsome modern erection. The extensive red granite quarries of Mr. John Fyfe are in this parish. There are ruins of a large castle at Tillycairn, Acreage, 9,741; rateable value, £7,380; population in 1881, 1,298, and in 1891, 1,217.

COULL is a parish in the district of Cromar, the kirk being about 30 miles west from Aberdeen and 4 north from Aboyne railway station, lying at the head of Strathcromar, and separated from the Dee on the south by Aboyne, in the Aberdeen small debt court district. The principal landowners are the trustees of the Hon. James O'Forbes. It is a finely sheltered tract of land, triangular in shape, and generally fertile, the hill portions being, however, bleak and pastoral. The ruins of the very old castle of Coull are distinguishable, but of its ancient possessors little is known. Acreage, 9,044; rateable value, £3,885; population in 1881, 783, and in 1891, 746.

CRATHIE,

BRAEMAR, BALMORAL AND CASTLETOWN.

CRATHIE, or Crathy, is an extensive mountainous parish, in the heart of Mar, among the Grampian mountains, incorporating the suppressed parish of Braemar; jointly they comprise a territory 40 miles in length and 20 in breadth, the former place being 8 miles west-south-west and the latter 18 west from Ballater, the nearest railway station for both; the joint parishes are in the Aberdeen small debt court district. This district is supposed to be more elevated above the level of the sea, and farther distant from the coast in every direction, than any other parochial section in Scotland. On some of the mountains snow may be found all the year round; Ben-Macdhui, 4,300 feet in height, and Lochnagar, 3,800 feet in height, are among the stupendous eminences in this quarter. Nearly the whole of this district was once covered with wood, and was called the Forest of Mar, which, with those of the Duke of Athole, in Perthshire, and the Duke of Gordon, in Badenoch and Glenaven, constituted the principal part of the great Caledonian forest. In Braemar a considerable portion of the wood still remains, which is well stocked with deer.

Balmoral Castle, the highland residence of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, and Abergeldie Castle, a seat of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, are in this parish, as is also Lochmuich, one of the shooting boxes of His Royal Highness. Many seats of the nobility and gentry embellish this interesting locality. The parish church, erected on the site of the old church and opened June 18, 1895, was designed by A. Marshall Mackenzie A.R.S.A.; it is of white granite, cruciform in shape, with a square tower rising from the intersection, having 4 bells; the south transept is appropriated to Her Majesty and the Royal household, who have enriched the church by various gifts. The principal landowners are H.M. the Queen, the Duke of Fife, Alexander Haldane Farquharson, of Invercauld, and Hugh Mackay Gordon esqrs. Area, 182,257 acres; rateable value, £12,785; population in 1881, 1,566 and in 1891, 1,534.

Lochnagar, so famed for its whisky distillery, is likewise in Crathie parish. The principal lakes are Loch Callater and Loch Brotachan, which contain trout, salmon and eels. The great military road from Blairgowrie to Fort George passes the whole extent. On this line is the village of Braemar, or Castletown, near which are the ruins of an ancient castle, said to have been a hunting seat of King Malcolm Canmore. The village is divided by the river Cluny—the one side of the water, called Auchendryne, belonging to the Duke of Fife, and the other to Alexander Haldane Farquharson esq. At a short distance from Braemar is the castle of Braemar, once garrisoned by King William, and burnt in the contest which took place between the Royal forces and the Earl of Mar; it was rebuilt in 1749, and till within the last few years was occupied by Government troops, to prevent the smuggling which was so frequent in this district. This part contains inexhaustible quarries of limestone and fine slate. Braemar, with a population of about 835 persons, possesses two first-class hotels, and is much resorted to in summer by tourists; near here is Mar Lodge, the seat of the Duke of Fife, unfortunately destroyed by fire June 14, 1895, but a new mansion was commenced Oct. 1895.

CRIMOND is a parish 3 miles from Linmay station, about 8 north-west from Peterhead and 8 south-east from Fraserburgh, upon the coast of Buchan, with a front to the German Ocean of about three miles in breadth, which declines to a point, inland, at the distance of rather more than five miles: it is in Buchan poor combination and Peterhead small debt court. Rattray Head, on the coast, is a very dangerous promontory, and a large number of ships having gone ashore at this point, a lighthouse was established in 1895. Near the east end of the lake Strathbeg is a small hill, called the Castle Hill, where Comyn, Earl of Buchan, had a castle. About 100 years ago there was communication between the loch of Strathbeg and the sea, and a harbour at the east end, close to the castle, for small craft; in one night the mouth of the harbour was filled up by the drifting of sand, and the communication has been interrupted ever since. On this harbour formerly stood the burgh of Rattray, near the site of which is a ruin of a small chapel, said to have been erected by the Earl of Buchan, about the year 1200. The parish church, built in 1812, is in the Scottish Gothic style and has sittings for 404 persons: it was remodelled in 1895 and a clock has been placed inside: a stained window of two lights is to the memory of the two immediately preceding ministers, viz. the Rev. Dr. Irvine and the Rev. Alexander Boyd, and on the west wall is a brass containing the names of all the ministers since the Reformation, with dates of ordination and deaths: the ruins of the old church, probably going back to Roman Catholic times, in the churchyard beside the manse, are north of the present church. The area of the parish is 5,891 acres, and its population was in 1881, 832, and in 1891, 808.

Sub-Post Office, Miss Christina Gordon, postmistress. Deliveries, 12.15 & 12.55 p.m.; dispatches, 1.30 & 2.35 p.m. Letters should be addressed "Crimond S.O. Aberdeenshire"

CRUDEN parish, about 7 miles south-south-west from Peterhead, lies on the east of Buchan district, extending from 8 to 9 miles along the east coast and about 7 inland in Buchan poor combination and Peterhead small debt court. The soil is various, a large proportion being a deep rich clay, while the remainder is light and gravelly, with some mosses. Slains Castle, the seat of the Earl of Erroll, a large edifice on a precipice overhanging the sea, and the celebrated "Buller of Buchan," are in this parish. The latter is a large rocky cavern, open to the sky, into which the sea rushes through a natural archway. The rocks are about 100 feet in height, both to the interior of "The Pot" and also on the sea front. It is scarcely possible to overstate the impressing magnificence of these granite sea walls. Area, 18,236 acres; population of the parish in 1881, 3,444, and in 1891, 3,595.

NEW DEER parish lies almost in the centre of Buchan district, and extends 14 miles from north to south, and about 7 in breadth, in Buchan poor combination and Peterhead small debt court. The village, which is well built, is about 30 miles north from Aberdeen and about 15 west of Peterhead. The chief landowners are the Earl of Aberdeen, Haddo House, A. Dingwall Fordyce esq. of Brucklay, J. Dean Leslie esq. of Nethermuir and John H. Bridges, of Federate. The parish church, built in 1838, is a plain stone building with clock tower and contains an organ which cost about £600: the silver communion service was presented by Lord James Reid, chief of the judges of King's Bench at Montreal, in Lower Canada (where his remains rest), and who was born in this village: there is a marble tablet to his memory in the church: he died in 1848, aged 79. There are sittings for 1,100 persons. About two miles from the church stands an old castle, called Federate, which appears to have been a place of considerable strength. There are a few remains of Druidical temples, and several tumuli; these having been opened were found to contain urns, enclosed in stone coffins. A market is held on Tuesday, and fairs on the third Tuesday in January, Tuesday after the 12th of April, Thursday before 28th of May, Tuesday after 19th of June, second Tuesday in August, Tuesday after 19th of October and Thursday before 28th of November. Acreage, 26,750; rateable value, £20,635; population of the entire parish in 1881, 4,875, and in 1891, 3,585.

Brucklay is a village in the parish of New Deer, with a station on the Great North of Scotland railway. Brucklay Castle, built in the year 1540, the seat of Alexander Dingwall Fordyce esq. D.L. is about two miles from the village in a romantic situation in the midst of delightful scenery; the lawns are tastefully laid out, and the park is encircled by the waters of the Ugie.

OLD DEER parish is 10 miles in length, by a mean breadth of between 5 and 6, and comprises 27,363 acres. Like New Deer, it lies in the district of Buchan, Buchan poor combination and Peterhead small debt court. The village is 1 mile from Mintlaw railway station, 10½ west from Peterhead and 30 north from Aberdeen by the Mintlaw road. A branch of the river Ugie intersects the parish about its centre, whilst another branch enters it for a short course on the north; upon these streams are several mills. The parish church, built in 1796, on the site of the old Celtic church, built at the end of the 6th century, is a plain stone building with western tower; the church was entirely renovated in 1883 and has sittings for 1,100 persons. The abbey of Deer, which stands about a mile from the village, was built in the beginning of the 13th century, by William Comyn, the Earl of Buchan; it is mostly in ruins, but there is still enough remaining to show what it originally was. There were at one time no less than twelve Druidical temples, of which four, tolerably entire, are yet remaining. The Druid's temple at Biffie is the most conspicuous, and is an object of great attraction. On Aiky Brae was fought the battle which decided the fate of the Earls of Buchan. Edward Bruce there defeated the army of the Comyns, when the Earl fled to England and the whole surrounding country was laid waste by the army of Bruce, in what is known as the harrying of Buchan. The principal landowners are Lieut.-Col. George Arthur Ferguson J.P. of Pitfour and Wm. Ferguson esq. of Kinmundy. The pleasure grounds and woods of Pitfour, the seat of Colonel George A. Ferguson J.P. are picturesque. Near the village of Old Deer is a cemetery, which was opened in 1875. A fair is held at Aiky Brae on the first Wednesday after the 19th of July, and at Old Deer on the first Wednesday after the 19th of December. The population of the whole parish in 1881 was 5,104, and in 1891, 3,881.

ECHT, a parish with stations on the Great North of Scotland railway, 12 miles west of Aberdeen, is about 5 miles in length and the same in breadth. It is a hilly district, but having a large proportion of the land under cultivation. In this parish is Dunecht House, the property of the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres. The Observatory, established here in 1872, and library have been presented to the Crown by the Earl and are now transferred to the Royal Observatory, Edinburgh. The remains of a Pictish camp, much prized by antiquarians, are upon the summit of a hill adjacent to Dunecht. Fairs are held on the first Monday in every month, with the following exceptions—the second Monday in May, the day before Michaelmas fair, in October and the second Tuesday in November. The parish has an area of 11,948 acres; value, £7,048; and in 1891 contained a population of 1,207.

ELLON parish extends about 9 miles in length from north to south and 5 in breadth, in Buchan poor combination and the small debt district of Aberdeen. The surface is uneven, and there are some rising grounds, the heights of which are considerable. Ellon, which is a police burgh, has a station on the Great North of Scotland line, 16 miles north from Aberdeen and has a bridge over the river Ythan, which is navigable for large boats within half a mile of the village; a trade in coal and corn is carried on. Here are branches respectively of the Union Bank of Scotland Limited, the Town and County Bank Limited, and the North of Scotland Bank Limited. Ellon was at one time the assize town of a populous district—the scene of penal trial, the place of execution and the scene of mortal combat. Within modern times several handsome buildings have been erected and the present proprietor (Arthur John Lewis Gordon esq. J.P.) gives every encouragement in the way of feus. It has many attractions and visitors find excellent accommodation at Lamont's hotel, and also at the Station hotel, adjoining the railway station. The trout fishing on the Ythan has long been celebrated, as are also the pearls which are found in that river, one of which is the great pearl in the crown of Scotland. Ellon Castle, erected about 1850, stands just outside the village, close to the ruins of an old castle built early in the 16th century. The Established church a few years ago underwent several improvements, which included the erection of a new organ and the putting in of four additional windows, at a cost of about £500. The fine Episcopal church, called St. Mary's, is from designs by the late Mr. G. E. Street, of London. Esslemont is the residence of Henry Wolrige-Gordon esq. D.L., J.P. The market is held on the first and third Mondays in each month, also on Tuesday after the 11th of May and on the Wednesday after the 12th of November. Acreage, 22,259; population of the parish in 1881, 3,698 and in 1891, 3,212.

FINTRAY parish, about 16½ miles north-west from Aberdeen, is 5 miles in length by from 3 to 4 in breadth, on the banks of the Don, where the land is fertile and susceptible of profitable cultivation, but other parts are hilly. It is in the Aberdeen poor combination and small debt court district of Aberdeen. An abbey formerly existed in this parish. The Rev. J. Leslie, a late minister, possessed a stone inscribed with the date 1386, supposed to have formed a fraction of the building, and a silver cup, dated 1633, which tradition records to have been manufactured from the silver of the image of St. Mèddin, the tutelar saint of the parish. There is a station on the Great North of Scotland line at Kinaldie, about 1 mile from the village of Hatton. Acreage, 7,319; valuation, £7,421; population in 1881, 1,032, and in 1891, 999.

Post Office, Hatton; William Rae, postmaster. Letters received through Kinaldie R.S.O. Deliveries, 7.50 & 11.45 a.m. & 4.30 p.m.; dispatches, 9.40 a.m. & 4.10 p.m. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Kinaldie Railway Station, 1½ miles distant FORGUE is a parish in the Huntly small debt court district, 10 miles in length and its greatest breadth about 6; it is 4 miles north-east of Huntly, the nearest railway station, and it is intersected by two rivulets —the Fendraught and the Forgue. The soil in the lower parts produces good crops, but towards the south the ground is mostly covered with heath. On several of the estates much has been done in planting and improving the wastes. The celebrated Glendronach distillery is situated in this parish. The places of worship are Established, Free and Episcopal churches, the latter consecrated in 1858 and dedicated to St. Margaret. A magnificent hall has been presented to the parishioners by the late Walter Scott, of Glendronach.

YTHAN WELLS is a quoad sacra parish, containing a church of the Establishment and public schools. The area is 17,354 acres; rateable value, £12,000; the population in 1881 was 2,422, and in 1891, 2,239.

FOVERAN parish, which is in Buchan poor combination, extends 7 miles in length from east to west, and about 2 in breadth. It is 10 miles north from Aberdeen and 4 south-east from Ellon railway station. Its general appearance is level, but the ground rises by a gradual ascent from the sea, though not to any considerable height. The soil varies from sand to a rich loam and strong clay, the whole of which is arable. The Ythan, navigable for about three miles, forms the boundary on the north. At the mouth of the river is the small village of NEWBURGH, in which a considerable trade is carried on in grain, lime, bones and guano. It is in the Aberdeen poor combination and small debt court district. In this parish are to be seen the ruins of several ancient castles and chapels. Area, 10,537 acres, the rateable value, £12,616; population of the parish in 1881, 2,042, and in 1891, 1,945.

FRASERBURGH is a flourishing seaport town, on the north-east coast, a burgh of barony and regality, but now a Police burgh under the Act 1892, in a parish of the same name and Buchan poor combination, the terminus of a branch (opened May 1st, 1865) of the Great North of Scotland railway, 151 miles north-east of Edinburgh, 42 north of Aberdeen, 22 east of Banff (26 by the new road), and 18 north-west of Peterhead; situated on the south side of Kinnaird Head, a bold promontory, surmounted by a lighthouse, which is one of the oldest under the Commissioners of Northern Lights. It is built upon the site of a very ancient keep and an old castle, which latter was about four hundred years ago occupied by the Saltoun family. The parish occupies the north-eastern angle of land in this part of the county, and extends about 3½ miles each way. At one time the name of the parish was Philorth, and the possessions of Lord Saltoun here retain this appellation, and Philorth Castle is the residence of Lord Saltoun. The original name of the burgh was Faithlie, and in 1546 it was declared a free port and burgh of barony by royal charter, in favour of Sir Alexander Fraser, of Philorth. By a precept of sasine granted by King James VI. in 1592, the name was altered to Port de Fraser, and by a crown charter dated April 4th, 1601, the same monarch caused it to be a burgh of regality and the name changed to Fraserburgh, from the name of the proprietor or superior, Sir Alexander Fraser, of Philorth, to whom and his heirs these charters gave the superiority of the burgh, which for some time was governed by a town council, but in 1872 the burgh adopted the "Police and Improvement Act (Scotland), 1862," but now the control is in the hands of commissioners under the "Police Act, 1892." The town is neatly built, forming a square, is well supplied with water, and the streets, which are tolerably spacious, are lighted with gas by a company. Near the centre are the Town's House and a cross—the latter of modern date. A sheriff's small debt court is held monthly.

There is an excellent harbour, much improved during recent years, under a Provisional Order of 1873 and a harbour act obtained in 1878. The harbour (the annual revenue from which is £10,000 to £13,000) is managed by the Provost, five persons elected by the feuars, two by the shipowners, two by the police commissioners, three by the harbour ratepayers and one by the feuars managers. A breakwater (commenced in 1875, and upon which £72,000 has been expended), extending about 860 feet into the bay in a southerly direction, has been completed. Besides affording a berthage to a large number of ships and boats at low water as well as at high water, it shelters an area of 12¾ acres, where from 800 to 1,000 fishing boats can be comparatively safe at all states of the tide. A further sum of £70,000 has been expended in deepening the south and the north harbours, widening the piers and other additions to existing works, and a scheme of further deepening these harbours and adding a new south breakwater, at a cost of £60,000, is being (1896) carried out. The berthage has also been greatly enlarged, and now extends to about 9,250 feet, where fishing boats can safely lie and discharge fish, and of which 6,425 feet is available for shipping. During spring tides vessels drawing from 16 to 18 feet enter the harbour, and during neap tides the depth is from 13 to 15 feet. The herring fishery, which has been established here for upwards of half a century, has been so largely developed within recent years that Fraserburgh may now be considered as the foremost station in Scotland. The number of boats engaged in this fishery is about 800, and the annual value of herrings exported reaches from £400,000 to £500,000. The shipping entering the harbour averages from 40,000 to 55,000 tons. A pretty large trade is done in timber, imported from Norway and Sweden, the other chief imports being coals, salt, white fish &c. while the principal exports are herrings, grain, empty barrels, potatoes &c. Within the burgh has been erected, at a cost of £3,000, a hospital bearing the name of the donor, being called Thomas Walker's Hospital. The site was given by Lord Saltoun. It is supported under the Public Health Act by the Burgh Commissioners, and there is an endowment of £1,000—the Helen Watson Memorial fund—under which poor people are admitted free of charge. Dalrymple Hall and Cafe, erected at a cost of about £4,500, is due to the credit of the late Captain John Dalrymple, who presented to a body of his townsmen the site, along with a sum of £1,700 as a nucleus for its erection: the style of architecture is a modification of the Scottish baronial: in addition to the cafe and dining rooms, it has a news room, library, museum, school of art, recreation room and baths, together with a public hall capable of holding 1,100 people, with necessary ante-rooms.

The parish church, in the centre of the town, and built in 1802, is a plain stone building, with clock tower at the west end: the organ was erected at a cost of £400: there are sittings for 1,050 persons. The hereditary burying ground of the Saltoun family is within the church inclosure. The west parish church, built in 1876, is a plain stone building with spire, and has sittings for 810 persons: there is a fine bell presented by Mr. William Whitelaw. The Free church, erected in 1880, at a cost of £6,500, on the site of the old parish school, near the railway station, built chiefly by subscriptions, is of granite, and highly ornamental both in the interior and exterior, and on the whole is one of the most handsome buildings of the kind in the north. Another Free Church congregation have acquired the old Episcopal church in Mid street, and adapted it under the name of the West Free Church. An Episcopal church (Bishop Jolly Memorial) has been erected in Charlotte street: the building, which is dedicated to St. Peter, consists of chancel, nave and aisles, and was consecrated on August 31, 1892: there are sittings for 500 persons. There is being erected (1895) a Catholic church and Presbytery in Commerce street. The educational requirements of the parish are supplied by several institutions in the town, and of these the most important is the Public schools, erected at a cost of £7,000, and opened on the 12th September, 1882, by Lord Saltoun. At the north end of the schools a tower, in which are a clock and a bell, rises to a considerable height; a large addition was made in 1891 at an expense of £1,300. Fraserburgh Academy was built at a cost of £2,500, and endowed by James Park esq.; it was opened in 1870, and in 1894 handed by the remaining trustees over to a governing body elected partly by the School Board and partly by the Burgh Commissioners. The Academy is presently the Secondary School for Fraserburgh. There is also a school belonging to the Episcopalians, and an endowed school instituted in 1863, by Miss Strachen, of Cortes, in memory of her brother, James Strachen esq. M.D. Inspector-General of Army Hospitals, Madras; this is managed by a body of trustees composed of the members of the Kirk Session and Lord Saltoun's commissioner. There are two first class hotels here—the Saltoun Arms Hotel and the Station Hotel, in either of which will be found every convenience. The market, chiefly for corn and cattle, is held on Tuesday. Area, 8,367 acres; rateable value, £44,335; population of the burgh in 1881, 6,583, and of the whole parish, 7,596; in 1891 the burgh numbered 7,466, and the parish 8,352, of which 3,601 are attached to West Fraserburgh.

BROADSEA, a fishing village, is within the burgh and here is a school of considerable dimensions, exclusively for the village children; it is under the management of the Kirk Session. A fishermen's hall was also erected in the village in 1887 by public subscription.

Techmicery, a detached portion of Fraserburgh parish, has been transferred to Strichen.

FYVIE,

WOODHEAD AND ROTHIENORMAN.

FYVIE, in Buchan poor combination and Turriff small debt court, is an inland parish on the high road from Aberdeen to Banff, with a station on the Great North of Scotland railway, 8 miles north-north-west from Old Meldrum and 25 north-north-west from Aberdeen, on both sides of the river Ythan, which, between Fyvie and Methlick, flows through a romantic wooded gorge called the Braes of Gight, on which stand the ruins of an old castle, which, with the estate of Gight, belonged to the ancestors of Lord Byron, and is now the property of the Earl of Aberdeen. Fyvie Castle was given by the king to Henry Preston as a reward for the capture of Ralph Percy in the battle of Otterburn. The Prestons, the Meldrums, the Setons and the Gordons have in turn held the estate, and is now the seat of A. J. Forbes-Leith esq.; it stands in a delightful situation, is of Gothic architecture, and has been repaired and greatly improved The scenery around is highly pleasing, and a loch intersects the grounds. Near the church, on the banks of the river, are the ruins of a priory, founded along with the parish church, in honour of the Virgin Mary, by Fergus, Earl of Buchan, in 1179, and was given to the abbey of Arbroath. The chief landowners are the Earl of Aberdeen, A. J. Forbes-Leith esq. and Mrs. Crawford-Leslie. A cottage hospital was founded and endowed in 1879 by Colonel and Mrs. Cosmo Gordon, of Fyvie. The places of worship in the parish are Established and Free churches—one each, and two Episcopal churches, respectively situated at Woodhead and Meiklefolla, and one mission church in connection with the Establishment. The parish church, standing on the site of the old church which existed at the Reformation, was built in 1808; it is a plain stone building with belfry on west side containing 2 bells, one of which bears the date 1609, with the inscription, "Soli Deo Gloria:" there are two beautiful stained windows and an organ: the present minister is the twentieth since 1560, and there are seats for 1,200 persons: among the tombstones most notable is one with a pre-Reformation inscription, also a Gothic cross to the memory of Tifties Annie, the heroine of the old ballad of Andrew Lammie; also some other fine monuments. A church hall was given to the parish by Captain and Mrs. Gordon in 1884, and has two valuable oil paintings on the wall and a marble bust of the donor, and can hold 400 persons; it is used for Sunday school, parish library, lectures and entertainments of various kinds. Cattle markets are held at the railway station on the third Thursday in every month, and fairs on the third Thursday in February and July. Rateable value, £23,201; area, 29,586 acres; population of the parish in 1881, 3,313, and in 1891, 3,050.

ROTHIENORMAN is a small village in this parish, about 3½ miles south-west therefrom, with a station on the Great North of Scotland railway. Cattle markets are held here on the second Monday of every month.

Woodhead is a small village 2½ miles from Fyvie station.

GLENGAIRN, see GLENMUICK.

GLENMUICK is a large parish in the district of Mar, formed by the union of the parishes of Glenmuick, Tullich and Glengairn, which are in the small debt court district of Aberdeen. It lies about 40 miles west of Aberdeen, is about 18 miles in length and 15 in breadth, intersected by the Dee, and several of its tributary streams. Ballater and Cambus O'May are the nearest railway stations. The soil is shallow and early, producing good grain; the hills are of considerable elevation, and many of them covered with wood to their very summits. Specimens of lead ore have been found near the castle of Glengairn, and limestone is everywhere abundant. The principal landowners are Her Majesty the Queen, Alexander H. Farquharson esq. Sir Allan R. Mackenzie bart. of Brackley House, John M. Keiller esq. and Sir William Cunliffe Brooks bart. Acreage, 87,341; rateable value, £20,260; population of the whole parish in 1881, 2,100, and in 1891, 2,299; ecclesiastical parish of Glenmuick and Tullich, 1,600.

In the village of Tullich are the remains of an old kirk, the walls of which inclose the burial place of the Farquharsons of Whitehouse. The view from this spot looking towards the west presents a series of hills rising one above another, with the lofty Lochnagar towering over all.

The mineral wells and baths at Pannanich are within about 2 miles of Ballater, on the banks of the Dee. The waters are serviceable in cases of scrofula and dyspepsia, and in all complaints where the blood is either deficient in quantity or vitiated; they have also proved beneficial in cases of stone and gravel. The increasing demand for accommodation evinces that the wells are rising in public estimation. There is a good hotel adjacent to the wells.

HUNTLY.

HUNTLY, a burgh of barony and seat of presbytery, is a pleasing and modern town, the capital of the parish of that name and station on the Great North of Scotland railway, 123 miles north of Edinburgh, 66 east of Inverness, 38 north-west of Aberdeen, 21 south-west of Banff and 18 south-east of Fochabers. The parish is about 10 miles in length and 4 in breadth, formed by the annexation of the parishes of Dunbennan and Kinnoir. The town is well lighted with gas by a joint-stock company, is in a dry and salubrious situation, on the point of land formed by the confluence of the Bogie with the Deveron, the stream of each being crossed by a bridge, and has of late years become a fashionable summer resort and the healthiness of the climate is not equalled in the north of Scotland. There are four principal streets crossing each other at right angles, and forming a spacious square for the market place, in which is the Huntly Brander Public Library, erected in 1885; this fine building is in the Perpendicular Gothic style of the 16th century, and was presented by William Brander esq. of London, as part of a gift of £6,500 for educational purposes. The library consists of about 10,000 volumes of useful literature. Stewart's Hall, in Gordon street, burnt down in 1886, and rebuilt in 1887, is an imposing structure, surmounted with a tower containing a clock; the large hall, used for public meetings, will seat 650 persons. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon, who is superior, appoints a baron bailie. Justice of peace courts are held as occasions require, in the above mentioned hall, and a sheriff's small debt court quarterly, the jurisdiction of the latter extending over twelve parishes.

There are, besides the Parish and Free churches, several other places of worship. Several public and charitable educational establishments are well sustained, and conducted with ability. The Gordon schools, opened in 1841, were founded by the late Duchess in 1839, and are near to the Lodge, formerly her residence. The school premises, which were in 1888 enlarged for 1,000 children, are fitted with modern appliances, under a new scheme propounded by the Educational Endowment Commissioners of Scotland, providing accommodation for a general public school and a senior department, the nucleus of which is formed of the Brander Foundationers, and those whose education is paid for from the funds of the reformed Gordon Trust. A handsome building, costing about £3,000, is erected as a school for secondary education; it faces the School avenue and closely adjoins the existing block. A home for the aged, founded and endowed by the late Alexander Scott esq. of Craibstone House, affords an asylum for the aged destitute of both sexes The cottage hospital, erected by subscription in 1887-8 as a memorial of Her Majesty's Jubilee, contains sixteen beds and a fever ward, and is maintained by five surrounding parishes. Perhaps there is no part of the county in which agriculture has achieved more success than in this parish. A few years ago the general surface was anything but productive, but, through systematic culture and perseverance, it now, for production and quality, is inferior to none in the north of Scotland. The acreage of arable land is very considerable, and some of the eminences are clothed with fine plantations. St. Mungo's Hill, in the district of Kinnoir, has the appearance of a volcano, and on the summit there is an opening, which is generally filled with water, though in dry seasons peat is obtained from it, strongly impregnated with sulphur; and pieces of lava have, it is said, been found round it. Limestone, some of which approaches to the nature of marble, and takes a very high polish, is obtained in the parish. The principal hotel is the Gordon Arms, where tourists and visitors will find every accommodation. The town was once famed for the weaving of fine linen, but since the beginning of this century this branch of industry has gradually decreased. There are two woollen factories, a hosiery factory and an agricultural implement factory. Markets for cattle are held on the first and third Wednesdays of every month. A sheep fair is likewise held on the Thursday before the second Tuesday in August (O.S.). Feeing markets for hiring servants are held on the Thursday before the 26th of May, the second Thursday in July and the Thursday before the 2nd November. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon is the lord of the manor and principal landowner. Area, 12,475 acres; rateable value, £16,175; population of parish in 1881, 4,388, and in 1891, 4,583, of which the town contained 3,760.

A weekly newspaper, the "Huntly Express" (established in 1863), is published in the town on Saturday.

INSCH.

INSCH is a burgh of barony in the Upper Garioch district, 27 miles north-west from Aberdeen and 13 south-east from Huntly, and has a station on the Great North of Scotland railway. The parish extends 5 miles in length by 3 in breadth, and is bounded by Culsalmond on the east, Kennethmont on the west and separated by the water of the Urie from Drumblade and Forgue; the burgh is in the Huntly small debt court district, is lighted with gas, has two banking establishments and a savings bank. On the top of the hill of Dun-i-Deer are the ruins of an old castle and vitrified fort. There is a good hotel and posting house at the railway station. Markets are held on the fourth Monday of every month, and feeing markets in May and November. Bainshole is an outlying part of the parish, 6 miles north from Insch. Acreage, 8,370; rateable value, £8,930; population in 1881, 1,536, and in 1891, 1,384, of which number the burgh contained 573.

INVERALLOCHY is a quoad sacra parish formed from the parish of Rathen about the year 1877, in Buchan poor combination and Fraserburgh small debt court, 2½ miles from Rathen railway station. The chief landowner is Colonel Frederick M. Fraser, of Castle Fraser. The parish church, built about 1840 and remodelled in 1880, is a plain stone building with spire on north end and has sittings for 500 persons. There is also a Free church and a board school in the parish. The population in 1891 was 1,463.

Cairnbulg is a small fishing village in the parish, and is only divided from the village of Inverallochy by a small stream.

INVERNETTIE and INVERUGIE, see PETERHEAD.

INVERURIE is a town, which is a royal burgh, and parish, lying at the termination of the peninsula between the river Ury on the north and the Don on the south, with a railway station, 16 miles north-west of Aberdeen, 22 south-west of Huntly and 5 west-by-south of Old Meldrum, pleasantly situated on the neck of land formed by the confluence of the streams before mentioned. Tradition reports that Inverurie was erected into a royal burgh by King Robert Bruce on the occasion of a signal victory obtained by him in the neighbourhood over Comyn, Earl of Buchan, the King of England's general in Scotland. The oldest charter is a novodamus by Queen Mary, the preamble of which states that Inverurie had been a royal burgh from time immemorial, but that the charter of its erection had been lost during the civil wars. The town is now governed by a provost, three bailies, a treasurer, a dean of guild and three councillors, and is included in the parliamentary division of the Elgin Burghs. The opening of the Great North of Scotland railway from Aberdeen to Inverness, which has a station here, and a branch line to Old Meldrum, gave a new stimulus to industry, and the town, which is well lighted with gas, and supplied with good water brought from the lands of Keith Hall, has a thriving appearance. Inverurie confers the title of baron on the Earl of Kintore, who has a fine mansion, Keith Hall, a little to the east of the town. By means of the influence and under the patronage of this noble family, a bridge was erected in 1791 over the Don, at an expense of £2,000, and subsequently another was carried over the Ury. The Town Hall, erected in 1862, is a structure of light grey granite, containing public hall, market hall, council chamber, committee room, public library and museum; the cost was nearly £3,000. The Town and County, the North of Scotland and the Union Banking Companies have each a branch establishment here, and there is also a Savings Bank. Inverurie has become a favourite resort during the summer months, the Don and the Ury affording ample sport to the angler. There is a first-class hotel here, the "Kintore Arms." The Bass of Inverurie, a conical mount, 50 or 60 feet high, overhangs the isolated churchyard near it, and it appears to have been the site of the chief castle of the Earls of Garioch, as early as about the year 1200: the field in which it stands is still called the Castle yards of Inverurie. The area is 4,946 acres; population of the parish in 1881, 3,038, and in 1891, 2,954; of this number the burgh contained 2,625.

KEITH HALL and KINKELL form a united parish in the district of Garioch, lying on the left banks of the Ury and Don, which rivers unite opposite its centre, 3 miles from Inverurie. It is recorded that many who fell in the battle of Harlaw were buried at Kinkell, which at that period was the principal church in this part of the county. The Earl of Kintore has a seat in this parish. At Kinmuck, also in the parish, the Society of Friends established themselves about the year 1662, but the present meeting house was probably built about 1681, and had a school and residence for the masters. It has since been improved, and contains a free library with many ancient and modern works, illustrative of the history and doctrines of the society. Their burial ground is near it, on the opposite side of the road. Area, 7,601 acres; population in 1881, 880, and in 1891, 822.

Post Office, Kinmuck; Barbara Adam, postmistress. Letters received through Inverurie. Delivery, 12.15 p.m.; dispatch, 12.30 p.m. The nearest money order office is at Inverurie, 3½ miles distant KILDRUMMY parish lies in a valley 7 miles from Alford railway station, 35 miles west from Aberdeen and 16 south from Huntly, in the Huntly small debt court district. The castle of Kildrummy, which anciently belonged to David, Earl of Huntington and Garioch, was a seat of King Robert Bruce, and served as a place of retreat to his queen in the winter of 1306, and is a ruin of great antiquity and appears to have been strongly fortified, having subterraneous passages and concealments. It was distinguished by its seven towers, one of which, from the whiteness of its stone, was called the Snow Tower; these ruins cover an acre of ground. The parish has an area of 10,352 acres; rateable value, £4,118, and its population in 1891 was 569.

KINCARDINE-O'NEIL, a parish and village, the latter the seat of a presbytery, is on the public road and the banks of the Dee between Aberdeen and Ballater, 26 miles west from the former, 16 north-east from the latter and 2 south-east from Dess station, Deeside line, and in Aberdeen small debt court district. St. Erchan's well, whose waters are said to be of a medicinal character, is near this village; this place is much resorted to for the summer retirement of invalids, being much protected from the north and east winds, and having an extensive prospect up the river towards the Grampian mountains. In early days Kincardine was of some note, for it is upon record that a wooden bridge was built across the Dee 600 years ago, the expense of which was defrayed by a knight called Allan Durward. The parish, which is about 9 miles in length by 6 in extreme breadth, is partly hilly and pastoral and partly arable, while in some places are thriving plantations. The village contains a public hall, erected in 1885 by subscription. Fairs are held on the second Tuesday in May, and on the Wednesday and Thursday after the last Tuesday in August (o.s.). The principal landowner is Mrs. Mary Pickering. The acreage of the parish is 18,132; rateable value, £12,224, and the population in 1881 was 1,931 and in 1891, 1,828; ecclesiastical parish, 1,006.

KING EDWARD is a parish with a station on the Macduff section of the Great North of Scotland railway, 6 miles north from Turriff, in the northern part of the county, in Buchan poor combination and Turriff small debt court, and is 12 miles in length from west to east by from 2 to 5 in breadth, its western extremity being washed by the Deveron; on the north it is bounded by Gamrie, on the east by New Byth and on the south by Turriff. The general surface is undulating; there are extensive plantations and the district is advanced in agriculture. A streamlet, tributary to the Deveron, pursues a westerly direction through the parish, and on its right bank stands the ruins of the ancient castle of King Edward, once the seat of the potent Comyns, Earls of Buchan. The parish church, built in 1848, is a plain stone building, with belfry on west end containing one bell; there are sittings for 600 persons. The principal landowners are the Duke of Fife, Major Francis E. R. Pollard Urquhart, of Craigston and B. C. Urquhart, of Meldrum and Byth. Rateable value, £12,320; acreage, 18,570; population in 1881, 3,068 and in 1891, 2,817.

KINTORE is a royal burgh, and gives its name to the parish; the town, which is small, is 12½ miles north-west from Aberdeen and between 3 and 4 south-east from Inverurie, on the public road near the Don, and has a station on the Great North of Scotland railway, which is also the junction for Alford. The burgh is governed by a provost, two bailies, a dean of guild and a treasurer, assisted by a council of eight other burgesses, and is in the same parliamentary division as Inverurie. In this parish are numerous cairns and tumuli, which are said to point out the position where Robert Bruce overtook and destroyed the army of Edward I. after the defeat of Comyn, Earl of Buchan, near Inverurie; and within the parish are the ruins of Hall Forest Castle, formerly a hunting seat of King Robert, now the property of the Earl of Kintore, to whom three-fourths of the parish belongs. The North of Scotland Bank Limited have a branch establishment. The markets formerly held here have been discontinued. In the village of Port Elphinstone in this parish, about a mile from Inverurie, are established meal and paper mills and a brewery; here also have been erected several prettily-situated residences. Rateable value, £2,770 (this is the rateable value of the Royal Burgh of Kintore only, value of parish, £12,557); area, 9,092 acres; population of the parish in 1881, 2,327 and in 1891, 2,409, 686 of this number belonging to the town.

Post, Telegraph & Money Order Office & Savings Bank. (Railway Sub-Office. Letters should have R.S.O. Aberdeenshire, added). Alexander Warrack, postmaster. Deliveries, 7.55 a.m. & 6 p.m.; dispatches, 7.40 & 10 a.m. & 2.33, 4.30 & 5.30 p.m

LEOCHEL-CUSHNIE is a joint parish, 2½ miles from Whitehouse railway station and 3 south from Alford, in the small debt court district of Aberdeen. The ruins of the ancient castles of Lintirk and Corse are within the parish. In the latter were born several of the Forbes, one of whom (Patrick Forbes of Corse) wrote a Commentary on the Revelations. Craigievar Castle, the elegant seat of Lord Semphill, is also in this parish, and from its elevated situation commands an extensive prospect of the country. Acreage, 12,856; rateable value, £7,604; population in 1881, 1,217 and in 1891, 1,146.

Post Office, Craigievar; George Adam, postmaster. Letters received through Aberdeen. Delivery, 9.30 a.m.; dispatch, 5.30 a.m. The nearest telegraph office is at Whitehouse railway station, 3 miles distant LESLIE, a parish in the district of Garioch, 3 miles from Insch railway station and in the Huntly small debt court district; it is watered by the small river Gadie, a stream celebrated by Arthur Johnston in his elegant Latin poems, and in a familiar Scotch song. Here is the fine old ruin of Leslie Castle. Several remains of druidical temples, cairns and an ancient encampment are pointed out. The parish church and a public school are seated near the river side. Duncanstone is a detached part of parish, lying about 4 miles from Insch. Acreage, 4,444; rateable value, £2,756; population in 1881, 523 and in 1891, 461.

LONGSIDE is a parish and village 6 miles west of Peterhead, 4 east from Old Deer and about 30 north of Aberdeen, in Buchan poor combination and Peterhead small debt court. Feeing fairs are held on the second Thursday in May and the second Tuesday in November. The Established church, built in 1836, is a plain stone building seated for about 1,200 persons. The old church, built in 1620, still stands in the churchyard, and was the original church of the parish. The whole district included in the parish once formed part of the parish of Peterhead, then called Peterugie. The entrance to the churchyard is by a lych gate, so rarely seen in the North of Scotland: it was built in the year 1705. The Episcopal church (St. John's) is a fine stone structure, and consists of chancel, nave with aisles and a tower rising 90 feet high between nave and chancel; the altar is of white Sicilian marble, and there is a beautiful reredos of Caen stone: there are sittings for 500 persons. In the churchyard of this parish is a monument to the Rev. John Skinner, died 1807, after having been for 64 years minister of the Episcopal congregation at Longside, and who was also dean of the diocese; he was the author of the popular song entitled "Tullochgorum," as well as of several other poetical compositions: a contemporary of Burns, the two poets corresponded, but never met. Dean Skinner, in addition to being a poet, was also a scholar and theologian. Both his son (Bishop John Skinner) and his grandson (Bishop William Skinner) became successively Primus of the Scottish Church. There is also a Free church in the parish. Acreage of the parish, 16,836; population in 1891 was 3,018.

Mintlaw is a village in this parish, having a railway station and a public school. Population in 1891, 435.

LONMAY parish, with a station on the Fraserburgh branch of the Great North of Scotland railway, 4 miles south-east from Fraserburgh, has about 4 miles of sea coast, is 10 miles long, and varies in breadth from half a mile to 4 miles. It is in Buchan poor combination and Fraserburgh small debt court. The parish church, built in 1788, is a plain stone building, and has sittings for 500 persons; the former church, built in 1607, and part of a wall is still standing. The original church, now in ruins in the churchyard at St. Combs, must have been erected somewhere about the 12th century, and was dedicated to St. Columba, hence the name of the village of recent date which is now beside it. Adjoining the present church is the family burying-ground of the Gordons of Cairness. The Episcopal church (St. Columba) is in the Early English style, originally built about 1720, but reconstructed and added to in 1862, and now consists of nave, chancel, small transept, porch and vestry, and has sittings for 200 persons: there is a brass at the chancel arch in memory of Arabella Diana, wife of Sir Alexander Bannerman bart. and in the churchyard is the grave of Sir Alexander Bannerman bart. of Elsick and Crimonmogate, father of the present Lady Carnegie. Crimonmogate is the seat of Lord and Lady Carnegie; and Cairness, the seat of Chas. T. Gordon esq. D.L., J.P. The chief landowners are Charles T. Gordon esq. D.L., J.P. and Lady Carnegie. The soil is sandy, but generally fertile. The acreage of the parish is 11,075; population in 1891, 1,726.

St. Combs is a fishing village in the parish; the nearest railway station is at Rathen, 3 miles distant. Population in 1891, 561.

LUMPHANAN parish has a station on the Deeside railway, about 26 miles west from Aberdeen and 16 north-east from Ballater; the parish, which is about six miles in length and four in breadth, is in the Aberdeen small debt court district. The name signifies "the bare little valley," but this designation is not in the present day applicable to the lowlands, which are well cultivated and fruitful. This is the district in which Macbeth is said to have been slain by Macduff in the year 1057; the spot on which tradition asserts the combat to have taken place is about a mile north from the kirk, on the brow of a hill, where a large cairn of stones (in the midst of which a stone coffin was found some time ago) has been raised commemorative of the event, and corroborative of the finale of Shakespeare's drama. The principal landowners are Dr. Robert Farquharson M.P. Lord Sempill and trustees of the late Robert Smith esq. The parish consists of 8,754 acres; rateable value, £6,380, with a population in 1881 of 1,130 and in 1891, 992.

NEW MACHAR.

NEW MACHAR is a parish in the district of Buchan, lying chiefly in Aberdeenshire, but partly in the county of Banff, with a station on the Great North of Scotland railway; it extends nine miles in length by two and a half in breadth; it is in the Aberdeen poor combination and small debt court district of same. The parish kirk stands in the village of Summerhill, 10 miles north-north-west from Aberdeen, where there is also a Free church and a public school. The country is generally rather flat and the soil is mostly arable, with several patches of wet mossy land, while in the southern quarter are some fine plantations. There is a small lake near the boundary of Old Machar, called Bishop's Loch, in which is an island whereon stand the ruins of a castle once belonging to the Bishops of Aberdeen. The area is 9,002 acres; rateable value is £10,540; population in 1881, 1,505 and in 1891, 1,397.

OLD MELDRUM is a police burgh and a market town, pleasantly situated on the road from Aberdeen to Banff, 18 miles north-west from the former, 27 south-east from the latter and 5 north-east from Inverurie. The Great North of Scotland railway has a branch line here from Inverurie. The streets and dwellings are irregularly laid out, but of late have been much improved. Meldrum was constituted a burgh of barony in the year 1672, under the jurisdiction of two bailies, and was elected a police burgh in 1893; B. C. Urquhart esq. is superior of the burgh. The seat of this gentleman (Meldrum House) is romantically situated, and, from its antique style of architecture, has a striking effect, and is surrounded with fine scenery. The Town Hall has a tower with an illuminated clock. The North of Scotland Bank Limited and the Town and County Bank Limited have each a branch establishment in the town. The principal branches of business are composed in an extensive distillery and a brewery. The district is partly arable and partly pastoral; the soil of the southern portion is fertile, but that of the northern shallow and less fruitful. The market is held every third Tuesday. Acreage, 8,102; population in 1881, 2,254 and in 1891, 2,019, of which number 1,321 were returned for the town.

METHLICK parish, 6 miles from Arnage railway station, about 7½ miles east-south-east from Fyvie, the same distance north from Old Meldrum and 22 north-north-west from Aberdeen, is bounded by Fyvie on the west, New Deer on the north, Savoch and Ellon on the east and Tarves on the south; it extends nine miles in length by upwards of four in breadth; it is in Buchan poor combination and Ellon small debt court. The district is intersected throughout its extent from the north-west to the south-east by the river Ythan, on the banks of which are some thriving plantations. Close to the village the river is crossed by an iron bridge. Two miles from the village is Haddo House, a seat of the Earl of Aberdeen, surrounded with extensive parks in which are many fine drives and grand old trees; the house is in the Palladian style, but has been frequently added to and altered, the present earl having built a chapel on the north side and large additions on the south side. The parish church, built by the Earl of Aberdeen (the sole heritor of the parish) in 1867, at a cost of over £4,000, is in the Norman Gothic style, after plans by Messrs. Brown and Wardrop, Edinburgh, and is cruciform: the building consists of nave, transept, apse, organ gallery and vestry with a saddle-back tower: there are sittings for 920 persons. The old church, built in 1780, is now in ruins and covered with ivy, and in the old churchyard is the mausoleum of the Aberdeen family. Fairs are held in the village on the first Thursday after the 11th of May and the first Wednesday after the 18th of November.

Area, 14,842 acres; rateable value, £10,608; population of the parish in 1881, 2,162 and in 1891, 2,067.

MINTLAW, see LONGSIDE.

MONQUHITTER is a parish 6 miles from Turriff railway station, extending about 9 miles from north to south and 6 from east to west, bounded by Turriff on the west, King Edward on the north, New Deer on the east and Fyvie on the south, in Buchan poor combination and Turriff small debt court. The surface is uneven and arable in the lower parts. The district was once very mossy and moorish, but has been considerably improved. The parish is watered by two small rivers, one of these discharges itself into the Ythan and the other into the Deveron; both abound with trout. The chief landowner is Richard William Lumsden esq. of Auchry and Bridge of Allan. Acreage, 17,433; rateable value, £11,878; population in 1881, 2,794, and in 1891, 2,220.

Cuminestown is a considerable village in Monquhitter parish. The parish church, built in 1868, is a plain stone building with small belfry: there are sittings for 900 persons. Garmond is also a small village in the same parish.

Post, Telegraph & Money Order Office & Savings Bank & Annuity & Insurance Office, Cuminestown; Miss Lucy Lamb, postmistress. Deliveries, 11.30 a.m. & 5.30 p.m.; dispatches, 6.45 a.m. & 4.35 p.m. Letters for Cuminestown, Garmond & Montquhitter should be addressed "via Turriff"

MONYMUSK parish is about 7 miles long and from 4 to 5 broad, 8 miles south-west from Inverurie, in the small debt court district of Aberdeen. The Alford branch of the Great North of Scotland line has a station about half a mile from the village, also one at Tillyfourie, 3 miles distant. Monymusk House, the seat of Sir A. H Grant bart. is situated on the right bank of the Don, environed by fine plantations; the estate is remarkable for its fine timber, some larch and fir trees near the river being of unusual size. Pitfichie Castle, now in ruins, is finely situated. The village is built in the form of a square, with the parish church in the centre, a part of which is believed to have been erected about the time of Malcolm Canmore: there was formerly an ancient priory beside it. Area, 10,728 acres; rateable value, £8,008; population in 1881, 1,155, and in 1891, 1,025.

NEWHILLS,

WITH AUCHMILL, BUXBURN, BANKHEAD & STONEYWOOD.

NEWHILLS parish is of an irregular hexagonal form, 6½ miles in diameter, distant from Aberdeen 5 miles north-west, the river Don forming its boundary on the north-east, in the Aberdeen small debt court district. The general appearance of the country is hilly, and towards the west becomes mountainous.

Auchmill is a village in the above parish, 4 miles from Aberdeen. Near the village are the extensive paper mills of Messrs. Alexander Pirie & Sons Limited and Messrs. Charles Davidson & Sons Limited.

Buxburn, Bankhead and Stoneywood are also small villages adjoining, at each of which are stations on the Great North of Scotland railway: Buxburn is also the station for Auchmill. In the parish are also large granite quarries. The parish has an area of 10,282 acres; rateable value, £27,685, and in 1881 contained a population of 5,480, and in 1891, 5,526.

OYNE, a parish in Garioch district, is of an irregular figure, stretching about 6 miles in length, by from 2 to 3 in breadth, the high hill of Benachie lying within it, and having a station on the Great North of Scotland line. Aberdeen is about 25 miles south-east and Huntly 14 north-west. Petmathen House, the residence of Major Thomas Leith, is within a short distance of the railway station, and near to it is West Hall, the seat of Mrs. Disney Leith. In this parish are the ruins of an old castle, believed to have belonged to the family of Leith. A detached part of the parish (Tillyfour) lies along the river Don: here is Tillyfour Castle, the seat of Francis Robert Gregson esq. J.P. Acreage, 10,131; population in 1881, 962, and in 1891, 883.

PETERCULTER parish is about 12 miles in length and 4 in breadth and is situated 7½ miles south-west from Aberdeen. The surface is rugged and uneven, with hills and valleys, rocky eminences and marshy flats interspersed. On the banks of the Dee and its tributary streams, however, the soil is tolerably fertile. On the summit of the hills of Oldtown are the remains of a rectangular encampment. The Dee Side Railway Company have three stations in the parish, in which are also the paper mills belonging to the Culter Mills Paper Co. Limited, employing about 350 hands. The area of the parish is 10,547 acres. Population in 1891, 2,052; ecclesiastical parish, 2,001. Cults, a village, has been transferred from this parish to Aberdeen city parish, under the Aberdeen Municipal Extension Act.

PETERHEAD,

WITH THE VILLAGES OF BUCHANHAVEN, BURNHAVEN, INVERNETTIE AND INVERUGIE.

PETERHEAD is a considerable sea-port town, burgh of barony, and parish, within the district of Buchan, and is the terminus of the Formartine and Buchan section of the Great North of Scotland railway, opened 1862, 141 miles north-by-west of Edinburgh, 34 south-east of Banff, 32 north-east of Aberdeen, 18 south-south-east of Fraserburgh and 524 from London. It is situated upon a peninsula (the most easterly point of Scotland), about a mile south of the mouth of the river Ugie, the isthmus between the peninsula and the mainland being only eight hundred yards wide. The town is built in the form of a cross and is divided into four districts called the Kirktown, Ronheads, Keith Inch and Peterhead proper. The houses, which are built of granite (so abundant in various parts of the country), are many of them commodious and elegant. The town is gas-lighted and supplied with excellent spring water. In years gone by the medicinal wells of Peterhead were much frequented; the waters are chalybeate and are abundant in the town and neighbourhood. Fossil shells in great quantities and of various kinds are found in the neighbourhood, 20 or 30 feet above the level of the sea, and these of kinds not to be met with in an original state; many curious pebbles also may be picked up on the shore. Numerous elegant buildings have within recent years been erected in the centre of the town. The Court House, a handsome building of granite, is in Queen street, in which the sheriff's court is held on the three first Fridays in the month. Town House, the head of the principal street, is an elegant edifice, 60 feet long and 49 feet wide, with a spire 129 feet high and a fine illuminated clock: the town hall, one of the apartments, is a spacious room. The Music Hall buildings form a large and beautiful pile, comprising upper and lower halls, small halls and convenient ante-rooms, with shops on the ground floor. Peterhead was founded and erected into a burgh of barony by George, Earl Marischal, in the year 1593; but in 1715 it was forfeited by this family in consequence of their adherence to the unfortunate house of Stuart, and purchased, with the neighbouring lands, by the York Building Co. in 1726, but that concern being dissolved, it was bought by the trustees or governors of the Merchant Maiden Hospital, Edinburgh, for £3,000, who are still the superiors.

Peterhead is governed by a provost and magistrates and town council. The nomination of the magistrates was, by charter, vested in the superiors of the town and the magistrates and councillors, the latter of whom were formerly elected by a majority of the feuars, but since the elective franchise was conferred upon the burgh, the magistrates and councillors are elected by the householders therein. The town now enjoys the privileges of a parliamentary burgh, and in conjunction with Kintore, Elgin, Cullen, Banff and Inverurie, returns one member for Parliament for the Elgin district. Upon the county of Aberdeen being divided into an Eastern and Western division, and returning two members to Parliament, Peterhead was created the returning burgh for the eastern division, and is known as the capital of Buchan or East Aberdeenshire. In front of the Town Hall and facing the main street, on a pedestal of granite, stands a statue in bronze of Field-Marshal James Francis Edward Keith; the pedestal bears the following inscription:—"Field-Marshal Keith, born at Inverugie, 1696; killed at the battle of Hochkirchen, 14 October, 1758. The gift of William I. King of Prussia, to the town of Peterhead. August, 1868. Probus vixit, fortis obit."

For a long series of years the harbours of Peterhead have been held to be of great importance. So early as 1661, in the first Parliament of King Charles II. an Act was passed "for a contribution for repairing the harbours of Peterhead." In 1705 an Act of the Scottish Privy Council was obtained for a voluntary contribution within all the parish churches of the three Lothians and bewest of the Forth, for building and repairing these harbours; and in 1729, and again in 1739, the convention of royal burghs authorised a voluntary contribution throughout all the royal burghs in Scotland for the same purpose. In 1807, and again in 1827, Acts of Parliament were obtained for their further improvements. In recent years very large sums have been expended on the harbours, and when the contemplated works are finished, Peterhead will possess one of the finest and safest harbours to be found along the whole of the east coast of Scotland. The harbours are managed by a rotary board of trustees, a certain number of whom are elected annually from among the proprietors of land and heritages in the burgh, the ship owners and shore due ratepayers. The revenue can be applied only to the maintenance of the harbours, the payment of the interest of the debt, and the liquidation of the principal. In 1884 Peterhead was selected as the site of a national harbour of refuge for the Scotch coast, to be constructed by convict labour, and a large convict prison has since been erected, to which all Scotch convicts are now drafted. The Harbour of Refuge Works are also being prosecuted on an extensive scale; considerable progress has been made with the breakwater up to the present (1896) year, quarrying operations, laying of lines and other preliminary work being practically finished. The South Bay, which is the site of the projected harbour of refuge, has good anchorage. Peterhead possesses the grand advantage of north and south harbours, respectively of 11 and 7 acres in extent, communicating by means of a canal or channel, over which is a cast-iron swing bridge, upon the construction of which upwards of £8,000 was expended. In the north harbour there are two graving or dry docks, and at the entrance to both harbours are good lighthouses. Adjacent to the north harbour is also the recently built boat harbour of Port Henry. The number of sailing and steam ships entering the port with cargoes and in ballast in 1894 was 142, tonnage 35,323, as compared with 121 and 24,867 tons in 1892, and most of these were steam ships: cleared, 233 of 51,545 tons in 1894 and in 1892, 208, tonnage 45,877: the number engaged in the coasting trade were —entered, 862, tonnage 97,239; cleared, 763, 79,663 tons, a considerable increase on 1892; the number of fishing boats registered or belonging to this port under the Sea Fisheries Act, 1868, was in 1894, 475, requiring 2,379 men and boys to work them. The revenue of the harbours in 1800 was only £100, while in 1849 it amounted to £4,000; in 1858 to £4,391 19s. 7d.; in 1875 upwards of £8,000; in 1881 the income was over £10,000, and in 1884 upwards of £11,000; since then, however, owing to the depression in the local fisheries, it has to some extent declined. At one time the community were deeply interested in the whale and seal fisheries, many having their capital largely invested. In the year 1788 one vessel was sent out, and up to 1803 there was no increase; from 1804 to 1814 the number varied from two to eight, and to 1830 from ten to sixteen, but in 1843 it had decreased to nine: after that date the number again increased, but within the last twenty years it has considerably declined, and at present, owing to the exhaustion of the Arctic fishing grounds, the industry is threatened with extinction. The herring fishery, commenced here in 1818 by a joint stock company, has become important, Peterhead having now attained the first rank in this branch of maritime industry. Independent of the fishing and shipping trades, the town enjoys a good local trade. There are also two extensive and prosperous granite polishing establishments, employing upwards of 100 men, and Peterhead granite has attained considerable popularity throughout the world. Between the years 1817 and 1822 inclusive, 35,112 tons of this stone were shipped at Peterhead, chiefly in large blocks, for the docks at London; but since that period its exportation has considerably decreased. The quarries are largely worked by Aberdeen polishing firms.

The Established church, standing at the junction of the south and west roads, founded in 1804, opened in 1806, is a plain stone structure; the front elevation and spire are from plans by Sir Christopher Wren: the interior has been remodelled, and there are sittings for about 600 persons.

The East church (quoad sacra), in Queen street, was formed in 1877, and is Gothic in style: there are sittings for about 600 persons.

The Episcopal church is an edifice in the design of which the architect has displayed considerable taste: it is in the Gothic style, and was built in 1814: there are sittings for 675 persons.

The governors of the Merchant Maiden

Hospital, of Edinburgh, proprietors of the estate at Peterhead, have laid out and enclosed a large space as a public cemetery.

Amongst the literary institutions of the town may be mentioned the Reading Society, established in 1808, and a Mechanics' Institution, founded in 1836. The library belonging to the Reading Society numbers upwards of 5,000 volumes, and the library of the Mechanics' Institute about 1,000. There is also a solicitors' library. The Public Library's Act was adopted in 1890, and a building erected in 1892 in St. Peter street, in which is contained the Arbuthnot Museum and Art Gallery, reading room, lending library, reference library and recreation room, the whole costing about £6,000: the museum, a very valuable one, collected by the late Adam Arbuthnot esq. by whom it was bequeathed to the town, contains a great variety of specimens from the animal and mineral kingdoms, while the collection of coins is one of the most complete to be met with; the museum is under the care and management of the Public Library Committee: the lending library, containing over 7,000 volumes, is much used, while the news room is largely taken advantage of by all classes: the foundation stone was laid 8th August, 1891, by Mrs. Carnegie, wife of the famous millionaire, Mr. Andrew Carnegie, of Pittsburg, who has contributed handsomely to the funds of the building.

There are also several excellent schools. There are two newspapers published here—the "Peterhead Sentinel," established in 1856 (the proprietor, Mr. David Scott, having published several interesting works connected with the district), and the "Buchan Observer," both creditably conducted, and enjoying an encouraging circulation in the district of Buchan; the "Sentinel" is published on Tuesdays and Fridays, and the "Observer" on Tuesdays only. The market is held on Friday, and the fairs on the third Tuesday in May and the second Tuesday in November. The population of the burgh was in 1881, 10,953, and in 1891, 12,226, of which 5,000 are within the East Church district; 1,602 are parliamentary voters; 3,604 of the parish population are beyond the limits of the burgh.

Buchanhaven is a small fishing village within the burgh of Peterhead, the nearest railway station being at that place, half a mile distant.

Burnhaven and Invernettie are two small villages in the parish of Peterhead, situated about half way between that town and Boddam, and chiefly inhabited by fishermen. At Invernettie are the very extensive works of the Glenugie Distillery. The nearest railway station is at Peterhead, 2 miles distant.

Inverugie is a village with a station on the Great North of Scotland railway, about 2½ miles west from Peterhead. Here are the ruins of Inverugie Castle, the walls of which are still standing. The ruined castle of Ravenscraig stands on the opposite side of the river, about a quarter of a mile from Inverugie Castle; this is built upon a rock, and is a good specimen of the ancient Scottish baronial style, in the square form so common to the beginning of the 13th century, and its walls are of such strength that, previous to the use of artillery, they would have rendered the place impregnable. See St. Fergus, p. 130.

PITCAPLE, see CHAPEL OF GARIOCH.

PITSLIGO, see ROSEHEARTY.

NEW PITSLIGO is a quoad sacra parish formed in 1853 from Aberdour, New Deer, Strichen and Tyrie, in Buchan poor combination and Peterhead small debt court. The village, about 4 miles from Strichen railway station, was founded in 1787 by Sir William Forbes. The weaving of linen was introduced here, but since power loom weaving began it gradually decreased, and at the present time there is nothing but the weaving of pillow lace. Near the village are several good quarries of granite, largely used for building purposes in Buchan district. The Established church, standing on the hill of Terlundie, built in 1804 and rebuilt in 1853, is a plain stone structure with belfry on the south end, and is noted for its fine accoustics: there are sittings for 850 persons. The Free church, built shortly after the disruption (1846), is a plain stone structure, and has sittings for 350 persons. The Episcopal church (St. John the Evangelist) was erected in 1871 on the site of the former building, at a cost of about £4,000, from designs by Mr. George Street R.A.; it is in the Early English style and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transept and crypt: it has sittings for 450 persons. The Congregational church, built in 1862, has sittings for 250 persons. The population in 1891 was 2,433.

RATHEN parish (and a station on a section of the Great North of Scotland railway) is about 3½ miles south from Fraserburgh, and is about 8 miles long with a medium of 2 in breadth, in Buchan poor combination and Fraserburgh small debt court. The parish church, built in 1870, is a granite and freestone building, with spire at south-west corner, and has sittings for 650 persons: the south aisle of the old church, which is several hundred years old, is still standing, and is supposed to have been a Roman Catholic place of worship, the niche for the Elements being still extant in the east wall. The chief landowners are Col. F. M. Fraser and William F. Cordiner esq. There are two castles in ruins, which seem to have been places of considerable strength. This parish is comparatively destitute of growing timber, though from large masses of oak being occasionally dug up from morasses, it must have been more thickly wooded. The area is 9,587 acres; population in 1881, 2,825, and in 1891, 2,627.

RAYNE parish lies on the left bank of the Urie, betwixt Culsalmond on the north-west and Daviot and the Chapel of Garioch on the south-east, and extends about 4½ miles from the Urie, by a breadth of from 2 to 4 miles. Except a small eminence, covered with heath, on the north side of the parish, the surface is flat, with a few rising spots on the banks of the Urie, and is ornamented by plantations. In the central part of the parish stands the village of Rayne, and on the public road along the Urie is the village of Old Rayne, 2 miles from Oyne railway station, 25 miles north-west from Aberdeen and 9 north-west from Inverurie. An annual fair is held on the second Wednesday in August. The small village of Meikle Wartle (or Warthill) is about 2½ miles east from the Kirk of Rayne and half-a-mile distant from Wartle railway station. The area of the parish is 7,885 acres; population in 1881, 1,284, and in 1891, 1,226.

RHYNIE AND ESSIE.

RHYNIE and ESSIE form a united parish in the district of Strathbogie, comprehending an area of 30 square miles, and bounded on the north by the barony of Gartly, on the south by Auchindoir and on the west by Cabrach, in the Huntly small debt court district. The centre may be about 10 miles south from Huntly. Gartly is the nearest railway station, 4 miles distant. The soil is rich and fertile on the banks of the Bogie; towards the hills it is light and gravelly, yet productive. Feeing markets are held on the Mondays before the 28th of May and the 28th Nov., and cattle markets from November to May, on the Saturday before the fourth Monday in each month, and the day after Keith in September and the day after Kennethmont in October. The only antiquity in this parish worthy of notice is a vitrified fort on the top of Noth Hill. In 1881 the parish, which covers an area of 12,897 acres, contained a population of 1,126 persons, and in 1891, 1,043.

ROSEHEARTY AND PITSLIGO PARISH,

WITH THE VILLAGES OF SANDHAVEN, PITTULIE AND ARDLAW.

ROSEHEARTY is a maritime village and burgh of barony, in the parish of Pitsligo, Buchan poor combination and Fraserburgh small debt court, 4½ miles west from Fraserburgh and 18 east from Banff. It has a good harbour, capable of admitting vessels of from 80 to 100 tons. The chief imports are coals and salt, and it exports fish. Although inconsiderable in size, it is a burgh of barony by charter of Charles II. dated July 13th, 1681.

Post, Telegraph & Money Order Office & Savings Bank & Annuity & Insurance Office; Alexander Mitchell, postmaster. Letters received through Fraserburgh. Deliveries, 10.40 a.m. & 4.10 p.m.; dispatches, 9.50 a.m. & 4.35 p.m

Pitsligo parish lies in the district of Buchan, on the sea coast, betwixt New Aberdour on the west and Fraserburgh on the east, commencing about 2 miles west of Kinnaird Head, and 4½ miles from Fraserburgh railway station. The land is generally fertile, and the face of the country level. Pitsligo Castle, formerly the seat of Lord Pitsligo (a title in the Forbes family), is an ancient structure, now in ruins, surrounded with extensive gardens. Pittulie Castle, half-a-mile east, once in possession of the Cummins family, is also now in ruins. The labouring portion of the population are principally employed in fishing. The Established church, originally built in 1632, and rebuilt in 1890, is a plain granite building, Gothic in style: there is a beautiful carved oak screen to the Pitsligo aisle, removed from the old church, where it was placed in 1634 by the first Lord Pitsligo: this aisle and the pulpit are panelled with carved woodwork, also taken from the old church: it has sittings for 520 persons.

Sandhaven and Pittulie are two small villages, both situated between Kinnaird Head and Rosehearty Point, inhabited chiefly by fishermen. There is a good harbour at Sandhaven, which has been considerably enlarged and improved, £20,000 having been expended on it by the proprietor, the Hon. Charles J. R. H. S. Forbes Trefusis.

Ardlaw is a small hamlet in this parish.

In 1891 the parish of Pitsligo, the acreage of which is 4,641, contained a population of 2,582, and in 1891, 2,290, of which 1,236 were residents of Rosehearty.

ST. FERGUS, a village and parish on the coast of Aberdeenshire, is in that part of the district of Buchan which formerly belonged to the county of Banff, in Buchan poor combination and Peterhead small debt court. It is bounded on the east by the North Sea and on the south by the small river Ugie, which separates it from Peterhead. The village is 5 miles north from that town and 13 south-east from Fraserburgh. The Established church, built in 1849, is a plain stone building with belfry on west end: there are sittings for 677 persons. There is also a Free church and a Baptist chapel in the parish. James Francis Edward Keith, field-marshal in the Prussian service, and killed at Hochkirch, 1758, of whom a statue in bronze was presented to the town of Peterhead by King William I. of Prussia, was born in 1696 at Inverugie Castle, the ruins of which stand in a bend of the river. Acreage of the parish, 8,856; population in 1881, 1,527, and in 1991, 1,318.

SLAINS (which includes the ancient parish of Forvie) is on the sea coast, and lies north-east of the old burgh of Newburgh and separated therefrom by the navigable river Ythan. It is about 5 miles east from the burgh of Ellon, on the old turnpike road between Aberdeen and Peterhead, and is bounded on the east by the German Ocean, the coast here being rocky, with many caves, one of which is 200 feet in length.

Forvie was once a parish, and the ruins of the old church may still be seen there. Tradition tells that some 400 years since it was buried by sand blown from the sea during an easterly gale—hence the "Sands of Forvie." Just a sandy desert, partly covered with bent, lies directly south from Collieston, and in the immediate neighbourhood. The ruins of Slains Castle, dismantled about 1594, are on a rock 120 feet above the sea and about 2 miles north of St. Catharine's Dub, where it is supposed that the "St. Catharine," one of the ships of the Spanish Armada, was wrecked in 1588. The Established church was erected in 1806, to which the manse was in close proximity, but a few years since a new manse was erected at a little distance from the church and churchyard. The area is 9,124 acres; rateable value, £6,891; population in 1891, 1,279.

Collieston and Oldcastle are villages, and at the former a harbour is being constructed. It is largely frequented by visitors in summer for sea bathing &c.

STRICHEN AND TECHMUIRY.

STRICHEN is a parish, with a station on the Formartine and Buchan section of the Great North of Scotland railway, 33½ miles north of Aberdeen, 20 west of Banff, 16 west-by-north from Turriff, 15 north-by-west from Peterhead and 9 south from Fraserburgh, situated on the north bank of the Ugie, Buchan poor combination and Peterhead small debt court. The village is well supplied with water, and there is also a gas company, but the streets are not lighted. The town house is a structure erected in the year 1816 by the late Mrs. Fraser, of Strichen, at an expense of £2,000. On the side of one of the hills in this parish are the figures of a horse and a stag, formed by large pieces of stone, which have a singular effect at a distance. Upon the same hill is a hunter's lodge, on which is inscribed, "This hunter's lodge, Rob Gibb commands." About one mile south-west from the village is Strichen House, the property of the late George Alexander Baird esq. of Strichen and Stichill, a substantial building in the Gothic style, erected in 1820-2; it is surrounded by an extensive park, embracing the finest woods and trees in Buchan district. The Established church is a plain stone building, built in 1799, and remodelled and re-seated internally about 1884, and has sittings for 900 persons. The Episcopal church of All Saints is a small structure in the Early English style, and consists of nave and chancel: it was built in 1861, consecrated in 1868, enlarged and re-consecrated in 1891, and has sittings for 200 persons. The Free church is a stone building, and was opened in July, 1894: it is in the Gothic style, and will seat 400 persons. Fairs are held here on the first Thursday of every month. Acreage of parish, 10,183; population in 1881, 2,348, in 1891, 2,171; ecclesiastical parish, in 1881, 1,204, and in 1891, 1,902.

The district of Techmuiry, which was until 1890 part of the parish of Fraserburgh, was transferred in that year by the Boundary Commissioners to the parish of Strichen; it contains a school under the management of the School Board of Strichen; it is also used as a preaching station in connection with the Established church of Fraserburgh.

TARLAND parish is in the Western division of the county and in the Aberdeen small debt court district. The village, which is a burgh of barony, is 31 miles west from Aberdeen, 6 north-west from Aboyne and 12 north-north-east from Ballater, situated nearly in the centre of the district of Cromar, the nearest railway stations being Aboyne, 6 miles and Dinnet, 5 miles distant. The lands about here are mostly level, but the greater proportion of the parish is mountainous, and the seasons are cold; the woods which have been planted will, however, be the means of materially ameliorating the latter. A small rivulet falls into the river Dee, near Aboyne. Branches respectively of the Union Bank of Scotland Limited and the Town and County Bank Limited are established in the burgh. Fairs are held on the first Wednesday in January, second Wednesday in February, second Wednesday in March, third Wednesday in May, first Wednesday in June, Friday after St. Sairs in July, third Wednesday in November and first Wednesday in December. The principal landowner is the Earl of Aberdeen. Acreage, 17,381; rateable value, £4,070; population of the parish in 1891, 688.

TARVES, a parish, lies between Ellon and Old Meldrum, the village being 4½ miles north-east distant from the latter place, and is in Buchan poor combination. The nearest railway stations are Old Meldrum, 5 miles and Udny, 6 miles distant. The parish is bounded by Methlick on the north and Old Meldrum on the west, and is watered in its eastern quarter by the river Ythan; its length is about 9 miles and its breadth 6, and embraces an area of 16,303 acres. The general outline of the parish is a flat surface, interspersed with some hills of inferior altitude. The soil is diversified in its composition, but is for the most part fertile, and there are some fine plantations on the verge of the river. In the village is the parish church and public school. Craigdam is a hamlet in this parish. Population in 1881, 2,558, and in 1891, 2,344; ecclesiastical parish, 1,700.

TURRIFF is a free burgh of barony (of which the Duke of Fife is the feudal superior), the seat of a presbytery and the capital of the parish of that name, with a station on the Macduff section of the Great North of Scotland railway, 34½ miles north-north-west of Aberdeen, 17 north-north-west of Old Meldrum and 11 south-south-east of Banff, situate on a tributary stream of the Deveron, near that river. It is in Buchan poor combination. Its charter, dated the 10th of March, 1511, was granted by James IV. in favour of Thomas Dickson, prebend of Turriff. By this the inhabitants were entitled to hold a weekly market on the Sabbath day, and three fairs annually, each to continue eight days. A sheriff's small debt court is held quarterly in the Town Hall, and justice of peace and police courts when required. In 1858 the householders adopted certain provisions of the Police Improvement (Scotland) Act of 1850, and latterly almost the entire provisions of the more recent Act of 1862, but the affairs of the burgh are now regulated and administered under the Burgh Police (Scotland) Act, 1892, by nine commissioners of police, three of whom are elected annually. These commissioners elect from their own number a provost and two junior magistrates, who in their turn appoint a procurator fiscal, and within their jurisdiction exercise in all cases of petty offences the functions of sheriff and magistrates of police. Turriff is one of the most flourishing little towns in the north of Aberdeenshire. The town is clean and neat, and gas-lighted by a joint-stock company, formed in 1837. In the same year a branch of the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited was established here, and subsequently three other banks; one of these, the North of Scotland Bank Limited, has erected, at a cost of about £2,000, a handsome building of red sandstone, at the junction of Main street with High street, the style of architecture being the old Scotch baronial: the tower contains a clock having dials facing north, south and west, which is fitted up with self-lighting apparatus and serves as a town's clock. There are several inns and posting houses. A Cottage Hospital has been erected by the Commissioners of the burgh and the Turriff district committee of the County Council, for the joint use of the burgh and district, at a cost of over £1,500; it contains eight beds, and is to be used for infectious diseases. The parish church, built in 1794, is a plain stone edifice, slightly Gothic in style, and has sittings for 1,400 persons. The church of Turriff in the middle ages belonged to the Abbey of Arbroath. The original church, now in ruins, stands on the site of an earlier Columban church. The patron saint of the parish is St. Congan, a follower of St. Columba. The Episcopal church, dedicated to St. Congan, was built in 1862, and consists of chancel, nave and a tower with spire 80 feet high: the windows are stained, and the floor is laid with Minton tiles: there are sittings for 300 persons. The Free church, built in 1844, is a plain stone building, and has sittings for 500 persons: the manse adjoins the church, and has a good garden. The vicinity of Turriff is of an agreeable character, and among its residents are several families of distinction. The Trot of Turriff was fought between the Covenanters and Royalists in 1639, and was the first blood shed in the great Civil war. Within the parish are the ruins of Towie Barclay Castle, the seat of the ancient family of the Barclays, the banqueting hall of which is still in perfect preservation. General Barclay De Tolly, the famous Russian general, was a member of this family (whose father emigrated to Russia and soon rose to eminence); he led the Russian army on the occasion of Napoleon's disastrous retreat from Moscow. The chief landowners are Ainslie D. Ainslie esq. of Delgaty Castle; Major Garden A. Duff, Hatton Castle; Henry A. Farquhar Spottiswood esq. Muiresk; Alexander Stuart esq. Laithers; and Major Francis E. R. Pollard Urquhart, Craigston Castle, who reside in this parish, and Sir Robert J. Abercrombie bart. of Forglen. Fairs are held on the second and fourth Wednesday in each month, also Saturday before the 27th of May (feeing market) and Saturday before the 23rd of November. Rateable value, £24,839; the population of the parish of Turriff, the acreage of which is 18,386, was in 1881, 4,343, and in 1891, 4,253, of which the town contained 2,341.

Post, Telegraph & Money Order Office & Savings Bank; George Alexander, postmaster. Deliveries, 7.30, 9.40 & 11.35 a.m. & 4 p.m.; dispatches, to Aberdeen & the South, 5.50 & 8.15 a.m. & 12.25, 3.15 & 4.10 p.m.; to Banff & West, 10.30 a.m. & 2.50 & 6.50 p.m. No arrival or dispatch on sunday

TYRIE parish extends about 10 miles in length by 4½ in breadth, in Buchan poor combination and Peterhead small debt court, and comprises an area of 11,182 acres. The surface is agreeably diversified with hill and dale, heath, moss, meadow, corn land and grass parks. On the northern verge of the parish is the church of Tyrie, an ancient structure, supposed to have been originally erected about the year 1004, when the Thane of Buchan routed the Danish army upon the neighbouring eminences. The present church, built in 1800, is a small stone building, and will seat about 300 persons. The population of the entire parish of Tyrie was in 1881, 3,391, and in 1891, 2,843 (of which 2,436 belongs to New Pitsligo, which see); ecclesiastical parish, 795.

Boyndlie is a part of the parish of Tyrie, and is a large farming district. Boyndlie is the seat of John C. M. Ogilvie-Forbes esq. J.P. The nearest railway station is Strichen, 5 miles distant.

ARGYLLSHIRE,

Or, as it is frequently written, Argyleshire, and known to the Latin geographers as "Argathelia," is a large county in the south-western extremity of the Highlands, the second largest county in Scotland, and third largest in the United Kingdom, extending 115 miles from north, near Loch Eil, to the southern point Sanda, an island lying off the Mull of Cantyre, with a width, excluding its most westerly islands, of about 70 miles. It is bounded on the north by Inverness, east by Perth, Dumbarton, Renfrew, Bute and Ayr, and on the south and west by the sea; its coast is very much indented by bays, inlets and sea lochs, and the coastline measures nearly 700 miles: this includes the numerous islands belonging to this county, of which the largest are Islay, Jura and Mull. The area comprises 2,056,402 acres. The population in 1891 was 75,003 (36,771 males and 38,232 females), and in 1881, 76,468; the inhabited houses were 15,680 in 1891, and 15,481 in 1881.

The early history is to some extent that of the kingdom of Scotland. The Scots, who were reputed to be a Spanish sept, settled in Ireland, then known as Scotia, having in the third century sent out an expedition under Cairbre Ruadh, son of Conan II. king of the Scots; this army landed in Cantyre, in the county, and founded Dalruadhain (now Campbeltown), but the Scots were afterwards driven back to Ireland, only to return in the fifth century under Lorn Angus and Fergus, sons of Ere, from the first of whom a large division of the county took its name; these Scots, subsequently conquering the North and South Picts, and Strath Clyde Britons, became kings of what was from that period styled Scotia, or Scotland. Later on, when they moved their seat of government to a more central position, the county of Dalruadah (or Argyll) fell under the dominion of the Macdonalds of the Isles, who assumed royal powers, holding parliaments, and enacting laws, until the Bruces brought the disorderly clans into some kind of subordination. The ancient inhabitants of the Highlands of Argyllshire prided themselves on their endurance of hunger and fatigue, and they were passionately fond of music and poetry. In former ages the western coast of Argyllshire was perpetually exposed to descents and depredations of the Danes and the Irish, who could not penetrate any considerable distance into the interior; if an enemy landed, or was seen hovering on the coast, in the course of a few hours the whole country was alarmed, and the men repaired to the shore completely armed. The men celebrated by Ossian were a militia, established in Argyllshire, for the purpose of defending the country in any sudden emergency. The Stone of Destiny, now in Westminster Abbey, London, on which the Scottish kings were crowned, was brought from Tara to Iona before being deposited at Scoone, and it was in the Isle of Iona that Christianity was first introduced into Scotland.

Soil, Surface, Produce, Climate &c.—The surface of this county is like most other parts of the Highlands, mountainous. Glencroe and Glencoe are, perhaps, amongst the most picturesque valleys that can be found. The coast is rocky, but indented with navigable bays and islets, which afford good harbours for shipping. Its western coast, lying as it does clear of the northern extremity of Ireland, is exposed where not sheltered by outlying islands to the full force of the Atlantic. From the nature of the county, agriculture is not widespread, but in certain districts in Lorne, near Campbeltown, and in Islay, farming is favourably pursued. The staple corn crop is oats and barley, and large quantities of excellent potatoes are grown. The mountains feed numbers of sheep, and the cattle bred are of the hardy Highland type and reared for exportation to the Lowland markets. Limestone is abundant, and granite is occasionally met with, whilst near Campbeltown is worked a remarkably productive seam of coal. Lead is wrought in Islay, but the chief mineral is slate, of which there are several quarries, the most extensive being at Ballachulish, and in Easdale, Seil and Luing islands. In the beginning of the eighteenth century, much of the natural wood was cut up and sold by the proprietors, at prices by no means proportionate to the injury perpetrated on the face of the country. The number of acres in tillage bears an insignificant proportion to those occupied by pasture, wood, hills, lakes and rivers. The climate of the lower parts of Argyllshire is mild and temperate, but in the upper inland districts the atmosphere is severe, and on the tops of many of the hills the snow often lies for months, giving the country a cheerless aspect, even in tolerably mild, open weather. In the valleys the air is of a more mild nature, these places being protected from the north and north-west winds, and having generally a southerly exposure. The central districts are more subject to rains than the coast, from the proximity of high hills, whose summits attract and break the clouds from the Atlantic. The most considerable elevations in the county are:—Ben Starao, 3,541 feet; Stob Gabhar, 3,565; Ben Fhionlaidh, 3,139; Ben Doirean, 3,523; Ben Cruachan, 3,611; Ben Soulcaird, 3,053; Claeh Leathael, 3,602, all in the north-eastern district; Ben Inne, 3,318 feet and Ben Arther, 2,891, on the eastern border; Paps of Jura, 2,412 feet; Ben Resipol, 2,774; Ben Mere, 3,185; Ben Buy, 2,352 in the south and north-west. The chief crops are oats, 18,212 acres; turnips, 5,630; potatoes, 4,861; barley, 1,748; rye, 420; hay, 24,794. The total corn crops being 20,506 acres, and green crops, 10,713; land under grass, 78,097; permanent pasture, 75,918; total area of land and water, 2,025,154 acres; mountain and heath land in 1894, 1,469,247 acres The live stock in 1894 comprised 6,986 horses; 61,341 cattle; 1,023,351 sheep and 4,331 pigs.

The Manufactures of Argyllshire are on a very small scale. The principal article made for exportation is whisky, which is of a remarkably fine quality. Campbeltown alone boasts about 20 distilleries, and there are others in several parts of the county, for which Glasgow is the depot. Among the other branches of industry may be named net and rope making, and the manufacture of woollen cloth and gunpowder, for which latter there are several extensive works. From the way that the county is intersected by lochs and other water ways, the communication between its insular and mainland portions has been greatly facilitated by steam navigation; and now a very considerable number of steam vessels are constantly employed conveying passengers and goods to and fro throughout the county, and in transporting produce to Glasgow. There is not, at the present day, a bay, a loch, or inlet, but has a daily or a weekly communication with the Lowlands, and the several districts of the country. By this means the farmers are encouraged to fatten stock which they would never otherwise think of rearing, and in agriculture changes are yearly witnessed in the different districts, from the modern improvements in husbandry.

Fishing is also an industry of some importance. The number of boats registered in 1894, at the 3 fishing ports of Ardrishaig, Campbeltown and Oban being 518, with an aggregate tonnage of 2,754 tons, and employing 1,694 hands, while 37 vessels equal to 2,211 tons were registered as being owned at Campbeltown and 3 steamers aggregating 2,729 tons were built in 1894 at the same port.

Rivers, Lakes and Railways.—The county is well watered by rivers (none of which are very large), brooks and lochs, which abound with fish. Loch Fyne is celebrated as furnishing the best herrings of any found on the coast of Scotland, and it was estimated that there were caught in this arm of the sea from twenty to thirty thousand barrels annually; but the "take" has greatly fallen off in later years, the herring having deserted the loch, which has caused the fishing centre to be removed from Tarbert to Campbeltown. Loch Shiel is about 25 miles long, and contains salmon and sea trout. Loch Awe is a beautiful fresh water lake, about 28 miles long and from one to two broad, reckoned the most picturesque lake of any in the Highlands, and possesses many woody islets, among which are seen the ruins of several old castles. Its waters, which abound with salmon, trout and eel, discharge themselves into Loch Etive, a branch of the Atlantic Ocean, at Bonaw Ferry. There are many smaller lochs, some of them situated amidst grand and mountainous scenery. Loch Long is 24 miles in length, and is recorded to have been made use of by the Norwegian invaders. Loch Linnhe is really the beginning of the Caledonian Canal.

The only railway is a branch of the Caledonian line from Tyndrum, where the new West Highland joins it to Oban, on the Firth of Lorne, and the new West Highland railway skirts the eastern border of the county, entering it twice for a short distance.

Divisions &c.—The county is divided into 6 districts—Argyll Proper, Cowal, Islay, Kintyre (or Cantyre), Lorne and Mull. Cowal is divided from Dumbartonshire by Loch Long, and bounded by Loch Fyne on the west; betwixt Loch Fyne and Loch Linnhe, and stretching away to the north, is Lorne; from which, on its south-west quarter, there extends in a southerly direction into the Irish Sea the peninsula of Kintyre. The islands of Mull, Jura, and Islay are divided from the continent, or from each other, merely by narrow sounds, and may be taken from their proximity and accessibility as little else than portions of the mainland. There are other districts of inferior size within the principal ones—as Ardnamurchan, the most westerly point of Sunart; Appin, a piece of Lorne bordering on Loch Linnhe; Glenorchy, another portion of Lorne on its eastern side; and Knapdale, occupying a position between Kintyre and Nether Lorne.

There are 40 civil parishes, in which are 2 royal burghs, Inveraray and Campbeltown; quarter sessions are held at Inveraray, and small debt courts at Inveraray, Campbeltown, Oban, Dunoon, Tobermory, Lochgilphead and Bowmore (Islay); there are 70 ecclesiastical parishes, divided into 7 presbyteries, in the synod of Argyll. The county returns one member to Parliament, the constituency in 1894-5 being 10,471. The burghs of Campbeltown, Inveraray and Oban, in conjunction with Ayr and Irvine, return one member. The county gives the title of Duke to the Duke of Argyll and of Marquess of Lorne (one of the county districts) to his eldest son. The Argyll title dates back to 1457, but the connection of the Campbells with the county is much older. The lordship of Campbell was elevated to the earldom of Argyll in 1457 by James III.; to a Marquisate in 1641 by Charles I., and to a Dukedom in 1701 by William III. The valuation of the county for 1894-5 (exclusive of burghs, railways, and canals) was £423,972.

APPIN, or Port Appin, is a village on the shore of Loch Linnhe, 11 miles north from Oban and 35 north-west of Inveraray, in the united parish of Lismore and Appin and the poor combination of Lorne. There is a ferry here to Lismore island. The nearest railway station is at Connel Ferry on the Stirling and Oban section of the Caledonian line, and there is communication by steamer from Glasgow to Airds pier, Appin. The parish is of great extent, chiefly occupied as grazing farms; the village contains very few houses, and is a mile and a half off the main road. About 5½ miles to the north is Appin House, the seat of the late R. Downie esq. of Appin; this mansion is surrounded by some of the finest timber on the coast. The estate is at present in the hands of trustees. The old parish church, built in 1649, is centrally situated on the Strath of Appin, a little off the high road, a distance of 2 miles from Appin pier. The present parish church was opened in July, 1890. The Episcopal church, Portnacroish, stands a short distance from Rose place, and in its churchyard rest the remains of the Stewarts of Fasnacloich. The Free church, built in 1846, stands on the south side of the bay running in past the Castle of Stalker up to Kinlochlaich, the much admired Strath. On a small island near Portnacroich, full 2 miles north, is the ancient and partly dilapidated castle of Stalker, which is nearly square, of considerable height, and has evidently been a place of some strength; though its area is not extensive, it occupies almost a moiety of the little islet on which it stands; it was the seat of the Stewarts of Appin. Shuna island also contains the ruins of a castle. About half a mile from the pier, situated in a park on the road to Shian, is Airds House, the residence of Robert M'Fie esq. of Airds and Oban, which commands a fine view of the head of Airds Bay. Beyond this, at a distance of a quarter of a mile, is Drimneil House, belonging to Dr. Laurie; and near the village are Barriemore House, the residence of Mrs. Campbell; Achnacone House, that of Alexander Stewart esq. and Kenlochlaich House, D. H. Campbell-Munro esq. This parish includes Glencoe, for which see Ballachulish (South). Robert M'Fie esq. of Airds, Alexander Stewart esq. Achnacone house, Capt. John C. Stewart, Invercreran, Duncan H. Campbell-Munro, of Kenlochlaich, W. M'Alpine Leny, of Duror, Mrs. C. Cameron Campbell, of Callart, George W. Anderson, Ardsheal, and the trustees of the Appin estate are the principal landowners. The population of the Appin portion of the parish in 1891 was 2649; the population of the ecclesiastical parishes being, of Appin 669, of Duror 412, and of St. Munda (Glencoe) 1,480. The area of the united parishes comprises 114,918 acres; rateable value, 17,567, and the population in 1891, 3,242, and in 1881, 2,968.

ARDCHATTAN and MUCKAIRN is a united parish including Duirinish, Eriska and Innischonan islands; it is in the Lorne poor combination; the kirktown of Ardchattan lies close to the north shore of Loch Etive, 5 miles north-east of Oban and 25 south of Fort William; the parish extends 25 miles from north to south by 13 in breadth and is bounded west and north-west by Lismore & Appin, east by Glenorchy and south by Kilrennan and Kilninver, and is bisected from north-east to south-west by the river and Loch of Etive; on the south of the loch are the remains of an ancient priory of the Benedictines, founded in 1232, by M'Coull, ancestor of the Lords of Lorne. Here Bruce is thought to have held a Gaelic council after the battle of Methven. The railway station of Connel Ferry on the Caledonian line is in the south of this parish, and also those of Taynuilt and Loch Awe. Ben Cruachan stands in the south-east of the parish, it is 3,670 feet above the sea level and 20 miles in circumference at its base, the view from its summit includes the whole archipelago of the Western Isles from Islay to Skye. A church was erected at Ardchattan in 1836, at an expense of about £1,000; it contains sittings for 400. Archibald A. L. Campbell esq. of Lochnell, Mrs. Ogilvie, of Barcaldine, and Allan G. Campbell esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 114,916 acres; rateable value, £19,341; population in 1891 was 1,975, and in 1881, 2,005; the population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1891, was, Ardchattan, 1,253, Muckairn, 722.

Muckairn, besides being the joint civil parish with Ardchattan, gives its name to a quoad sacra parish, erected out of the original ecclesiastical parish of Ardchattan and Muckairn.

TAYNUILT is a village, in the united parish of Ardchattan and Muckairn. Here is a station on the Callander and Oban branch of the Caledonian railway, about 13 miles east from Oban, and about 2 miles south of Loch Etive. There is an hotel near the station, and anglers can obtain fishing in the famous salmon river Awe. Two miles east of Taynuilt, where a stone bridge crosses the river Awe, is the scene of Sir Walter Scott's tale of the "Highland Widow," and two miles further is the Pass of Cruachan or Brander, where King Robert Bruce defeated Macdougal of Lorne in 1309.

ACH-NA-CLOICH, in this parish, about 9 miles from Oban, is a station on the Callander and Oban branch of the Caledonian railway. A pier has been erected, from which a steamer runs to the head of Loch Etive.

ARDGOUR is a village on the shore of Loch Linnhe, with a pier for steamers; it is in the civil parish of Kilmallie and the quoad sacra parish of Ballachulish and Ardgour, 9 miles south from Fort William (which is the nearest railway station), and 3 west from Ballachulish; there is a reading and recreation room in the village. The old seat of the Macleans, Ardgour House, is about 1 mile west of the pier of Ardgour and near to the village of Clovullin. At Corran Ferry, where Loch Linnhe narrows to a quarter of a mile in breadth, a lighthouse has been erected. Ben Nevis is distinctly seen from here, and to the right there is a magnificent view of Glencoe.

Kingairloch is a small village in the parish of Ballachulish and Ardgour, and situated 16 miles south-west from Ardgour; it contains an Established church, school, and granite quarries.

The Earl of Morton, Conaglen house; the trustees of the late A. McLean esq. John Bell esq. and William K. Gair esq. are the principal landowners. The rateable value is £4,971; the population of the part of the ecclesiastical parish in Kilmallie in 1891 was 277.

ARDLAMONT, see KILFINAN.

ARDNADAM, see SANDBANK.

ARDNAMURCHAN is a parish and hamlet at the north-western extremity of the county, a part of the parish being in the district of Moidart, in Inverness-shire; it is in the poor combination of Mull, and extends 26 miles from east to west by 7 in breadth; it is bounded by Loch Sunart on the south, Kilmallie on the east and the sea on the north and west, and its coast is considered dangerous, the Atlantic breaking with full force on Ardnamurchan point, which lies exposed between the Islands of Rum and Coll. Upon the point a lighthouse has been erected by the Commissioners of Northern lights, which is of great service to navigation. Dorlin House, the residence of Lord Howard, of Glossop, is situated at Salen, a hamlet in this parish, north of Loch Sunart. The village of Strontian is in the quoad sacra parish of Strontian, partly in this parish and partly in Morven, at the head of Loch Sunart. At Strontian fairs are held in May on Thursday before last Wednesday; June, on Friday after third Thursday (o.s.); August, for lambs, on Wednesday if 12th, if not, following Wednesday; and October, on Thursday before last Wednesday. Kilchoun, near which are the ruins of Mingary Castle, is a village near the entrance to Loch Sunart. Arisaig is a small hamlet on a little harbour of same name on the west coast of Inverness-shire, 35 miles west of Bannavie. The soil of the parish is sterile, but feeds large flocks of sheep and some cattle, and the hills are stated to be rich in minerals. The area of the entire parish comprises 216,969 acres, being 109,410 in this county and 107,559 in Inverness, and the population in 1891 was 3,636, being 2,034 in this county and 1,602 in Inverness, and in 1881 was 4,105 for the entire parish. The ecclesiastical parish of Strontian in 1891 had a population of 674, 614 being in Ardnamurchan.

ARDPATRICK, see KILCALCOMEL AND KILBERRY.

ARDRISHAIG is a quoad sacra parish and small seaport at the southern mouth of the Crinan canal, which connects the Sound of Jura with Loch Fyne, and saves a detour round the mull of Cantyre; the canal is 10 miles in length, the other entrance being at Crinan. Ardrishaig is in the civil parish of South Knapdale and the small debt court district of Loch Gilphead, to which place it serves as a port; it lies 20 miles south-west of Inveraray and 10 north of Tarbert. In addition to a protective pier of 400 yards in length, with a small lighthouse at its extremity, a commodious low-water pier and slip within the harbour, with a depth of seven feet, were erected in 1837 by the Government commissioners of the Crinan canal. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in fishing and curing herrings. In 1894 there were 226 fishing boats, aggregating 952 tons, and employing 974 men and boys, were registered in this port. Steam packets pass through the canal on their way from Glasgow to all parts of the western coast, and by the Caledonian canal to Inverness. The Royal hotel is the principal one, and some villas are let furnished as summer quarters, the increased communication with the south making it a favourite coast residence. The rateable value is £16,245, and in 1891 the population of the ecclesiastical parish was 1,371; the population of the village being 1,258 in 1891 and 1,224 in 1881.

BALLACHANTINE, see KILLEAN AND KILKENZIE.

BALLACHULISH AND GLENCOE.

BALLACHULISH (South) is a village and small port on the southern shore of Loch Leven, close to the entrance to the Loch from Loch Linnke, in the civil parish of Lismore and Appin, and the quoad sacra parish of St. Munda (Glencoe), 10 miles north-east of Appin, 23 north-east of Oban, and 10 south of Fort William. On a small island opposite the village of Ballachulish are the ruins of an old chapel, supposed to have been built by St. Mungo. The island is now used as a burying ground. At Ballachulish South Ferry is an hotel and posting house. About three-quarters of a mile distant, a pier, with waiting room &c.; here the steamers call, and a conveyance from the hotel awaits their arrival. There are very extensive slate quarries at the foot of the Glencoe Hills, which employ about 500 men and boys. In the immediate vicinity, at the entrance of a sequestered valley, is Ballachulish House, the property of Lady Beresford; three miles from which is Ardsheal, the residence of William D. Anderson esq. About a mile above the quarries, on the margin of Loch Leven, is Invercoe House, the residence of Sir Donald Smith K.C.M.G.. The population of Ballachulish in 1891 was 1,045, and in 1881, 1,019, and of ecclesiastical parish of St. Mundas, 1,480 in 1891.

Glencoe is a wild and picturesque mountain pass, on the road from Ballachulish to Dumbarton, and is historically celebrated as being the spot where the massacre of the Macdonalds took place in 1691. There is an Episcopal church and a post office in the village.

BONAW (or Benawe, and formerly Bunaw Ferry), is a scattered village, in the civil parish of Ardchaltan and Muckairn and quoad sacra parishof Muckairn, at the mouth of the river Awe, just where it debouchs into Loch Etive, at the elbow formed by the southern shore as the Loch turns westward, it is 2 miles north from Taynuilt station on the Dalmally and Oban branch of the Caledonian railway, 80 north-west of Glasgow, 12 east or Oban, and 20 north of Inveraray, by Port Sonachan Ferry—but round the head of Loch Awe, by Dalmally, avoiding the ferry, it is 32 miles. In the last century a Lancashire company established an iron furnace here for the conversion of English ore, but this has now been given up, and the principal trade is that of the Bonaw granite quarries, leased by Messrs. J. & A. Gardner & Co. Glasgow, who employ about 200 workmen. Bonaw is much celebrated for its salmon fishery, which affords employment to a considerable number of persons in the season. Large quantities of fish are sent fresh in boxes to Glasgow and other parts of Scotland. The railway has brought an increased number of tourists, and many houses have lately been built. The church of the quoad sacra parish of Muckairn adjoins the village on the road to Inveraray, and was built at the the expense of General D. Campbell, of Lochnell, in 1827, and he also erected the public school. A rude block of granite, the first monument erected in Britain to the memory of Lord Nelson stands on an eminence near the village.

The nearest post office & telegraph & money order office is at Taynuilt

CAMPBELTOWN is a royal and parliamentary burgh, parish and seaport on the east coast of Cantyre; 144 miles west by south of Edinburgh, and 100 south-west of Glasgow by sea, but by land the distance to either city is greater by 36 miles; 76 south-south-west of Inveraray, 37 south of Tarbert, 10 north of Southend and 6 east from Machrihanish Bay (or Saltpans); access to the town is by mail steamer from Glasgow to Tarbert, thence by coach daily or direct steamer from Glasgow. The parish extends 11 miles from north to south by 8 in breadth, bounded east and west by the sea, south by Southend parish and north by those of Saddell and Killean. The burgh is a place of great antiquity, having been a royal residence so early as the fifth century, at which period Fergus the first king of Scotland fixed his residence here, and it continued the seat of his successors till 843. It was then called Dalruhadhain, or the capital of the kingdom Dalruadan, founded by the Scots who came from Ireland under Cairbre Ruadh, a son of Conan II. king of Ireland, and a place on the north side of the present town is still known by the name, now written Dalaruan; a strong castle existed where the principal parish church now stands; but the appellation formerly applied to the site of modern Campbeltown was Cean Lach (i. e. "head of the Loch"), by which name the country people still designate the town in Gaelic; the present name was given to it in honour of the Duke of Argyll when it was made a royal burgh in 1701. The municipal government of the town is vested in a provost, two bailies, a dean of guild, and twelve councillors, this burgh combined with Ayr, Inveraray, Irvine and Oban returns one member to the Imperial parliament. The town is lighted with gas, and the inhabitants are well supplied with water from Lochruan and Crosshill, conducted by pipes into the principal streets. The town is sheltered on the north and south sides by lofty mountains, and has one of the safest harbours in the Western Highlands, possessing a depth from three to fifteen fathoms at low water. The haven is spacious, being nearly two miles in length by one in breadth, and protected at its mouth by the Isle of Davaar, which is joined to the main land on the south side by a bar of sand, visible at low water, nearly half a mile long—the entrance to the bay being from the north. A lighthouse stands on the above island, which is far more efficient than the one which formerly stood on the shore. From the shore, two quays project into the bay, for vessels to load and unload at low water; and there is a third small quay on the opposite side of the loch, adjoining that part of the town called Dalintober. A large fishery trade is carried on, the number of boats registered at this port in 1894 being 264, with an aggregate tonnage of 1,720 tons and employing 668 men and boys, in addition the number of vessels registered as being owned at the port was 37, with a total tonnage of 2,211 tons, and 3 steam vessels, total tonnage 2,729 tons, were built here in 1894. There are branches in the town of the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited, the Clydesdale Bank Limited, the Royal Bank of Scotland, and the Bank of Scotland, besides a bank for savings in Bolgam street, which was established in 1827, under the provisions of the Act 59, George III. cap. 62. The principal trade is distilling whisky, which is carried on by about 20 firms. Next in consequence, and mainly, if not entirely, dependent for its prosperity on the last-named branch, is malting. A woollen factory, a colliery, a net manufactory, a rope walk &c. add to the business importance of the place, whilst its neighbourhood abounds with lime, stone &c. for building and other purposes. Agriculture of late years has risen into great importance. Some of the finest and richest land in this part of Scotland lies to the north and west of the town, and is chiefly the property of the Duke of Argyll and Hector Macneal esq. Steam vessels sail regularly to Glasgow, Greenock and Ayr, and occasionally to the adjacent coast towns, and to Belfast &c. in Ireland; and numerous coasting vessels to Liverpool and other parts of the country. The principal exports are whisky, wool, herrings, fishing nets, live stock, coal, potatoes &c. The imports are barley, timber, grain, yeast, groceries, ironmongery &c. The Town Hall, a convenient building, ornamented by a spire, contains a council chamber, and an assembly and other rooms. The County Building, on Castlehill, opened in 1871, is a fine stone building in the baronial style, and contains a justice of the peace court, sheriff's court, and the fiscal's offices. There is also the custom house, an extensive excise establishment. Campbeltown is the headquarters of the Argyll and Bute Artillery Militia, the staff being permanently stationed here; in the town are also an Artillery Volunteer and a Rifle Volunteer Corps. For the latter a large drill hall, called the "Victoria Hall" in honour of Her Majesty's Jubilee, was erected in 1887, on part of the site of the old bowling green in Bolgam street, having a frontage to Kinloch road of about 70 feet.

The Castlehill church occupies the site of the ancient royal castle and was erected in 1781. The Gaelic church, so named from the language in which the service is rendered, was built in 1807, and a stone spire added in 1836. The United Presbyterian church was erected in 1767, and has a substantial stone tower, in the Gothic style, 150 feet high, raised in 1834. The church was rebuilt in 1874, and is a structure in the Italian style. The Episcopal church, situated in Argyle street, opened also in 1834, was at first occupied as a Secession church, and afterwards as a branch of the Scotch Episcopal church. There are two Free churches, one in Lochend, and the other in Lorne street. The Roman Catholic church, opened in 1849, is a neat structure, with carved stone front and pinnacles.

The most remarkable piece of antiquity is an ancient cross, erected in the middle of the main street. The inscription is in the Saxon character, and the following is a literal copy, with the translation annexed—Haec est: crux: Domini: YVARI: M: H: EACHYRNA. quondam: Rectoris de KYREGAN. et: Domini: ANDRE: nati: ejus: Rectoris de KIL: COMAN: qui hanc crucem fieri faciebat: "This is the cross of Master Edward M. H. Eachran, once Rector of Cryegan, and Master Andrew his son, Rector of Kilcoman, who erected this cross." There is, however, no date, but it is said to have been executed about the twelfth century, and to have been brought from the Isle of Iona. The market is held on Monday, and the fairs on the first Thursday in February, for horses; the second and last Wednesday in May, for horses and cattle; the Wednesday before the second Thursday in August, for sheep and lambs; and on the second Thursday in the same month for horses; and the third Thursday in November for horses. South of the town is the high mountain called Bengoelion, from which there is an extensive view of the surrounding country, including the distant objects of Arran and Pladda islands, Cowan hills, the bay and heads of Ayr, the Lowlands as far as Loch Ryan, Ailsa Craig, Black Head at the entrance of Belfast Lough, Donnavertie, Sanda Isles, part of the Irish coast near the points of Garron Head, Red Bay and Fair Head, the dangerous bay of Machrihanish, the Mull of Islay and the Paps of Jura; also the cemetery at Kilkerran, with the points of Saddell, Carradell and Skipness. The Duke of Argyll, Captain Hector Macneal of Ugadale, Richard Campbell Davys esq. of Askomel, William James Laidlay esq. of Drumore, Captain Duncan Stewart R.N. of Knocbrioch, trustees of the late John Colville of Machrihanish, Robert Reid esq. of Killenan and Alexander Fleming esq. of Kilmaho are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 44,220 acres; rateable value of the burgh, £36,914, and landward, £25,751, total, £62,665; the population of the parish in 1891 was 10,260, including 8,304 in the town, and in 1881, 9,755, including 7,712 in the town.

MACHRIHANISH, formerly called Salt-Pans, from salt having been made here from sea water, is a small village, 6 miles west of Campbeltown, on the southern shore of Machrihanish bay, the dashing of whose waves can be heard at a great distance; and there is a continual heavy swell here, caused by the Atlantic rolling in between Islay and the northern coast of Ireland; here are the extensive links of the Machrihanish Golf club. Nearly half a mile south is Losset House, the modern mansion of Hector Macneal esq. of Ugadale. At Drumlemble, about four miles from Campbeltown, are the works of the Argyll colliery, which are connected with Campbeltown by a narrow gauge railway. Here is also a board school. At Kilkerran, on the south side of the bay is an ancient burial place and the remains of an old castle.

CLACHAN is a village in the parish of Kilcalmonell and Kilberry and poor combination of Lochgilphead, lying on the road from Tarbert to Campbeltown, 10 miles south of the former and 27 north-west of the latter, the road following the western shore of Cantyre through most of its course. The parish church is in this village. A little east of Clachan is Balinakill, the residence of John McKinnon esq. who is the proprietor of the village. In the vicinity, by a hill called Danskeig, to the north-west, is a vitrified fort on a large scale, and another contiguous stone fort in ruins; and among the hills to the east are several fresh water lochs, well stocked with trout.

COLONSAY and ORONSAY are islands lying to the west of Jura and south of the mouth of the Firth of Lorn, 11 miles south of the Ross of Mull, and together form a united parish about 12 miles in length Oronsay, the most southern, being only 2 miles in extent; the division between the two islands is a narrow strait, dry at low water. It was here that St. Columba and St. Oran landed on their arrival from Ireland in 563, and on Colonsay they first founded their college, moving later on to Iona. An abbey was founded here at a subsequent date, but no remains of it can now be traced, but on Oronsay there are extensive remains of a priory, founded in the 14th century, consisting of a church, 60 by 18 feet and a large cloister, besides a fine sculptured cross. Colonsay is the property of Duncan McNeill esq. The area of the united parish is 11,076 acres; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 381, of whom 358 were in Colonsay; in 1881 it was 397.

DUNOON, a seaside town and police burgh, and with KILMUN form a parish in the poor combination of Greenock, but in the south-eastern district of Argyllshire; the burgh, which is situated on the Firth of Clyde 3 miles south of Holy Loch, 4 from Greenock railway station, 27 south-east of Inveraray, 30 west of Glasgow and 8 west of Greenock, is the head of a small debt court district, and is governed by a provost, 2 bailies and 9 commissioners. The town is built on the shores of 2 small bays (east and west), and extending for two miles in both directions are several ranges of houses for the families who resort thither in the summer season for sea-bathing. Intermixed with the lodging houses are many villas occupied by the merchants and professional men of Glasgow. There are also several good hotels. The combined parish extends 15 miles from north to south, by 8 in breadth, and is bounded north by Strachur, north-east by Lochgoilhead, east and south by the Firth, and west by Inverchoalain, and there are an Established Church, two Free Churches, two Episcopal Churches and churches for United Presbyterians, Catholics and Baptists. The graves of Bishops Boyd and M'Lean are to be seen in the burial ground of the Established church, covered with massive freestone slabs, having upon them armorial bearings and inscriptions, which are, however, nearly obliterated. The Burgh Hall, Argyll street, built in 1873, is a handsome stone building, containing a fine assembly room, sometimes occupied by London and provincial dramatic companies. A sheriff and small debts court is held here every month. There is a Cottage Hospital and the West of Scotland Convalescent Sea-side Home. This latter institution, originated and promoted by the late Miss Beatrice Clugston, of Glasgow, was opened on the 14th of August, 1869, for the purpose of affording sea-air and bathing to invalids; it is a building of stone in the Romanesque style of architecture, and was originally intended for a hydropathic establishment; it is capable of accommodating over 250 inmates. A little to the west of the pier at Dunoon is a mount about 80 feet in height, with the ruins of a castle on its summit. This castle was formerly regarded as one of the most formidable strongholds on the coast of Argyllshire; originally a royal residence, the hereditary keepership was bestowed by Robert Bruce on Sir Colin Campbell, of Loch Awe, through whom it came into the possession of the Dukes of Argyll. Queen Mary visited her sister, Lady Jane Stuart, at Dunoon Castle about 1563. The modern Castle of Dunoon was built in 1832, and has been purchased by the burgh commissioners for the benefit of the town. It contains a reading room, and the grounds are tastefully laid out as a recreation ground for the inhabitants. Fairs are held on the first Thursday in January and February for horses. Two newspapers are published here, viz.: "The Dunoon Herald and Cowal Advertiser," on Friday, and "The Dunoon Observer and Argyllshire Standard," on Saturday.

Holy Loch, in this parish, is fully 3 miles long, its entrance scarcely a mile wide, but within it expands to a fine sheet of water, extending a mile and a half in width; at its head it receives the lesser and greater Echaig, the latter river flowing from Loch Eck, a beautiful fresh water lake, 7 miles long and one broad, whose steep, rugged shores, rising to a considerable height, form a striking contrast on a fine day to its wide placid waters. Both the loch and the two rivers afford plenty of sport to the angler, and the valley to Strachur or Loch Fyne is remarkable for wild scenery.

Kilmun is a village in the parish, situated on the north shore of Holy Loch, 7 miles north from Dunoon, and 8 west from Greenock; it contains an old collegiate church founded in 1442 by Sir Duncan Campbell, of Loch Awe, and is the burying place of the Campbell family; six of the Dukes of Argyll lie here, and some ruined monuments are still in existence; the tower of the church is old. There is also a Free church in the village. About a quarter of a mile westward of the village is the Kilmun Seaside Home for Convalescent Poor, a handsome stone building. The population of Kilmun in 1891 was 347, and in 1881, 331.

Hunter's Quay is a village in this parish, and forms part of the burgh of Dunoon, from which it is distant 2 miles north-east, on the Firth of Clyde, and close to the mouth of the Holy Loch. There is an English Episcopal church.

Kirn is a village and quoad sacra parish in this parish, also part of the burgh of Dunoon, distant 1½ miles, on the Firth of Clyde. There is a church of the Establishment, a United Presbyterian church and a Board School.

Ardentinny is a village and quoad sacra parish in this parish, situated 4 miles from Blairmore, and 7 from Greenock, on the west shore of Loch Long. There is a church of the Establishment and a Board School. Population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1891, 219.

Innellan is also in this parish. See under separate head.

Glenlean (or Clachaig) is a hamlet in this parish, situated 6 miles north-west, and 3 north-west from Sandbank. The surrounding country is mountainous, and in the vicinity are the Clyde Mills Co.'s gunpowder works. There is a Board School in the hamlet.

Toward is a hamlet in this parish, situated 6 miles south-west, and 2 south-west from Innellan. Here is a church of the Establishment and a Board School. Castle Toward is a massive modern edifice, erected by the late Kirkman Finlay esq. and now the residence of Colin C. Finlay esq. The grounds contain the ruins of the ancient castle, at one time the seat of the family of Lamont, of Ardlamont. Colonel Bouverie Campbell-Wyndham and Henry J. Younger esq. are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 44,577 acres; rateable value, £86,472. The population in 1891 was 8,683, including 5,283 in the burgh, and in 1881 8,002, including 4,692 in the burgh.

GLENORCHY and INISHAIL form a united parish in the Lorne poor combination, lying to the north of Loch Awe, bounded on the west by Ardchattan, on the north by Lismore and Appin, and on the east by Perthshire; it extends 25 miles from north to south by 9 in breadth. The village and station of Dalmally on the Tydrum and Oban branch of the Caledonian railway, are in the south of the parish, and the West Highland railway runs close to the east boundary of the parish, with stations at Tyndrum and Bridge of Orchy, the latter being in the parish. The parish church is just outside Dalmally on the road to Oban; the original foundation is of great antiquity and there are many old tombstones in the kirkyard. The southern portion of the parish includes the head of Loch Awe which extends 26 miles in length, from one to half a mile broad, its most attractive scenery being between here and Port Sonachan, the hills on each side thickly clothed with timber and several small islands being interspersed on its surface. On a rock are the fine old ruins of Kilchurn castle, supposed to have been built about 1440, by Sir Colin Campbell, the first knight of Glenorchy. The Dalmally Hotel is within five minutes' walk from the station. Fairs for cattle are held at Glenorchy, on the third Wednesday in March, and fourth Tuesday in November. Population of the parish in 1891, 252.

Cladich is a hamlet on Loch Awe, 10 miles north of Inveraray, and in this parish; a road to the left leads to Port Sonachan ferry, three miles distant crossing Loch Awe, by which the distance to Bonaw and Oban is shortened 10 miles; another road from Cladich on the right leads to Dalmally, and round the head of Loch Awe to Oban. Here is a Board school, an Established church, mission, and a post office. Population in 1891 156.

Dalmally is a scattered village in the parish, 16 miles north-east of Inveraray, and 24½ miles by rail from Oban; is beautifully situated near the head of Loch Awe, and in view of the vale of Glenorchy. The Marquiss of Breadalbane is the principal landowner. The area comprises 146,588 acres; rateable value, £10,070; the population in 1891 was 1,641, and in 1881, 1,105.

Post, Telegraph & Money Order Office & Savings Bank. Dalmally; John Anderson, postmaster. (Railway Sub-Office. Letters should have R.S.O. Argyllshire added). Deliveries, 7.30 (summer) & 11 a.m. (winter); dispatches, 7 a.m. 1.45 & 5.15 p.m

Sub-Post Office, Cladich; Donald Campbell, receiver. (Railway Sub-Office. Letters should have R.S.O. Argyllshire added). Delivery, 6 a.m.; dispatches, 5.30 a.m. & 5 p.m. The nearest money order & telegraph. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid

INVERARAY is a royal and parliamentary burgh and the county town of Argyllshire, a parish and head of a small debt court district, situated on the western shore of Loch Fyne, at the south-west angle of a small bay, into which flow the rivers Aray and Shira; it is 102 miles west by north of Edinburgh, 60 north-west of Glasgow, 32 south-east of Oban, via Port Sonachan Ferry, and 42 via Dalmally, 20 south-east of Bonaw, via Port Sonachan ferry, but 32 by the coach road through Dalmally, 24 north-east of Lochgilphead and 76 north-north-east of Campbeltown. The parish extends 15 miles from north-east to south-west and is bounded north by Glenorchy, west by Kilchrenan, south by Kilmichael and east by Loch Fyne. Inveraray was erected into a burgh of charter,granted by Charles I. in 1648, and its government is vested in a provost, two bailies, a dean of guild, with eight councillors, a town clerk and a treasurer. The burgh unites with Campbeltown and Oban in this county, and with Ayr and Irvine in Ayrshire, in sending one member to Parliament. The Court House and gaol, forming a substantial building of stone, stands on the shore, and has an imposing appearance when seen from the loch. In it a sheriff's court is held every Friday from 15th January to 15th March, from 3rd or 4th April to 31st July, and from 1st October to 15th December, and quarter sessions on the first Tuesday in March, May, August and last Tuesday in October; also a borough court occasionally. At the extremity of the bay stands Inveraray Castle, the seat of the Duke of Argyll; it is approached by a fine avenue of limes, and has extensive and well-wooded policies; the building is three-storied, of grey stone, in the later baronial style, somewhat formal in outline, being a square with rounded angles which rise as towers one storey above the roof; the centre is occupied by a large square hall with recessed sides, and a gallery round the four sides giving access to the upper rooms; this is lighted by a square lantern tower, rising rather above the angle towers, and its walls are lined with about 150 stand of arms, being the muskets used by the Clan Campbell regiment at Culloden; the principal rooms open from the hall, and are hung with some good tapestry and pictures; there are some lofty specimens of Scotch firs in the grounds, the outlook from which is down the loch. The castle contains two beautiful pedestals of red granite, or porphyry, of a very rare kind, discovered by the present duke near the Ross of Mull; two slabs were sent to Aberdeen and converted into pedestals, in forming which it was found to be much superior and to take a higher polish than either the Peterhead or the Aberdeen granite. The late Duke of Sutherland subsequently procured a considerable quantity for the internal improvements of Donrobin Castle. Upon the lawn is a brass gun that belonged to the admiral's ship "Florida," one of the "Invincible" armada, blown up in Tobermory bay in 1588, where she was forced to put in through stress of weather. The gun, which was taken from the bay, and is about ten feet in length, is named the "Gunna-Cam," or "gleid gun," and is fired on certain occasions. On the esplanade may be seen a sculptured stone cross, brought from Iona, supposed to be of the date 1400; it is eight feet high, and bears the following inscription:—"Hæc est crux nobilium virorum, vidilicet, Dondcani, Meic Gyllichomghan, Patrici filii ejus, et Maelmore, filii, Patrici, qui hanc crucem fieri faciebet." (This cross is in memory of noble men, viz., Duncan M'Comyn, Patrick, his son, and Ludovick, the son of Patrick, who caused this cross to be erected.) In a garden near the church is a small obelisk, which marks the place of execution, in the year 1685, of some persons of the name of Campbell, for preaching against the errors of the Romish Church. A splendid view can be had of the surrounding scenery from the top of "Dunquiaich," which was in olden times a beacon or watchtower, mentioned in Sir Walter Scott's novel, "The Legend of Montrose." Loch Fyne terminates about 9 miles from the town, and from the fineness of its scenery and the fame of its herrings, is justly remarkable. The value of herrings taken out of the loch in a single season, until within the last twenty or thirty years, frequently amounted to £30,000, but for some years it has hardly yielded any, and the scarcity is supposed to have been the result of trawling. The loch is 50 miles long, and is about 10 broad below Loch Gilp, seldom exceeding 3 above Otter Ferry. From a convenient part of the town, and projecting from the shore, is a well built quay. In the town are two branch banks, one of the National Bank of Scotland Limited, the other of the Union Bank of Scotland Limited, and two good hotels and posting houses. A stone building, used as a coffee and reading room, at the neck of the quay, was erected at a cost of upwards of £1,000, in memory of the late Elizabeth Sutherland, Duchess of Argyll. The places of worship are the Established church, in the main street, a stone building, surmounted by a spire, and in which service is performed both in Gaelic and English; a United Presbyterian church, erected in 1836, on land given by D. Paterson esq.; a Free church, built in 1844, at the south end of the town, has been re-erected at the cost of £1,700; the Episcopalian church is a small stone structure, erected in 1886, at a cost of about £1,600, the site being given by the Duke of Argyll. Fairs for cattle are held at Inveraray on the last Friday in May and the last Thursday in October, and a wool market on the third Friday in July.

Furnace is a village about 8 miles south from Inveraray,on the western bank of Loch Fyne; here are extensive granite quarries, leased and wrought by Messrs. William Sim & Co. and the projected railway from Crinan and Ardrishaig will have its eastern terminus here. Population in 1891, 172.

Glenarag is a small civil and ecclesiastical parish, now included in Inveraray, and lies in the north of the parish. Population in 1891, 630, and of the ecclesiastical parish, 425.

About a mile and a half north-east of Inveraray is Glen-Shira, in length about 6 miles, the scenery through which is exceedingly beautiful, presenting gently-sloping hills, whose sides are clothed with wood. The Duke of Argyll is the principal landowner. The area of the parish comprises 46,892 acres; rateable value, £5,786; the population of the parish in 1891 was 836, including 816 in the royal burgh and 20 in shipping, but the parliamentary burgh only contained 723, and the town of Inveraray, 743; in 1881 the parish population was 946, including 870 in the town.

IONA, a small island, 3 miles long by 1 broad, off the southern point of the mountain range which extends from the Moray Firth on the north-east and Ullapool on the west, in a triangular form to Ben More, in Mull, lies west of the promontory of Ross, across a sound about a mile in width; it is 9 miles south-west of Staffa in the parish of Kilfinichen and Kilvickeon; it is known also as Icolmkill or Icolumb-Kill, and anciently was called Hy, or I, and is remarkable as being the seat of the first Celtic University in Scotland, founded by St. Columba on the occasion of his mission from Ireland in 563, and it now possesses the remains of a later cathedral, and the reputed graves of the kings, and is much visited by tourists.

Port-na-Currach, "The Bay of the Boat," on the south-west side, derives both its name and importance from a tradition of its having been the landing place of the currach, the hide boat of St. Columba.

Iona belonged to the see of the isles, i.e. the Hebrides or Southern isles (Sudreyar), so-called to distinguish them from the northern isles of Orkney and Shetland (Nodreyar); the see is said to have been founded in 1098 by Magnus III. King of Norway, to whom these islands had been ceded by the usurper Donald Bane, brother of King Malcolm II. of Scotland: about 1113 the diocese of the Isle of Man was united to this see, thenceforward called "Sodor and Man," and although the two dioceses were again separated about 1380, the style of the joint see is still maintained by the Bishop of Man; the see of the isles of which Iona became, in 1507, the chief seat, after having been abolished about 1680, was revived in 1733 in connection with that of Caithness, and is now held with Argyll. The island was at a very early period venerated as a place of sanctity and learning, and had already been Christianised for over a century, when St. Columba landed here, 12 May, A.D. 563. The monastic settlement established by him on this spot for the training of itinerant missionaries continued to maintain an independent ecclesiastical status until 716, when the monks, with their abbot, Adamnan, agreed to accept the usages of Rome: from 794 the island was ravaged again and again by the Norse invaders, and many of the monks mercilessly slain; in 818 the monastery was rebuilt by Abbot Diarmid and the shrine containing the relics of St. Columba placed within the church, and towards the close of the 12th century it was again rebuilt by Abbot Reginald, who was also bishop of the Isles, and refounded the abbey as a house of the Cluniac order, and it thus became connected with the Cluniac abbey of Paisley. Simon of Orkney, bishop of the Isles 1229-43, was also abbot of Iona, and at the close of the 15th century, the abbey was formally annexed to the see. In pursuance of an Act passed in 1563, the monastery was suppressed and vacated; the cathedral church, being disused, was allowed to fall into decay, and nothing now remains of either woodwork or fittings: as at present existing it consists of a long choir, with clerestory, a south aisle of three bays, and a sacristy on the north side, transepts, an aisleless nave, and a central tower of two stages, 75 feet high, with plain corbelled parapet; the nave and choir are each 62 feet in length and 22 feet wide, measured internally; the internal width, through the transepts, is 69 feet, and the total length, externally, 160 feet, the axis of the church and adjacent buildings being directly south-east and north-west: the monastery adjoins on the north, and the cloisters, immediately abutting on the nave, are 72 feet from north to south, by 66 from east to west, and have alleys 11 feet wide: the east side is formed in part by the north transept of the church, the chapter-house with its vestibule, and two other chambers; on the north side was the refectory, with the stairs thereto, but the west side seems to have been enclosed by a wall only; other portions of the domestic buildings extended northwards, and detached from these, and lying east and west was a rectangular structure, 60 by 37 feet, the purpose of which is only conjectural. The church has been rebuilt at various periods of red granite with dressings of grey sandstone, and from the method of its construction it is difficult to fix exactly the date of different portions, but there is no doubt that the earliest parts of the existing fabric are to be found in the transepts, including the tower piers, and the north walls of the nave and choir; these are Late Transitional of the latter part of the 12th or the beginning of the 13th century, the remainder, including the sacristy and the tower, which in plan is almost an oblong, was rebuilt during the late Decorated period, 1315-60, and still later the south aisle of the choir, the pent roof of which is singularly carried on a species of flying buttresses rising from the floor, and supporting masses of masonry reaching up to the line of the clerestory; this aisle retains sedilia and a piscina, and the site of an altar and the caps of the piers are carved with various scriptural subjects; a fine bold doorway, with trefoiled head leads into the sacristy, and built into the wall above, at a height of 6½ feet from the floor are two pointed transitional arches, enriched with dog-tooth carving, and resting in the centre on a circular pier with foliated cap: the choir has also sedilia and piscina, but the high altar of marble, entire in the 17th century, has wholly disappeared. In the centre of the floor, below the first step from the east, is a great slab once containing a brass to a knight of the Macleod family; north of this is the effigy in stone of Abbot Lachlan Mackinnon, d. 1500, and on the south that of Abbot Kenneth Mackenzie, d. 1489, besides which there are other tomb slabs, both in the choir and north transept, and some of these are adorned with Celtic ornament: the splayed east windows of the north transept are recessed under arches, and between these is another arch, with traces of an altar; three sides of the tower are lighted by square openings filled with varied tracery, and the fourth or north side by a two-light pointed window; the east and other windows contain Decorated tracery of graceful flowing character; about 1603 the nave and south aisle were walled off, and the remainder of the church fitted for Divine service, and it continued to be so used until the beginning of the 18th century. Of the monastic buildings, the oldest portion is the chapter house, which is Transitional, and coeval with the earliest part of the church; it is entered through two circular arches resting on a central pillar, the ornamental work being very similar to that of the two walled up arches in the choir: within the chapter-house, on either side are four arched recesses, with sedilia, and it has a small east window; the refectory is early English, and the rest of the buildings, so far as can be ascertained, belong to the Decorated period; north-east of the chapter house, and standing obliquely to it, is a small detached chantry chapel of the 15th century, 38 by 21 feet, with three windows and a doorway on the north side; in the cemetery, and 100 yards south-west of the cathedral stands the roofless chapel of St. Oran, a structure of red granite, 60 by 22 feet, and now the most ancient fabric remaining on the island: it has a western doorway and small loop windows, and has lately been repaired. In this cemetery have been buried, it is affirmed, 48 kings of Scotland, 8 kings of the Sudreyar or southern Isles, some Norse-Irish monarchs, and one king of France, besides several of the priors of Iona, and a number of members of the clan MacLean: there are still nine rows of carved and incised slabs and tombstones, the most important of which are now enclosed within iron railings: it is also said that the island had at one time as many as 160 crosses, of which 60 were taken up and cast into the sea by Archibald, 4th Earl of Argyll, on his embracing the doctrines of the Reformation, and but four now remain, viz.: St. John's, Maclean's, St. Martin's and John McFingon's; the only complete one is that of St. Martin of Tours, standing within the enclosure by the west end of the church, where are the graves of St. Columba and his servant Diarmid; it is 15 feet high, on a base of three steps, and is elaborately carved with interlaced work and bosses; Maclean's cross is 11 feet in height, and richly sculptured, and McFingon's bears the name of one of the abbots of Iona, d. 1439, and the galley device of the Norse kings of Man. The island is the property of the Duke of Argyll K.G., K.T. who, about 1880, cleared the site of the cathedral and adjacent buildings, and effected various repairs and replacements at considerable cost; the carved fragments then found were carefully collected, and are now in the chapter-house. The population in 1891 was 247, and in 1881, 243.

ISLAY is a large, irregularly shaped island about 25 miles from north to south, by 18 broad; it is the most southerly of the Hebrides, and is divided into 3 parishes, Kilchoman, Killarrow and Kilmeny and Kildalton; it is divided from the south-west of Jura by the Sound of Islay; two salt lochs, Loch Andail on the south and Loch Ghruinnard on the north, run some distance into the island, almost cutting off its westerly portion; its chief villages and ports are Bowmore and Bridgend, on Loch Andail, Port Ellen on a bay to the south; Port Askaig on the sound; Port Nahaven on the south-west point of the entrance to Loch Andail and Port Charlotte halfway up the west shore of this Loch, and there is a steamer pier at Bruichladdich in the same loch. There are two fresh water lochs, Loch Guirm and Loch Finlaggan, with islands in them, having remains of the fortified houses of the Macdonald chieftains. Finlaggan was the principal stronghold, and here the chiefs were installed with great ceremony on a stone still preserved on the islet. The mountains to the east of the island rise to an altitude of 1,500 feet, and are the resort of eagles, falcons and other birds; and great numbers of seals are to be found along the coast. The shore is very rugged, but in some parts has fine flat beaches and sandy bays, and the face of the country is finely varied by hill and dale. Many parts are well planted, and the island contains several beautiful lakes, well-stocked with trout; there are also two rivers, the Sorn and the Laggan: the former empties itself into Loch Andail, and the latter into Laggan Bay. The Laggan water is not surpassed in the West Highlands as a salmon stream. In boisterous weather many vessels come into Loch Andail for shelter. Before Islay became the seat of government of the Lords of the Isles, it appears to have been under the dominion of the Danes and Norwegians, as there are many duns and castles, evidently of Danish origin, besides many places which have Danish names. The land is tolerably cultivated, but it is still susceptible of great improvement. Upwards of 3,000 head of black cattle, and several hundred horses of the Clydesdale breed, are annually exported, besides sheep. An immense quantity of whisky, the produce of the distilleries in the island, is also exported to Glasgow, England and America. Lead and iron are said to abound in this island, and a company was formed, called the Islay Mining Company, for extracting some of those minerals. There is a regular daily communication by steamer from Port-Ellen, and on Tuesday and Friday from Port-Askaig, with Glasgow and West Tarbert on the main land. There are many ruinous remains of ancient castles, churches, &c. scattered over the island; but, perhaps, the most remarkable natural curiosity is Sloc-Mhaol-Doraidh, a large basin formed in the rock by the action of the sea, on the south-west point of Laggan Bay, about nine miles from Bowmore, into which the turbulent waters of the western ocean rush by two channels in the rock, covered with natural arches, and dash up through an aperture in the dome-shaped roof. Near Loch Gruinnard is the site of a great battle fought in 1598 between the Macdonalds and Macleans, and at Benbigger the Macdonalds were almost destroyed by a combination of the Macleans and MacLeods, Camerons and McNeils by instructions of James VI.

Portnahaven is a quoad sacra parish formed out of Kilchoman; population in 1891, 869.

Oa is a quoad sacra parish, formed out of Kindalton, and in 1891 had a population of 210 and Kilmeny, a similar parish, formed out of Killarrow, population in 1891, 805.

Bowmore is the principal place on the island. It was founded in 1768, and is situated on the east side of Loch Andail, 3 miles south of Islay House, 11 south-south-west from Port-Askaig, and the same from Port-Ellen and Port-Charlotte. The village, which consists of two principal streets and several smaller ones diverging, possesses a good quay. It is a place of some business, several trading vessels belonging to it. The public structures are the parish church, a circular edifice, with a peculiarly formed spire; a Free church, a Baptist chapel, a union workhouse, a large public hall, with sittings for over 500 persons, and a building originally intended for a gaol, but now appropriated as a public library, containing about 1,800 volumes. An assembly room is on the same floor as the library. There is also a large and excellent public school, with a house for the master. A sherriff's court is held here four times a year. There is a distillery worked by the Bowmore Distillery Co. The Bowmore and the Seaview hotels are the principal in the village.

At Bridgend, 3 miles north of Bowmore, and 8 south of Port-Askaig, is a branch of the National Bank of Scotland Limited. A court is held monthly for the recovery of small debts, and sessions for the trial of petty offences. A short distance to the west stands Islay House, surrounded with fine gardens and well planted grounds; it is situated at the head of Loch Andail, of which it commands a fine view, as well as of the adjacent country.

About 4 miles from Bridgend, on the road to Port-Askaig, is the village of Ballygrant, where there is a lead mine, which when working gives employment to a number of hands. The lead is of first-rate quality, and contains a small quantity of silver.

Bruichladdich is a small village in the parish of Kilchoman, 8 miles from Bowmore, on the road to Port-Charlotte. Here are a large distillery, a temperance hotel, and post office; there is also a quay at which vessels of considerable burden can unload in fine weather.

Port-Askaig is a small creek or harbour on the north-east side of the island, opposite Feoline, in Jura, from which it is separated by the sound of Islay, about a mile broad. The port is 11 miles north-east of Bowmore, and has a quay where vessels of considerable burden can load and unload at low water. Here lobsters are found in abundance.

Port-Charlotte is a small village in the parish of Kilchoman, on the west side of Loch Andail, nearly opposite to Bowmore; it is 16 miles south-west of Port-Askaig, and contains a good inn, a distillery, and an excellent school erected by Charles Morrison esq. Population in 1881, 502.

Portnahaven is a small village and seaport, 24 miles south-west of Port-Askaig, and 16 south-west of Bridgend. It is at the southern extremity of the island, having a quay formed by the rocks on the shore; and near the port is a lighthouse, erected in 1824-5. Here are also a parliamentary church, a Free church, and a public school. A considerable business is done in the season, the shores on this part of the island abounding with fish. Population in 1881, 361.

Port-Ellen is a seaport and village in the parish of Kildalton, on the east side of the island; it is 11 miles south-east of Bowmore, and 22 south of Port-Askaig. In 1824 there stood only one house here. The bay is considered safe, and is nearly a mile wide. The quay, a commodious one, formed on a rocky promontory near the middle of the harbour, was erected in 1826, and enlarged and improved in 1832, by Campbell of Islay, who also erected a lighthouse, and was again further enlarged and improved in 1881, by John Ramsay esq. J.P. of Kildalton. Mr. Ramsay became proprietor of the parish of Kildalton (which includes the quoad sacra parish of Oa), in 1863, and during his proprietorship he has expended large sums in agricultural improvements, including stone walls and farm steadings of uncommon stability. A branch of the Royal Bank of Scotland is established here. The village is substantially built, and contains two inns. The inhabitants are principally employed in agriculture and fishing. There are some good golf links here. Population in 1891, 903, and in 1881, 989.

About 4 miles east from Port Ellen are the villages of Lagavulin and Ardbeg. At the latter place is one of the largest distilleries in the island; and there is a commodious harbour, with a quay, at which vessels of 12 feet draught of water can lie and discharge at ebb tide.

The fairs held in the island of Islay are as follows:—For cattle, Bridgend, last Wednesday in April, last Tuesday in June, July, August and September. At Bowmore, February, Tuesday if 12th, or first Tuesday after; August 12th, if Friday, or first Friday after, for horses; November, for horses; Friday, if 12th or first Friday after; for cattle, Tuesday before. At Bridgend, for cattle and horses, Tuesday before second last Wednesday in October. At Bridgend, for cattle, second last Wednesday in May. At Port-Ellen for horses and cattle, in November, day before that at Bowmore. The area of the parish of Killarrow and Kilmeny comprises 65,929 acres; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 2,660, and in 1881, 2,756. The area of the parish of Kilchoman comprises 37,274 acres; rateable value £ ; the population in 1891 was 2,697, and in 1881, 2,547. The area of the parish of Kildalton comprises 47,152 acres; rateable value, £10,821; the population in 1891 was 2 027, and in 1881, 2,271.

JURA is an island about 30 miles long, lying off the west coast of the mainland, from which it is separated by the Sound of Jura, and north-east of the Sound of Islay, which separates it from the island of that name; is a civil and ecclesiastical parish, is the head of a poor combination, and in the small debt court district of Bowmore. The island has a chain of mountains running down its centre, the most prominent of which are the Three Paps, mountains rising to an elevation of 2,500 feet above the sea-level, standing on the same ridge, but having two valleys separating them, the tops being round, and consisting for some distance down the sides of loose stones, rendering the ascent difficult; the southern one is called "Benachaolais" (the Mountain of Sound) the next and highest, "Benanoir" (the Mountain of Gold), and the third "Benshianta" (the Consecrated Mountain). There are five of these conical peaks, but only three of them are distinguished as the Paps. Corrabhain (the steep peak) is the most precipitous, but lowest of the cluster. The other hills range from 1,200 to 1,500 feet, and they afford a shelter to the east side of the island, where nearly all the cultivation is carried on and most of the inhabitants reside, the west side being wild and desolate except where Loch Tarbert penetrates far into the interior. There is a good road along the whole length of the eastern side from the north point to Feoline on the Sound of Islay, where there is a ferry to that island. There are several large caves, and at the northern extremity is the whirlpool of Corryvicken, formed by the Atlantic tide running into a small inlet. The parish includes the islands of Balnuhua, Garvelloch, Lunga, Pludda, Scarba and Skerviule. Jura belongs to James Campbell esq. whose residence is at Ardfin, a fine mansion on the south shore of the island. It is the most rugged of the Hebrides, being composed chiefly of huge rocks piled one on another in the utmost disorder. The west side of the island is wild, intersected by numerous torrents, which come rushing down from the mountains. There are some good fresh water lochs, the largest, Knockbreag, being one mile long.

Milltown, frequently called Craighouse, the principal village in Jura, is eight miles from Port-Askaig ferry. It has a good quay, and the harbour, which is large and being formed by several small islands, has obtained the appellation of Small Isles Harbour. A few years ago an excellent wooden wharf was erected, extending about 400 feet in length, and steamers can now come alongside at any state of the tide. About half a mile north of the village is the church of the parish of Jura and a board school. The village contains a distillery and a comfortable inn.

Garvelloch, or Holy Island, contains an extensive old fort, called Dunconnel, once a stronghold belonging to the Lords of the Isles, and in one of them, called the Nun's Island, are considerable remains of an old nunnery, said to have been founded by St. Columba.

Lagg is a small fishery village on the east coast. The red deer abounds in the uplands of this island. Fairs are held on the second and last Friday in May, Friday after last Tuesday in June, Friday after last Thursday in July, and the second last Friday in October, all for cattle. The area comprises 93,799 acres; rateable value, £ . The population in 1891 was 724 including 68 persons on Balnahua, and 37 on the other small islands, and in 1881, 946.

KILBERRY, see KILCALMONELL AND KILBERRY.

KILBRANDON and KILCHATTAN form a joint parish, in Lorne poor combination, consisting mostly of islands, the principal of which are Seil, Easdale, Luing, Inis Capel, Shuna and Torsay. It is divided from Mull on the west by the Firth of Lorne, and from Jura on the south by the Gulf of Corybreckan, in which is situated the whirlpool; its mainland portion is bounded north by the parish of Kilninver. The trade is mostly connected with the slate quarries at Easdale and Luing. A marble quarry was wrought near the castle over a century ago. Lead mines have been worked in the island of Luing; and there are several caves in Kilbride well worth visiting. Ardmally Castle, an ancient seat of the Breadalbane family, on the mainland, about two miles east of Easdale, stands on a fine pleasant bay; the grounds are well wooded and contain several pretty cascades.

Easdale is a village in this parish, partly situated on the island of that name, and partly on the island of Seil, from which it is separated by a narrow sound; it is 16 miles south-west-by-south of Oban, 30 north-north-west of Lochgilphead, 40 west of Inveraray, and 142 west of Edinburgh. It it chiefly remarkable for its slate quarries, which are said to have been open for three centuries; they are the property of the Marquess of Breadalbane, and are wrought by the Easdale Slate Quarries Company Limited, who altogether employ about 250 men, and produce about 15,000 tons of slate annually, of a superior quality, which is exported to all parts of Scotland and the north of England. Several of the quarries are above 250 feet below the sea, and are kept dry by pumping with steam engines. The geological formation of the slate rock here is similar, as to stratification and cleavage, to the Welsh rock; and the island of Easdale, which is nearly a mile in circumference, is entirely formed on this rock, except a few trap dykes which here and there intersect it. There is a good quay for shipping the slate, and safe anchorage in the sound, through which the Glasgow steam boats pass almost daily to and from the north. A pier was erected in 1873, at which the steamers call regularly. Portmary slate quarries, opened nearly a century ago, have been leased by Mr. A. M'Coll. The slates here are of first-class quality and command a ready and extensive sale. There is good quay accommodation. Cuan slate quarries, adjoining the above, are also leased by the same gentleman. These slates are of a blue colour, and at the quay erected at Cuan vessels are loaded in any state of weather or tide. Houses have been built at Portmary for the workmen employed there. Population of Easdale island in 1891 was 317, and in 1881, 460.

At Toberonachy (in Luing) slate quarries were opened about twelve years ago by the lessees, Messrs. J. & A. M'Lean. There is good quay accommodation, and vessels can be loaded at almost any state of the tide. The principal landowner being the Marquess of Breadalbane. In 1891, the village had a population of 209.

Beunahua, a small island to the north of Scarba, contains several quarries of excellent blue slate, at present wrought by Messrs. D. & J. M Lean & Co. The number of men generally employed is about 30. The landowner being Mrs. Morrison, of Glasgow. Population in 1891, 68.

Shuna is a small island lying off the coast of Nether Lorn, in Kilbrandon parish, situated 14 miles south-south-west of Oban. Fladda, Luing and Torsay are also small islands in the above parish. The Marquess of Breadalbane, W. H. R. B. Sivewright esq. and Mrs. Morrison are the principal landowners. The area comprises 13,385 acres; rateable value, £5,399; the population in 1891 was 1,574, and in 1881, 1,767.

KILBRIDE, see KILFINAN.

KILCALMONELL and KILBERRY form a joint parish, lying on both shores of West Tarbert Loch, bounded on the north and north-east by South Knapdale, east by Saddell, south by Killean, and west by the Sound of Jura. From West Tarbert at the head of the loch two roads start following the shores of the loch, the northern winding through a fine well-wooded country, leading to Ardpatrick and Kilberry, and the southern to Campbeltown. About the sixth mile on this road is Dunmore, the residence of Allan Gilmore esq. hid by its plantations from the road, but from its site there is a pleasing view of the loch and the opposite shore. Four miles further on is the domain of Ardpatrick, the residence of Captain James Carter Campbell R.N. At the foot of this domain is a ferry, to the opposite side of West Tarbert loch. From Ardpatrick a road branches to the west; and at a distance of 4 miles Carse is passed; 3 miles beyond is Kilberry Castle, the seat of John Campbell esq.; 5 miles further is Drimdrissaig, the property of F. W. O. Campbell esq. the efforts of whose predecessor (the late Lachlan M'Neill esq.) proved so successful in improving the breeds of cattle, sheep &c., in this part of the country. West Tarbert Loch is about 9 miles in length, but very shallow at the upper end, and the Islay Steamer pier is a few miles down. A road, running by the edge of the loch, past the landing stage of the Islay steamer, has been found a great convenience by passengers going to or returning from Islay. The Royal Mail coach passes daily, both going to East Tarbert and returning to Campbeltown. Near the sixth milestone is the village of Whitehouse, containing a board school, and about half a mile above the village is Stonefield, the fine mansion and extensive domain of Colin G. P. Campbell esq. The parish church is in the village of Clachan, and there is a Mission church at Kilberry, 5 miles to the north of West Tarbert loch. Colin G. P. Campbell esq. of Stonefield, John McKinnon esq. of Loup & Balinakill, Peter McKinnon esq. of Ronachan & John R. M. Macdonald esq. of Largie are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 49,659 acres; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 2 289, and in 1881, 2,304. The area of the Kilcalmonell portion being 29,150 acres, with a rateable value of £9,912.

KILCHOMAN PARISH, see ISLAY.

KILCHRENAN and DALAOICH united parish lies on both shores of the centre portion of Loch Awe, its kirktown Kilchrenan in the north of the parish being 10 miles north-west of Inveraray, and the hamlet of Dalaoich about 8 miles south-west of that town; the parish, which is in the poor combination of Lorn, extends 14 miles from north to south by 7 in breadth, and is bounded north by Glenorchy, east by Inveraray, south by Kilmartin and Glassary, and west by Ardchattan, Kilninver and Kilmore. There is no railway station in the parish but those of Taynuilt; Loch Awe and Dalmally are not far from its northern boundary, and steamers ply between Port Sonachan and Loch Awe station on the Callander and Oban branch of the Caledonian railway. Port Sonachan is the principal ferry on Loch Awe, and 7 miles distant are the falls of Bhealach, to which a coach runs daily. The Episcopalian church, a stone building, was erected in 1891, at a cost of £1,500, by James Thorpe esq. of Ardbrecknish. The Marquess of Breadalbane and Colonel Malcolm, of Poltalloch, are the principal landowners. The area comprises 45,980 acres; rateable value, £4,664; the population in 1891 was 415, and in 1881, 504.

KILLARROW and KILMENY PARISH, see ISLAY.

KILLEAN and KILKENZIE form a joint parish on the west side of Cantyre, its kirktown, on the coast, being 17 miles north-west of Campbeltown. The parish extends 16 miles from north to south by 5 wide, and is bounded north by Kilcalmonell and east by Saddell. Killean village is about 2 miles south of Tayinloan. Near the road stands the parish church, a small stone building, erected in 1787, and about a quarter of a mile further, on an eminence, is a Free church with a tower, erected in 1846, and close by is a board school. Seals are very often seen lying on the rocks near the coast.

Ballachantuie is a village in this parish, on the coast, about 10 miles north-west of Campbeltown; it contains a small church, erected in 1825, and a board school. The road between this village and Campbeltown has been much improved, and another road several miles in length has been cut along the shore, at a great expense, to avoid the hills on the old road. The chief employment of the people on this coast is fishing and agriculture.

Glenbarr is a village nearly 4 miles south of Killean, situate on the banks of the Barr water, which is well stocked with fine salmon and trout; nearly a mile from the shore, in a rich and well cultivated glen, is Glenbarr abbey, the property of Major Macalister, a fine structure, built in the Gothic style, and from which an extensive view of the sea and north-east coast of Ireland may be obtained.

Kilkenzie is a hamlet in the extreme south of the parish, 5 miles from Campbeltown.

Tayinloan is a small village in this parish, about 19 miles north from Campbeltown, and about a mile in a northern direction is Largie Castle, the residence of John R. M. Macdonald esq.

The Duke of Argyll, Alexander Fleming esq. of Kilmaho, Major Charles B. M'Alister, of Glenbarr, Colonel Smollett, M. Eddington, of Glencreggan, James M'Alister Hall esq. of Tangy, John Ronald MacDonald, of Largie, Captain Hector Macneal, of Ugadale, and the executors of Robert Colvill esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 42,109 acres; rateable value, £13,461; the population in 1891 was 1,293 and in 1881, 1,368.

Post Receiving House, Muasdale: Miss Janet McCallum, postmistress. (Letters should have S.O. Argyllshire added.) Letters arrive from all parts at 4.15 p.m. & are dispatched thereto at 8 a.m. Tayinloan is the nearest money order office

KILMALIE is a parish, partly in the county of Inverness and partly in this county, the two portions being divided by Loch Linnhe, the western one being in Argyllshire, and bounded on the south by Lismore and Appin and Morven parishes, west by Ardmurchan (also in both counties) and north by Kilmonivaig. The Caledonian canal commences at Banavie, in this parish, but runs almost entirely through Inverness-shire, and the newly opened West Highland railway, which leaves the North British at Helensburgh, has a branch line from Fort William to Banavie. The parish church is in the small village of Corpach. The area of the Argyll portion of the parish is 104,175 acres, and that of the entire parish, 273,816; rateable value, £20,303; the population of this portion in 1891 was 1,297, and of the entire parish, 4,205; while in 1881 the figures were 1,441 and 4,157.

Banavie is a hamlet in this parish, 3 miles north-north-east distant from Fort William, and about 1 from Corpach, beautifully situated on the Caledonian canal, and steamers going north and south call here daily. The Lochiel Arms hotel commands extensive views, is facing Ben Nevis, and close to the pier. The post office stands a little to the left of the hotel. Population in 1891, 241.

Corpach is a widely-spread but not very populous village, on the north shore of Loch Eil, 3 miles north from Fort William, and is chiefly to be noticed as being the southern commencement of the Caledonian canal, which here enters Loch Eil by four locks; a little above are eight others, called Neptune's Staircase; these are capable of admitting vessels of 300 tons (not drawing above 12 feet of water), and each loch rises 8 feet. Kilmalie parish church, erected in 1784, is about half a mile from the end of the canal, at Corpach, and near the church stands a pyramidical obelisk, of considerable height, with a large tablet of white marble at its base, and an inscription composed by Sir Walter Scott, raised to the memory of Colonel John Cameron, slain at the battle of Waterloo, in 1815, while commanding the 92nd Highlanders. The road through Corpach leads to the district of Arisaig, about 35 miles distant, and Moidart, Glenfinnon and Loch Shiel. At Borrodale, in Moidart, Prince Charles Stuart landed on the 25th of July, 1745. He sailed up Loch Shiel on the 18th of August; the following day he landed and entered Glenfinnon, where he was met by Cameron of Lochiel and Macdonald of Keppoch, with their clansmen. Commemorative of this circumstance, Macdonald of Glenaladale has erected a monument at Glenfinnon. Population in 1891, 340.

KILMARTIN is a parish to the north of Loch Crinan, in the poor combination and small debt court district of Lochgilphead, its kirktown; is 8 miles north-west from Lochgilphead and 18 south-west from Inveraray; the parish extends 11 miles from north to south by 4 in breadth, and is bounded on the east by Kilmichael Glassary, north by Kilchrenan and west by Craiguish. In the south of the parish, on a promontory projecting into Loch Crinan, is Duntroon Castle, a modern building, on the site of an old fortress and the property of Colonel J. W. Malcolm C.B. of Poltalloch, who possesses extensive demesnes in this part of the county, and on whose estate above 2,000 acres of soft peat moss, at the head of Loch Crinan, have been converted into excellent corn and grazing land; the farm is appropriately called "Experiment." Poltalloch House, the residence of this gentleman, erected at a cost of about £20,000, overlooks this reclaimed land, and close to the village are the beautiful ruins of Carnazarie Castle, formerly the residence of the bishops of Argyll. At Barbreck is the mansion and desmesne of James H. Campbell esq. Fairs are held at Kilmartin on the first Thursday in March, for horses, and the fourth Thursday in November, for horses and hiring servants. A prize show in connection with the Poltalloch Farming Society is held here for cattle, sheep and horses, in September.

Ford is a hamlet about the centre of the parish. The islands of MacCaskin and Ree are also included in this parish.

Colonel John Wingfield Malcolm C.B. is the principal landowner. The area comprises 25,102 acres; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 695 and in 1881, 811.

KILMELFORT, see KILNINVER AND KILMELFORT.

KILMICHAEL GLASSARY is a parish extending from the lower half of Loch Fyne to Loch Awe, in the poor combination and small debt court district of Loch Gilphead, which town is included in the parish. The village of Kilmichael Glassary, about 5 miles north of Loch Gilphead, at one time a burgh of some size, is now merely the kirk town of the parish, containing the church and manse of Glassary. A Board school, a market stance, and a good inn are at Bridgend, on the river Add, half a mile west of Kilmichael. Between Kilmichael and Kilmartin there are numerous druidical remains. Two large and well frequented fairs are held here annually, at which from seven to eight thousand head of black cattle are generally exposed for sale—namely, on the last Wednesday in May, which is also for horses and sheep, and the last Tuesday before the last Wednesday in October—at both of which fairs the hiring of servants takes place.

Crarae is a village in the parish, 9½ miles south-west of Inveraray and 4 south-west of Furnace, has some large granite quarries Cumlodden is a village and quoad sacra parish, formed out of the parishes of Kilmichael Glassary and Glenaray. The population in 1891 was 688.

Lochgair is a hamlet in this parish on a bay of same name, on west side of Loch Fyne, and situated 5 miles north-east of Lochgilphead; there is a Mission Established church here. Colonel John Wingfield Malcolm C.B. is the principal landowner. The parish comprises 60,229 acres; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 3,836, including 1,320 in the town of Lochgilphead, and in 1881, 4,348, including 1,489 in the towns.

LISMORE and APPIN constitute a united parish formed of the island of Lismore, and the district of Appin on the mainland, and east shore of Loch Linuke. The island lies in the mouth of Loch Linuke, and is about 9 miles long by 2 broad; its name in Gaelic signifies "the garden," and it is still very fertile though abounding in small hills. The parish besides the island and the mainland district includes the smaller islands of Musdale, Sheep and Shuna. At the Clæhan of Lismore about 3 miles from the northern point of the island is the church of St. Moulac, constituted the cathedral church of the see of Argyll on its formation c. 1200. It consists simply of the choir of an apparently, never-completed structure, and forms an aisleless oblong, in the Decorated Flamboyant style, 60 feet in length, by 30 wide, and internally 52 feet in height; in 1749 it was new roofed, and retains sedilia with round-headed arches, and on the north side an acutely pointed doorway leading to the sacristy. The palace or castle of the bishops stood about four miles south by west from the cathedral, and there are some remains of the buildings. There are also remains of two Danish or Scandinavian forts called Cœffin and Firefoor. There is a small village at Port Ramsay, and at a southern point on a ridge of rocks projecting some distance into the channel, stands a lighthouse, almost in a direct line between Oban and the sound of Mull; the light, a catoptric, is on a high rounded pillar of stone masonry. A pier has been erected at Achnacroish, at which the mail steamer calls twice daily. Great quantities of excellent lime, as well as oats and potatoes, are exported from the island. The principal industries are farming and fishing. There are three fresh-water lakes, in which there is a good supply of salmon, trout &c. The Duke of Argyll, the Rev. James Fell and A. A. Campbell esq. of Lochnell, are the principal landowners. The area of the entire parish is 114,918 acres; rateable value, £17,567. The population in 1891 was 3,242, of whom 561 were on the island of Lismore, and 2,654 in Appin, the remaining 27 being on the three small islands. In 1881, the total population was 3,433. The ecclesiastical parish of Lismore had a population of 681 in 1891.

LOCH AWE is a small village at the head of the loch of the same name, with a station on the Tyndrum and Oban branch of the Caledonian railway, and is within the civil parish of Glenorchy and Inishail; it has a pier from which steamers start for the lower end of the loch, and which is connected with the railway; it is about 22 miles east from Oban. The loch, which is 24 miles long, and one of the most beautiful, as well as one of the finest fishing lochs in Scotland, is surrounded on the north by huge mountains of which the highest is Ben Cruachan. Its banks are well wooded, and numerous islands are dotted here and there, on one of which (Inishal) formerly existed a convent of the Cistercian nuns. The loch abounds with trout. The most convenient hotels for the angler are the Loch Awe and Dalmally hotels, at which he will find excellent accommodation. There is an Established Mission church, called St. Conan's Kirk, built in 1882, by Walter J. D. Campbell esq. of Blythward.

LOCHGAIR, see KILMICHAEL GLASSARY.

LOCHGILPHEAD is a village and police burgh in the parish of Kilmichael Glassary, the head of a poor combination, and of a small debt court district, and also a quoad sacra parish taken from the parishes of Glassary and South Knapton; it is 2 miles north of Ardrishaig, and 18 south-west of Inveraray, and takes its name from its position at the head of Loch Gilp, which is a small inlet from Loch Fyne, 10 miles north of Tarbert, it is 3½ miles long by one mile broad at the widest part, and has Ardrishaig with the entrance to the Crinan Canal on the west side of its mouth, and at its head the burgh of Lochgilphead. The burgh consists of several well-paved streets, and is supplied with water from a reservoir belonging to the commissioners; the streets are lighted with gas supplied by a company. Lochgilphead was constituted a burgh under the Act 25 and 26 Victoria, cap. 101, and is governed by nine commissioners of police, including one senior and two junior magistrates appointed under the provisions of the said act. Under the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, a county council was created for Argyllshire, the meetings being held in May, October and December at Dunoon, Lochgilphead and Oban alternately. Meetings of the Argyll Police and Lunacy Boards are held at stated periods, also monthly meetings of the Mid-Argyll district committee of the County Council, and of the local justices, and a sheriff's small debt court is held every alternate month. The head quarters of the constabulary are here. The burgh possesses a commodious court-house and gaol. The inhabitants are principally employed in agriculture and fishing. In front of the main street a part of the loch has been embanked, and a site provided for the large cattle fairs or markets. The town is connected by numerous excellent roads with all parts of the county, and a line of telegraph also connects it with Campbeltown, Inveraray, Oban, the Islands of Mull and Islay &c. and Glasgow. On the Kilmory side is a quay for the small craft engaged in the herring fishery and coal vessels. The Parliamentary church, erected at the head of Argyll street, in 1327-8, and rebuilt in 1885, at a cost of £2,500, is of native stone, with freestone facings, in the early Gothic style. There is a Baptist chapel in the same street, a Reformed Presbyterian church, now Martyr's Free church, in Union street, a Free church in Lochnell street, and on the north side of the town a Scotch Episcopal church, erected in 1852. The latter is a building in the Decorated Gothic style, and consists of a nave and chancel, the window of which latter is stained with a figure of our Saviour and the arms of Argyll and the Isles. There is a residence at Bishopton north-west of the village, for the Bishop of Argyll and the Isles; this is at present occupied by Rev. F. E. Ramsay M.A. the bishop preferring to reside at Ballachulish. There is a Board school here. The site commands an extensive view of Loch Fyne to Arran, and the varied and beautiful scenery around. The Argyll and Bute District Asylum, which has been considerably enlarged, and is capable of containing over 400 persons, on the hill overlooking the town, and a combination poorhouse has also been erected there. The Crinan canal passes a few hundred yards to the west of the town, and separates it from Auchendarroch, the residence of Alexander Campbell esq. A mile to the south-east is Kilmory House, the seat of Sir John Powlett Campbell-Orde bart. surrounded with well-wooded grounds, forming a conspicuous feature from all parts of the loch, especially from Ardrishaig, which is nearly opposite. Fairs are held on the third Thursday in March for horses, on the second Wednesday after the last Wednesday in October for black cattle, and on the second Thursday after the fourth Thursday in November for horses. Colonel John Wingfield Malcolm C.B. is the principal landowner. The rateable value of the burgh is £17,685 (gross). The population in in 1891 was 1,320, and in 1881, 1,489; the population in 1891 of the ecclesiastical parish was 2,252.

LOCHGOILHEAD and KILMORICH form a joint parish, lying west of Loch Long, and east of the upper part of Loch Fyne, in poor combination of Greenock, and small debt court district of Dunoon; it extends 16 miles from north to south by 9 in breadth, and is bounded south by Dunoon parish, and north by Dumbartonshire, and contains the villages of Lochgoilhead, Kilmorich, Cairndon and Carrick. Lochgoilhead village is situated at the head of Loch Goil, 14 miles north of Dunoon, and 8 west by south of Inveraray. The country on both sides of the loch is mountainous, the hills rising to about 2,500 feet. Loch Goil is about 6 miles long. Kilmorich is a hamlet, 7 miles north of Lochgoilhead. Cairndow is a small village and pier at the head of Loch Fyne, 10 miles north-west of Inveraray; and Carrick is a village about 4 miles south of Lochgoilhead, on the west shore of Loch Goil, close to the village on a small headland stands Carrick Castle, a strong square tower erected in the 15th century, upon the site of an old fort. A little south of Cairndow are the remains of the castle of Ardkinglas and the modern mansion of same name, the residence of George F. W. Callander esq.

MORVERN is a parish lying north-east of the Sound of Mull, its kirktown being on the north shore of the sound, 5 miles south-east from Tobermory and 25 north-west from Oban; it is in the poor combination of Mull; it gives the name to one of the sub-divisions of the county, but has no important town or village in itself; the village of Loch Aline, nearly opposite to Aros, is the principal place. The parish is bounded on the south and south-west by the Sound of Mull, south-east by Loch Linnhe, north-east by Lismore and Appin, and north and north-west by Loch Sanart, and extends 20 miles from east to west by 12 in depth; the country is mountainous, Ben Meadhoin rising 2,423 feet above sea level, and is principally occupied in grazing farms. Near Loch Aline are the ruins of Ardtornish Castle, and near Morvern kirktown the remains of Killundine Castle. The area of the parish, which includes the islands of Carna, Frielhouse and Oronsay, is 90,737; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 820, and in 1881, 828.

MUCKAIRN, see ARDCHATTAN AND MUCKAIRN.

MULL is a large island lying south of Morvern, from which it is separated by the Sound of Mull, and contains the town of Tobermory and the villages of Bunessan and Salen (which see, under respective headings); it comprises the greater part of the parishes of Kilfinichen and Kilvickeon, and Kilvinian and Kilmore, and the whole of Torosay; in extent it is about 27 miles from south-east to north-west, and 20 broad at its widest part; the poor combination takes its name from the island, and the small debt court district is that of Tobermory, the chief town; the two northern parishes are mountainous, the principal hills being Ben More, 3,185 feet above sea level and Dun-da-oa, 2,505, both in Torosay parish; its western coast is much indented by bays and lochs, two of which, Loch Scridain and Loch-Na-Keal, run 7 or 8 miles into the island, and on the south-east, Loch Spalvie, which is almost land locked, is about the same length. There are many fresh water lochs, of which the largest is Loch Frisa, 5 miles long. Loch Buy, a salt water inlet on the south of the island, is now a fishing station; there are several small rivers. The island contains many remains of ancient castles &c. among which are those of Duart, once the stronghold of the chief of the Macleans, occupying the brink of a high cliff which shoots out from the coast of Mull into the sound, opposite Oban, and Aros castle, the stronghold of the Lords of the Isles. There are also a number of smaller forts round the coast, probably erected as a protection against the Norwegians. On the western side, close to the Ross of Mull, is worked a quarry of red granite, or porphyry.

The parish of Kilfinichen and Kilvickeon occupies the south-western portion of the island on each side of Loch Scridain, and includes the islands of Earrait, Inniskenneth and Iona; in it is situated the village of Bunessan. The area comprises 59,942 acres; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 1,735, of whom 1,439 were on Mull, and in 1881 was 1,982, 1,680 being on Mull.

The parish of Kilninian and Kilmore forms the northern section of the island, north of Loch-Na-Keal, which nearly cuts it off from the other parts of the island, the distance between the head of the loch and the Bay of Aros being only about 4 miles; it includes the islands of Calve, Gometra, Little Colonsay and Ulsa, and contains the town of Tobermory. The area comprises 74,266 acres; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 2,344, including 2,235 on Mull, and in 1881, 2,540, with 2,447 on Mull.

The parish of Torosay is the largest in the island, and occupies the south-eastern portion to the south of Loch-Na-Keel; the castle of Duart is in this parish, as is also Loch Buy, the village of Salen, and the mountains of Ben More and Dun-da-oa. Duart Castle, which belonged to the chiefs of the MacLeans, is 4½ miles from the old ferry house of Achnacraig, and stands on a promontory, which forms the eastern side of Duart bay, nearly opposite to the southern point of Lismore island; the shell of the buildings is complete, and forms a parallelogram, 100 feet by 65 feet, the oldest portion being a solid square tower with walls 12 to 14 feet thick, with round headed splayed windows; the other buildings date from 1663, with subsequent additions. The area is 90,594 acres; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 997, all on Mull, and in 1881, 1,102.

Salen (which see) is a village in Kilninian and Torosay parishes, on the south-east angle of the Bay of Aros.

Aros is a hamlet in the south of Kilninian parish, east of which, on the north point of the bay, are the remains of the strong Castle of Aros, a former fortress of the Lords of the Isles; it is simply a parallelogram, 75 by 30 feet, and some traces of an outer wall. Aros House adjoins it.

Fairs in Mull: at Salen, a large horse fair is held on the first Thursday after the 20th of August, or on the 20th if a Thursday, and for cattle and sheep on the Tuesday before the second Wednesday in May, and the Tuesday before the last Wednesday in October; at Craiganure, Morvern and the islands of Coll and Tiree, fairs are held a few days before those at Salen.

OBAN is a modern town, police burgh and seaport, in the parish of Kilmore and Kilbride, 136 miles west-north-west from Edinburgh, 117 north-west from Glasgow, 40 south-south-west from Fort William, 32 west-north-west from Inveraray and 80 south-east from Tobermory. The town, which is divided by a small river into two sections, is situated at the head of a fine bay, protected by the Island of Kerrara in front, having an entrance at each end. This bay is from 12 to 20 fathoms deep, is well sheltered by lofty mountains, and large enough to anchor with convenience a good number of merchantmen. There are three quays, which have been enlarged and improved, so as to afford ample room to the various vessels frequenting the port. In 1894, 28 fishing boats, aggregate tonnage, 82 tons, and employing 52 hands, were registered at this port. The imports of Oban consist chiefly of merchandise from Glasgow, Liverpool and Ireland, and its principal exports are whisky, wool and sheep dip. It is also a great centre for the steamer traffic for the Caledonian canal, West Argyllshire and the Western Isles, and is the terminus of the Callander and Oban branch of the Caledonian railway. There are branches of the Bank of Scotland, Clydesdale Bank Limited, Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited, National Bank of Scotland Limited, North of Scotland Bank Limited and the Royal Bank of Scotland in the town. The municipal government of the town is vested in a provost, two bailies, four councillors and a town clerk, and Oban is contributory with the burghs of Ayr, Campbeltown, Inveraray and Irvine in returning one member to Parliament. A sheriff's court is held once a week, a justice of peace court for small debts the first Friday of every month, and a police and burgh court every Monday. The Sheriff Court House and Police Station were completed in 1889, in the same classic style, from the designs of the late Mr. D. Macintosh, of Oban. The Court House, the main entrance to which is in Albany street, contains the offices of the procurator fiscal, the sheriff clerk depute, &c. The front is entirely finished with a polished freestone, and the rear of gray granite with freestone dressings. Further along Albany street are the Police buildings, consisting of the police station and the usual offices, the material employed being granite and freestone. On the east side of the town stands the church of the quoad sacra parish of Oban; the present building was erected in 1893, on the site of the old church, at a cost of £3,200, and affords 650 sittings. In Tweeddale street is a Congregational chapel, built in 1820, capable of accommodating 500. A Free church occupies a commanding site in the rear of the town. St. Columba church (Established), George street, is an elegant structure with a spire 120 feet high, erected in 1875. The United Presbyterian church, in the neighbourhood of St. John's, was erected in 1866. St. John's Scotch Episcopal church, a Gothic edifice with beautiful stained windows, capable of seating 200, was erected by subscription, for the numerous visitors, at a cost of about £1,700; it was consecrated in September, 1864, by the Bishop of London. The bishop of the diocese and trustees are the patrons. On the Corran Esplanade there is the Roman Catholic Pro-Cathedral and the residence of the Right Rev. George John Smith, Roman Catholic Bishop of Argyll and the Isles. Argyll Square Free church was erected in 1893, at a cost of £4,700, and has suitable halls. To the south of the town a union poorhouse was opened in 1862, for the poor of the several parishes in the district of Lorn; including the yards, it occupies about three acres. A new board school was built in 1893, on Colonel MacDougall's estate, to the south of Oban, at Soroba road. The cost was about £3,000. The Burgh School Board are now (1895) about to build a new school for secondary education, in which there will be special class rooms for cookery and art, at a cost of £4 000, on the Soroba road site. There are three newspapers published weekly—the "Oban Times," the "Oban Telegraph" and the "Oban Express." The latter is the only halfpenny paper wholly printed and published in the Scottish highlands, and first appeared March 30th, 1888: it is issued on Friday morning of each week; it has a Gaelic column, and a visitors' list appears during the season. There is a fine sandy beach at Ganavan, about a mile to the north of the town, which can be approached by boat. Fairs and markets, for cattle, on the Monday and Tuesday before the last Wednesday in May, and the Friday and Saturday before the last Wednesday in October; for sheep and wool, on the Wednesday after Inverness July market; for horses, on the Tuesday before the fourth Thursday in March, September and November; and for hiring, April and October. The ownership of the town is divided between two proprietors, Robert Macfie esq. of Airds, owning the south portion; that on the north belonging to Colonel M'Dougall, of Dunollie. The rateable value of the town is £47,709; the population in 1891 was 4,946 and in 1881, 4,046.

KILMORE AND KILBRIDE form a parish on the coast of the Firth of Lorne and south of the mouth of Loch Etive; its kirktown is 15 miles north-west from Inveraray and 7 east from Oban; the parish includes the police burgh of Oban and the island of Kerrera; it is in the Lorn poor combination and small debt court district of Oban, and extends about 10 miles from east to west by 6 north to south; its boundaries are the parishes of Ardchattan on the north, Kilchrenan on the east and Kilninver on the south.

Dunstaffnage, Dunolly and Gulia Castles are in the parish; the first-named stands on a promontory, at the southern point of the entrance to Loch Etive; it is believed to have been the residence of the Kings of Scotland until they removed, about 850, to Scone, when Kenneth II. took with him the "Stone of Destiny," or coronation seat now in Westminster Abbey; the circumference of the castle is about 400 feet. Dunolly stands on a rock on the coast, half a mile north of Oban, and has a fine keep still in tolerable state of repair. Gulia (or Gylen) stands on the south-east point of the island of Kerrera, and was a stronghold of the MacDougalls, of Lorn. King Alexander II. is said to have died on this island, about 1249, when on an expedition against the western isles, and Haco, the Norwegian, made the island a rendezvous for his galleys. A quarry of excellent freestone was some years since opened, about 4 miles south, on the shore of Loch Feochan, and in the vicinity of Loch Awe are the well-known Ben Cruachen granite quarries. The area of the parish comprises 29,500 acres; rateable value, £ ; the population in 1891 was 5,729, of whom 4,946 were in the burgh of Oban, and in 1881, 5,142, of whom 4,046 were in Oban.

Connel Ferry is a rising village, about 3 miles north of Oban, on the shore of Loch Etive, and has a station on the Callander and Oban branch of the Caledonian railway. Here, a church of the Establishment has been erected, and is built entirely of Ben Cruachan granite; it occupies a position on a rising piece of ground to the north of the village, and forms a prominent object in the magnificent scenery of the district. The architect was the late Mr David Macintosh, of Oban; also a Free church, erected and opened in August, 1893, at a cost of about £800.
